Park Bond Issue Is Voted Down

Seventy-eight of 2.16 voters made t difference on the $1,490 000 Elk Grove Park District bond issue Saturday

It was an unpleasant birthday present for Jack Claes, park district director who said, "I have no idea why we lost I wouldn't know what to change if we came back again "

The referendum was to seek voter approval of financing for a wide range of park improvemements, including a recreational building

The official vote total was 1,045 yes, and 1.123 no

Motorists hit their brakes. Apartment dwellers at International Village had their noses against the window panes. Their eyes were fixed - their expressions stunned

Anyone in the vicinity of Motorola Inc. at 1301 E Algonquin Road in Schaumburg last Friday was wondering what on earth was going on.

Helicopters roomed low and fast in the Motorola parking lot Police cars with sirens and tires screeching were right below the choppers. And in the lead: the bad guya

The chase lasted only minutes before nine squad cars from Northwest suburbs, the county and the state had two suspects in a new, green Oldsmobile pinned in a corner of the huge lot

But it wasn't over yet. The two men leaped from the front seat and took cover behind their car before they opened fire on the approaching police, who, in turn, shot right back

AND AFTER THE smoke cleared, the two men were outstretched against their car Legs spread wide and arms far above their heads, the men did not speak during the frisk. It was over.

But even 30 minutes after the "hot pursuit" came to a climax, a few befuddled motorists remained parked on the shoulder of Algonquin Road, peering over the acres of grassy lawn to a circle of blinking lights where police zeroed in on their

And to the dismay of other curiosity seekers like him, they did not know it was all a set up, a mock demonstration, a phony from the blank cartridges to the actor-crooks.

They had no idea it was an impressive example of how one of the most innovative radio devices in the United States makes Illinois law officers from local, county and state agenices unique in their ability to communicate between squad cars in times of need.

POLICE FROM Arlington Heights, Des Plaines, Elk Grove Village, Rolling Meadows, Schaumburg and Streamwood joined county and state police in the demonstration.

Herbert D. Brown, director of the state department of law enforcement, was also on hand for the press conference - demonstration of an invention called, for short, ISPERN.

ISPERN stands for Illinois State Police Emergency Radio Network. It is the first police comunications program of its kind in the nation

To show how it works, Brown placed a call for assistance by using an ISPERN unit in a Schaumburg police car and staged Friday morning's live demonstra-

Within minutes after the alert was sent out, nine, and maybe more, police departments had responded to the call. And few minutes later, the two Motorola employes who posed as crooks ended their short "criminal" career.

Motorola hosted the demonstration because of the pioneering work it has done on ISPERN Some came from as far as Washington, D.C to witness the hourlong demo.

Towns like Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and Roselle which already have these units, joined the participating communities for the session.

IN A SHORT time, every town in the suburbs, as well as all of Illinois, will be equipped with ISPERN thanks to two federal grants.

Two grants totalling more than $3 milhon will enable state officials to install 5,300 more ISPERN in city, county and state police departments dealing with felony crime by the end of this year, said Arthur J. Bilek, chairman of the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission.

He said, "ISPERN is unparalleled. No other state in the union has this ability to communicate on a mobile-to-mobile unit

ISPERN links all police in the state with a special high band emergency frequency — 154.68 megacycles.

At present, 680 Illinois police agencies have ISPERN. "They are now provided with greater mutual aid and protection in times of emergency or disaster," he

One ISPERN unit costs about $1,500 It is financed 75 per cent by federal, and another 25 per cent by state funds, Local municipalities pay only a $30 to $40 installation fee

THE UNIQUE system developed out of a proposal Gov Richard B. Ogilvie first made in 1964 when he was the Cook County Sheriff.

Bilek was also instrumental in IS-PERN'S development. He said it was nearly impossible for immediate communication between different law enforcement agencies on a car-to-car basis before ISPERN's inception.

He cited embarrassing examples of state police coming upon accidents on

The board scheduled the referendum April 10 because it is the same day as school board elections, he said.

Erviti said the estimated cost of the building was based on cost of square footage per student (about 100 square feet), and rising construction costs.

HE SAID, "Construction costs are going up rapidly and in view of that the amount appears to be reasonable."

Construction on the school would begin next spring if the referendum passed, according to Erviti. He said the total cost for building and equipping the junior high was based on an average of $23 per square foot.

The school would be built for at least 750 students.

Erviti said the school would be similar the two newer junior high schools in the district, Thomas Lively Junior High in Elk Grove Village and Oliver Wendell Holmes Junior High in Mount Prospect.

The decision to build a junior high school was made by the board following receipt of a special committee report on overcrowding in the schools.

AT THAT TIME the committee, made up of residents, also recommended that there eb an addition to Lively Junior High and updating of facilities at Grove Junior High School in Elk Grove Village and Dempster Junior High School in Mount Prospect.

Erviti said the district is planning to follow up on these recommendations next

While the number of town welfare cases has increased, the expense to the township has gone down, said Laubenstein. This is a result of faster transfer of cases from township to county welfare roles after they apply for assistance, he

IN FISCAL year 1969-70, Schaumburg paid out $13,515 to welfare cases undergoing the waiting period between application for county aid and approval for it. In 1970-71, the township paid "very close to $11,000." said Laubenstein Neighboring Elk Grove Township spent $27,110 on welfare in 1970-71 compared to $22,671 in 1969-70.

In the past, a welfare applicant might spend as long as 90 days waiting for county approval. In the interim, the township covered him. "Now the county tries to take them at the 30-day mark," said Laubenstein, and the township pays each family for a shorter period of time.

For the Northwest suburban men in the program, class is held Tuesday nights at the Quigley Seminary, 103 E. Chestnut, Chicago, and Thursday nights at the Niles College of Loyola University, near north suburban Niles.

> THOSE NORTHWEST suburban men accepted into the program are: John Devron, 338 N. Morris Dr., Palatine; Robert Flynn, 1804 Mannheim Rd., Des Plaines; Dennis LaSota, 1844 Fargo, Des Plaines; John Pistone, 919 E. Slayton Dr., Palatine; John Richard, 631 Bel Aire Terr., Palatine; Harry Walsh, 1330 Cumberland, Elk Grove Village; and James Whittle, 2185 Spruce, Des Plaines.

These men are among 130 chosen to be a part of the first Chicago-area deacon training program. The Chicago program is the 11th in the nation. The Archdiocesan Office for the Permanent Diaconate, 1300 S. Wabash, was established last spring by John Cardinal Cody, archbishop of Chicago.

The program has been opened only to men. The application of a Des Plaines housewife, Mrs. Polly O'Grady was rejected by the Archdiocesan office.

The programs at the Quigley Seminary on Tuesday night have been on scriptural subjects. The next semester of work at Quigley will be on "Christ and the Redemption," and the final semester will be on the church's role in the community.

IN THE NILES College sessions, the candidates will discuss five parts of their role as deacons, according to the Rev. Eugene Ahern and the Rev. Edward McLaughlin, who moderate the sessions.

The candidates will learn communication skills, according to Father Ahern, who like Father McLaughlin, is an assistant professor at Niles College, which is the seminary for Loyola University. Communications skills include speaking, listening and learning to confront issues in a constructive way.

The candidates also will learn ministerial skills, including preaching, teaching adult education classes, organizational skills, and the role of the parish in the community. The third area of study is in self-development, which includes general selfknowledge, enhancement of self-esteem, self-assertion, and resourcefulness and initiative.

FOURTH AREA of study, is spiritual development, including prayer, and "20th century spirituality," Father Ahern said. The fifth part of study will be relating theology and scripture to daily life, he

Candidates for the deaconate from the Northwest suburban area are active in church affairs. The two most represented churches are St. Stephens, 1267 Everett, Des Plaines; and St. Thomas, Anderson and Williams Drive, Palatine.

One of the Des Plaines candidates Robert Flynn, became interested in the program after hearing about it from Michael Belinda, who was working at St. Stephens as a deacon, in preparation for his ordainment as a priest. FLYNN HAS tau gion classes at the church, and has been a lector at masses.

He has been a Des Plaines resident for three years. He and his wife Madeleine have two daughters, Stacey, 7, and Dominique, 5.

John Pistone, 38, and his wife, Rae Ellen, are coordinators of the high school education program at St. Thomas.

He has been a resident of Palatine for almost two years, and he hopes after he completes his deacon study, to work in the St. Thomas Church.

also available for patients' use. Hospital officials said: "The psychiatric care unit offers a controlled 'family' environment with partial patient self-government. There is a group participation in activities which ease patients' transition from the hospital back into their roles in the community. Psychodrama helps patients deal more comfortably with their own feelings. Frequent field trips into Chicago for entertainment events and bowling and swimming at community facilities are also part of therapy.'

The psychiatric care unit is staffed by a full complement of registered nurses, licensed practical nurses, nursing technicians, nursing assistants, an activities therapist, a music therapist, a psychiatric social worker and a staff psychologist. There are five psychiatrists currently on the hospital's medical staff.

The remaining 150 beds in the Annex will be used for mental and physical rehabilitation, graduated care and other ambulatory programs. These units will be phased into operation over a period of the next several months.

at Fremd next year. The students live in the western section of Rolling Meadows which recently disannexed from High School Dist. 211 and joined Dist. 214.

The Rolling Meadows City Council last week offered to contribute $500 per student toward the $1,100 per student tuition fee charged by Dist. 211. The difference, which Dist. 214 would pay, would be the amount of state aid Dist. 214 will receive for each of the 27 students next year.

The board will also discuss asking voters whether the school district should pay for textbooks or continue to charge students for them. A referendum on the question may be held April 10 in conjunction with the school board election.

ORPUT-ORPUT AND Associates, architects for Rolling Meadows High School on Central Road, will give the board a progress report on the school's construction.

The district's policy on discipline for students involved with addicting drugs will probably be discussed. Administrators are asking the board to reexamine its drug policy after a year of experience with the first policy adopted. Dorothy Lewis, an Elk Grove High School social studies teacher, has asked to speak to the board about the proposed drug pol-

Renewal of membership in the Northwest Educational Cooperative, an organization of 10 school districts in the Northwest suburbs, will also be considered, as will a combined two-year math and algebra program.

An Arlington Heights resident, Floyd Pierson, 727 Wilshire Ln., has also asked to appear before the board. Pierson was unavailable for comment on the nature of his presentation.

It is also increased during

The discharge may be rather heavy in young girls, about your age. The marked discharge occurs a lew years before and after the onset of periods

The discharge is creamy white or clear and causes no odor or itching. It is not a venereal disease or an infection. If the discharge is gray or greenish, has a bad odor, or if there is itching, then it may be an infection and anyone with this problem MUST see a doctor.

Taking too many douches can increase the amount of discharge For the most part women are better off to avoid douching with anything except water containing a little salt or vinegar and restricting their efforts to external hygiene, unless advised to do so by their doctor for an infection

Will The Real Secretary Of State Please Stand Up?

WASHINGTON UPI - Many people here, I among them, are experiencing an identity crisis with respect to the Secretary of State.

On the cocktail circuit, we are told by Sen. Stuart Symington, William P. Rogers is regarded as Secretary of State in name only whereas Henry A. Kissinger is regarded as Secretary of State in everything but title.

The cocktail circuit being our fourth branch of government, its opinion carries a lot of weight. The White House, however, has described Symington's statement as "totally inaccurate."

Perhaps the best way to clear up the matter would be to have Kissinger and Rogers appear on the television program

"To Tell the Truth." THAT SHOW'S FORMAT brings three guests before the cameras. One is a bona fide achiever, usually someone like Kathleen Berry of Matlock, Derbyshire, England, who holds the world's needlethreading record. The other two are ring-

The panel then questions the three guests about the fine points of needle threading and tries to determine from their answers which one is the real Kathleen Berry, who won the championship in 1967 by threading 2,827 needles in two

In the case of Kissinger and Rogers, the panel's job will be to determine which one qualifies as the "real" Secretary of State

SINCE HE WILL be a ringer, the identity of the third guest doesn't matter. Senator Fulbright will do.

Despite certain similarities between the state department and a sewing circle, the panel may find the real Secretary of State harder to identify than the real needle-threading champion, Skillfull questioning will be the key.

Fine Revenue Net: $283,000

Northwest suburban communities in the third district of the Cook County Circuit Court received the largest share of revenue from more than $283,000 in fines collected during January.

Matthew J. Danaher, court clerk, announced Friday that the third district received $71,257. Elk Grove Village's share of $12,636 represented the most money collected by any community within the court's five suburban districts.

Most of the money came from fines collected in traffic offenses, according to Revenue collected by other communities in the third district was as follows: Des Plaines - $11,124; Hanover Park -$1,128; Hoffman Estates - $2,427; Mount Prospect — $2,794; Schaumburg — $8,519; and Streamwood — $373.

Finess returned to Northwest suburbs in the second district were: Arlington Heights — $7,687; Buffalo Grove — $728; Palatine -- $4,455; Rolling Meadows --$2,306; and Wheeling - $1,706.

In making the announcement, League members said the federal government should fear the major responsibility for an income assistance program which meets the basic needs of persons unable to work, whose earnings are inadequate or for whom jobs are not available. The statement of position, announced by the League's board of directors, followed an intensive study of the welfare problem undertaken by local leagues. In announcing the position, Lucy Wilson

The League of Women Voters of the United States recently announced that its

Benson, national president, said, "The decision to work for constructive alternatives to our present welfare system is based on a clear mandate from our members It represents a consensus of studies made by more than 900 Leagues and views which prevail in all sections of the country

THE LEAGUE president said, "League members put a great deal of energy and effort into this matter and reached some basic conclusions in four

-"We believe that the amount of income assistance should be sufficient to provide decent, adequate standards for food, clothing and shelter.

-"We believe that all persons in need, individuals as well as members of families, should be eligible for assistance.

-"The individual rights of welfare participants should be protected.

-"The League believes that a punitive relationship between income assistance and job programs should be avoided. Work should be encouraged, but counseling, realistic training for actual jobs and financial incentives - not work requirements - should be the links between job programs and income assis-

In addition to income assistance, the League's position calls for provision of supportive services, including child care, counseling, family planning, health and legal services. Eligibility for the services would be set and quality standards maintained by the federal government which would also continue in-kind assistance programs such as food stamps and housing subsidies, according to the League.

THE LEAGUE POSITION also stresses that service and administrative centers should be as accessible as possible to program recipients.

"The League has been working for programs to alleviate poverty for many years," Mrs. Benson said. "This position is based on the fact, not fancy.

"Our present welfare system is an admitted mess which all to often puts down the very people it is supposed to be helping. It's time to have assistance programs which encourage choice and movement instead of locking people on to a treadmill that goes nowhere," she said.

leading heresy-hunter in John Warwick Montgomery of Deerfield. Montgomery, chairman of the church history department at Deerfield's ultraconservative Trinity Evangelical Divinity School, has far more academic distinctions than Preuss - which achievements he is by no means reluctant to display. For instance, he recently participated in a debate at San Diego State College, where he arrived equipped with a mimeographed resume and biographical sketch, which was five pages long, with 140 entries.

THIS IMPRESSIVE document (which is more than twice the size of the resume of renowned theologian Rheinhold Niebuhr) advised that Montgomery is among "2000 Men of Achievement" and listed in four different Who's Who: In America, In France, In the Midwest and in Library Science. (Mention of the fact that he earned his Ph.D. in library science recently provoked him to unmitigated rage, expressed in a letter in which he also recapitulated his giant list of academic kudos.) While Montgomery has thus far received no awards for humility, history's heresy-hunters have generally been terribly self-assured. This is apparent in the pedantic savagery and sleazy over-simplifications he employs in debate. University of Chicago Lutheran Chaplain Wayne Saffen describes Montgomery's debating technique as a "War dance . . . devoid of the fundamental rules of human decency." In San Diego, for instance, Montgomery described debate opponent Joseph Fletcher ( of new morality of "Situation Ethics" fame) as "virtually a mid-twentieth century Marcionite." (Marcion, a second century heretic, advocated dropping of the Old Testament from Christian scripture.) After Fletcher had contended that sometimes lying is ethical conduct - as in the case of saving a child's life by concealment from a potential murderer - Montgomery affirmed:

'There is no way short of sodium pentothol, of knowing when the situationist is actually endeavoring to set forth genuine facts and when he is lying like a trooper . . . it leave me, the protagonist, and you, the audience, entirely incapable of every being sure that Prof. Fletcher means what he says."

Cable Television: A Luxury Of The 1970s

First of a Series

It all starts with a call to the TV repairman who comes to your house to perform a very simple task.

He'll loosen those two screws holding the antenna in place on the back of your TV set and replace the thin, brown wire with a fine, tubular device called a cable

Once the installation is complete, the suburban viewer will begin his monthly payments of about $5 and sit back to enjoy the sights and sounds of his own community in the privacy of his home.

He may choose a high school basketball game. Maybe his neighbor's boy or own son is the center. Or maybe he'll pick a public service program to see his local alderman giving the latest pitch for

And instead of five channels, he'll have those 2, 5, 7, 9 and 11 numbers plus 12 others, and maybe more.

BECAUSE THE TV signal is direct, the picture should be crystal clear when he sees a local newscaster summing up a hond referendum, or his buddy down at the supermarket advertising the goods

And depending on federal rules, now under review, the new cable TV subscriber might pick a movie from Milwankee or a Chicago Bears game from Rockford - now only a channel selector push away. For the wife who wants this new convenience in her kitchen, or the daughter who enjoys a late show in her bedroom, only a wall plate similar to a telephone extension connection need be installed. And in the next decade or two, technologists say Community Antenna TV (also called CATV) subscribers will most likely witness their TV sets becoming an all purpose home communications center, complete with gadgets to credit card shop, bank and even vote.

These are but a few of the ramifications CATV could have on the lives of residents in Northwest suburbia, which is now being pursued as a market place by CATV operators

AND EVEN THOUGH experts say CATV will revolutionize our lives, local officials are concerned primarily with the grassroots of this technological infant, which is nowhere near its potential

They want to know one thing. What immediate effect will cable TV have on the suburbs?

This question is being asked by administrators from Des Plaines, Elk Grove Village, Mount Prospect, Palatine, Rolling Meadows, Roselle, Schaumburg, and Wheeling All have been approached by CATV operators with franchise offers in Another question officials are asking is. Who will control this medium which, one CATV operator said, could "have a greater impact on society than the automobile i

Before rejecting or accepting CATV bidders, most local administrators are awaiting the outcome of state and federal hearings aimed at answering this

BUT IN WHEELING, Village Atty. Paul Hamer is in the process of drafting an ordinance which would allow the village board to grant a franchise to one of three bidders

Wheeling is farthest along the route to becoming the first CATV community in the Northwest suburbs, but for an invention which has been around for some 20 years there is still much ground to be covered before the doubts are cleared away and CATV's full potential is real-

CATV was originated about 20 years ago by a TV repairman in a rural Pennsylvania village which was robbed of good TV reception by high bluffs which engulfed that coal mining community.

Since then, CATV systems have dotted rural America — close to 45 million in all. But now, CATV operators are eyeing a relatively new and lucrative market: Chicago and its outlying suburbs.

CATV IS MAKING inroads into city and suburbs for two reasons. Heavier population concentrations yield higher profits. And, increasingly taller buildings. like the Hancock Building, often block or distort broadcasting signals

Thus, a coaxial cable used to bring a TV signal directly to the picture tube instead of relying on over-the-air beaming. can result in clearer reception and more channel selection, CATV operators say.

In addition, CATV people say their medrum will usher in a host of new developments which will cause as much excitement as those first six-inch screens did following World War II.

CATV in Illinois is not new, however. There are 48 systems in operation downstate, now, and another 60 communities have recently granted franchises, says Richard Zukowski, counsel for the Illinois-Indiana Cable TV Association.

Most operators charge their customers a $15 installation fee and a $3.50 to $7 monthly bill thereafter.

ing resources at Harper College, which telephone service. has an instructional television studio on campus. Recently, he spoke on cable TV before the Northwest Municipal Conference of Mayora. He said CATV operators will have to offer more than clearer reception and more channels to entice potential customers at this price.

"But that's what's good about it," he said. "Expanding CATV services will result in a better communications system for all.'

The basic system CATV operators have to work with consist of a high community antenna, a distribution center at the foot of this tower and miles of cable

Signals are picked up or sent via the antenna, reprocessed over and over in the distribution center to make for a clearer image, and then sent out over a main cable trunk line into the community where customers tap off a line to their homes in the same way they get

In fact, CATV operators usually run their cables along existing utility poles. Some, however, bury their cable like water mains.

WHAT DOES applying this system to the suburbs mean? According to Merrill Shepro, president of Scientific Communications Corp. in LaGrange, "Cable TV is the communications medium of the 1970s. It will fulfill all promises made and broken by broadcast TV over the years," he said. But Harper's Dean Vogel does not agree. Aside from the suburb's good TV reception gained from their closeness to Chicago, CATV has not reached the suburbs because people simply do not want to pay for TV, he said.

Vogel said CATV operators will have to open their medium's potential full throttle to entice a paying audience. He, like Atty. Zukowski, felt the impetus for acceptance is the largely untapped area of local programming.

Hospitals, schools, churches, town halls, fire and police departments could all tie into cable TV. Local athletic events, bond issues, disaster warnings, town meetings and many other events could be watched by the cable TV subscriber in the privacy of his home.

Aside from the cultural, educational and informational strides CATV could make in the suburbs, the medium allows for other electronic conveniences.

TECHNOLOGY PERMITS 3,600 signals to be sent back and forth between a home and the CATV distribution center in a given town, Shepro said.

Because of this, a CATV set could be equipped to provide home burglar and fire alarms, and channels piping in FM music.

Shepro and others see a day not too far away when Cable TV will also provide automatic utility meter readings, a "yes" or "no" button for voting and opinion polling, and a facsimile printout device like a Xerox machine and computer terminals for banking or credit card shopping all packed into the average TV set.

Vogel pointed out the positive effect which CATV will have on local merchants, who will be able to advertise their goods and services at a relatively modest cost.

And for the same low cost, local politicians will be able to reach their constituents and avoid the exorbitant sum which current air-time rates call for.

AND MANY OF the CATV people feel their medium will have a tremendous effect on local news media, bringing the sights and sounds of news in their towns to the subscriber's TV. Local officials like Jack Pahl, Elk

Grove Village president, are aware of the potentials of CATV. Pahl for example, has asked that a special commission be established in his village to study and recommend a policy on CATV. He said he will also suggest that the Northwest Municipal Conference, consisting of mayors from 15 area towns, study a plan for a co-operative venture into the area of local CATV. There are reasons for this preparation, and the anxiety over the outcome of state and federal hearings on the question of CATV regulation. Aside from the communication boom

CATV could provide, it is also a potential lucrative business deal.

MANY FIGURES have been thrown out, but on an average, a town with 20,000 to 30,000 people can expect a yearly return from a CATV franchise of about $160,000 — after putting out an initial $ .5 million to get it off the ground,

Adding the communications potential of CATV to its profit potential, other officials such as Harper's Vogel are also considering a CATV co-op for the Northwest suburbs to ensure a proper set of guidelines for this fledgling technological giant to follow.

"It would be nice if we could get together on this thing. Otherwise, it might be like having 15 different phone companies serving the area," Vogel said. Whatever the outcome, the complications of implementing a local CATV system are as numerous as the medium's potentials. But there is another

Even the housewife will have her problems. Put a futuristic CATV set with all but a computer dial on it and a youngster with mishcievous hands togeher and the result might be like "turning a space monkey loose in the Houston control center," one CATV official said.

Home Sewing

It's Really Catching On

by GENIE CAMPBELL

Wearing a homemade dress that definitely looked homemade 30 years ago often meant.

- (A) you were a "country bumpkin."
- (B) you were short on eash
- (C) fashion was a foreign word to you. Today, admitting you're a home sewer is also admitting. .

- (A) you are clever
- (B) you are creative.
- (C) you stress individuality in dress.

From an economy-based chore to a pleasurable one, sewing has been picked up as a satisfying creative outlet by many women who find box cakes totally unchallenging

While saving money is still an aspect of home sewing, most women sew today because they want to. . . not because they have to

AS OF 1971 the home sewing market is one of the 10 fastest growing businesses

Perhaps even more startling is a recent statistic that claims there are more sewing machines in American homes today than there are bathtubs.

All in all, it adds up to a grand total of between 42 and 44 million home sewers in this country alone, and some statisticians claim it is closer to 50 million.

One out of every 3.5 garments worn by women and children in the United States is made at home

"Our sales in the past year have definitely increased," said Bernard Samuels, manager of Singer's in Randhurst Shopping Center. "The fabric market sales are proving even further that home sewing is increasing," he continued.

"ABSOLUTELY EVERYONE appears to be sewing or at least trying," said Jeanne Wade of Fabric World in Rolling

"The majority are sewing really complicated things. Although they feel they are saving a lot of money, they usually end up sewing twice as much. Anyhow the satisfaction of creating is still cheaper than tranquilizers.'

The median age has also changed. Sewing is no longer a middle age task. Most home sewers are in the 18-30 age bracket with the average 23. That compares with an average of 47 just a few

A recent survey by Seventeen magazine disclosed that sewing is the No. 1 hobby of teenage girls and that 25 per cent of them have their own sewing ma-

"YOUNG PEOPLE are sewing much more than their parents," said Samuels. 'They are much more clothes con-

More than home economic majors are taking advantage of high school sewing instruction. Classes have been added to the junior high curricula in many schools. Girl Scouts, 4-H and individual stores are other outlets for learning how

And even though sewing is still considered primarily a feminine interest, the intricacies of a sewing machine are being explored by some men.

"Around Christmas everyone was sewing ties," said Mrs. Wade. "Even the men came in and were making their own. Homemade ties are now a big status symbol at the office."

TECHNOLOGY AND experience have done a lot for home sewing. Both quality and quantity of available patterns and fabrics have greatly improved. Sewing machines with their sundry attachments almost make putting in a seam child's

Designers' fabrics are available now for anyone who cares to pay the price. Catalogs too keep pace with the latest in fashion. It used to be patterns dragged several months behind ready-to-wear in style. Today, they are all up-to-date.

When the home sewing craze began to pick up momentum, catalog companies added a special section to their books which included simplified 1-2-3 step patterns for the novice or non-sewer. If one could read, the idea went, one could sew.

Co-authors Sharon Rosenburg and Joan

Wiener have taken a straight forward approach to making clothes that completely excludes any tailoring. Many of the styles call for no more than being able to sew up two side seams.

Through trial and error most veteran seamstresses have found out what they can and cannot wear. Individual fit is often a primary reason for sewing.

Capitalizing on the fact that every woman wants to look her best, McCall's Book of Patterns has introduced a series of patterns to aid women in camouflaging their bad points through design at the bust, waist or hips.

OTHER INNOVATIONS in sewing include pre-cut fabrics. Kits ranging from bathing suits to three-piece leather suits contain all the pre-cut pieces, lining, buttons and thread. The outfit just has to be put together.

For those who dislike the preliminaries of sewing, kits are the answer. They're also a bit more expensive way to sew.

A tremendous urge for individuality, particularly in dress, has caused many women to go the route of home sewing. It's an assurance of being able to appear in public in a one-of-a-kind dress.

And then too, when the chips are down (particularly when it comes to simple items such as ponchos and shifts), sewing is cheaper.

THE SINGER COMPANY promoted a wedding gown that can be sewn from its unbleached muslin for a total of $2.36. Only the Vogue pattern, 2448, costs almost twice as much. The days of dime patterns have long gone. Sewing is not cheap. . . but maybe cheaper.

The accompanying fashions were made by students of design from various parts of the country. Ten ensembles, the top honored in the 1971 contest, "Young America Creates" sponsored by Giamour, Butterick Patterns and Trevira polyester fabrics, were modeled recently by members of Wieboldt's senior fashion

The designs appear as patterns for home sewers in the April dated Butterick catalog.

Know Where You've Been And Where You're Going?

by MARY SHERRY

One of the things that makes this era and area an interesting setting for living is the game, "Where are you from?" It is the first question one asks when meeting someone, and the answer often provides a ground for developing strong friendships - or a quick write-off, depending of course on where one is from.

This presents a problem to the people today who have moved frequently. Does one say he is from the place he lived in most recently, or from the place he lived the longest, or from the place he liked the best? Does one say he's from the place where his parents now live, although he lived there only a few years because his family moved a bit? In making this choice there are several things to consider. First of all would you, at a hip, artsy-craftsy party really want to say you were from Woosung, Ill. (assuming you had a choice)? Now this isn't to imply that one should be ashamed of his origins. It's just that if the party is in the city and full of really way-out people, the chances are very good that most of them are from Woosung, too.

BEING FROM SOME place else can be a real hazard. It takes only a couple of moves to learn that there are certain stock reactions to certain cities. Chicago, I'm afraid, suffers the most from its reputation. In other parts of the world its far flung sons and daughters are automatically suspected of carrying submachine guns. Los Angeles doesn't fare too well, either. Its former citizens are "known" to wear sunglasses in the bathtub and to have had first-hand experience with wife swapping.

There seems to be a great deal of prestige associated with moving around a lot. If someone had moved nine times in 10 years, it was natural to assume that he or she had been educated to a variety of life styles and cultural values.

To some extent this is probably true. But I personally have a reverence for the person who has managed to stay in one place all his life.

LIVING IN ONE location for a long time can make someone interesting in the depth of his involvement in an area. These people have strong regional accents and amazing vast families that include third cousins whom they even know! Things that are, for some, reasons for escape have turned out to be the very things that give people an identity and a sense of security. And that can't be all

An unfortunate aspect of our mobile society is that the transients and the natives rarely find common interests or friendships. I believe that this is more often than not the fault of the transient who usually prefers to identify with where he is from. Too few of us are from right here, right now.

To be from some place one really should have been affected by the experience of living there. And that happens most often when we give something of ourselves to that place where we live. The people who manage to do this seem to me to know where they've been. And they also know where they're going.

The Home Line

Deer Dorothy: All the talk shout how dry homes are during the winter simply fascinates me. You see, we almost went crazy with a house that had too much moisture. There was a constant musty smell and mildew was a threat all the time. An engineer friend came over and found the trouble - an uncovered crawl space. We covered the area with black plastic and weighted it down with brick, rocks and other heavy things. It cured the problem. — Edith P.

It was good of you to share your experience. The FHA has a regulation that when there is a crawl space and only two foundation vents, there has to be a polyethylene vapor barrier over the crawl space. Apparently, this isn't necessary when there are more vents.

My son's and husband's shirt collars become frayed at the collar points after just a few washings. Thinking it might be the dryer, I started to iron them instead of drying them. The situation remained unchanged. Have you ever heard of this? Is there anything I can do about it? —Nancy Anderson.

You've stumped all my experts. We've all heard of heavy beards causing fraying and pilling at the neckline and friction at the cuffs doing the same thing but collar points, no. Has anyone ever run into this odd problem?

Dear Dorothy: When you have unexpected dinner guests and there's not enough lettuce to make a green salad, put canned celery hearts on a leaf of lettuce, sprinkle it with either pickle relish or hard-boued egg and a dash of dress ing. It can be made in a twinkling with an envelope of the salad dressing usually kept on the shelf, not just for emergencies but for ourselves. -Mrs. Ben S.

Dear Dorothy: Do you know how one can remove a lime deposit from a hot water heater? Whenever the water is heatng, there is considerable "rumbling" which I've been told is due to the

Childbirth Film Set For March 15

A film demonstrating the Lamaze method of childbirth will be shown Monday evening, March 15, at Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge. The film, "Not Me Alone," will be shown at 8 p.m. with a Lamaze teacher and a local doctor to answer questions.

The Lamaze method prepares women both physically and psychologically for pregnancy, labor and delivery. It includes exercises to prepare muscles used in childbirth and teaches relaxation and concentration techniques.

Those wishing further information may call Kathy Green at 437-4914.

LINCOLN, NEB. (UPI) -In buying bed linens that stores advertise as bargains this time of year, follow these tips, suggests the University of Nebraska Extension Service:

Read the label. Buy the correct size for bed and pillows. Look for closely woven, even surface and firm selvage.

Notice if hems are straight and with fine stitching. Be sure that corners of fitted sheets are reinforced. Avoid excessive "sizing." Replenish bedding regularly.

lime in the bottom of the tank. -Lorraine Settgas

You might try what one reader suggested: Every six months attach a garden hose to the outlet at the base of the tank, placing the other end of the hose at the nearest sink or outlet. Then, turn the valve on and off suddenly, so the water churns up the gravel or minerals formed from the water. Do this until clear water runs out. By doing this at regular intervals, the life of the tank will be lengthened and the noises will be reduced. If this doesn't help, call a plumber because sometime the noise can be simple vibra-

Vinegar. Just heat some in a clean coffee can and soak the brush in it.

Dear Dorothy: Two drawers of an oldfashioned dresses are stuck tight. This dresser has been in an unheated room for over two years. How can I get them open? I read once that a spatula slipped between the dresser and drawer will open the drawer. Is this true? -Clara Hingtgen.

The spatula will work if the drawer is binding in only one place and the spatula can be put right on it. One thing you can do without going to a lot of trouble is to put the dresser in a heated room. It may take awhile, but the heat should make the wood shrunk enough so the drawers can be usable again.

Braking The Aging Process

by PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) - Does your husband need a drunk to pick him up when he arrives home from work? And does he pop a pep pill into his mouth to get a fast start in the morning?

If he does, he's what Dr Ivan M Popov. a distinguished youth doctor, calls a "young old man" -- a victim of stress who is aging prematurely

It happens to women, too

Dr Popos said in an interview that such premature aging among contemporary humans is a by-product of modern life with its unusual stress on body and mind In addition to stress, he also blames pollution, synthetic foods, additives harmful drugs

"All of these things," he said, "are degenerative forces that rob us of our health, vitality, youth and age us pre-

The men he treated then were 25 to 30 years of age. But stress and malnutrition 'made them look older than 50." During the intervening years, Dr. Popov did research in revitalization thereapy and practiced it as director of the Popov Clinic in Opto, France.

Out of his studies and those of other 'youth doctors' has come an understanding of the profound organic relationship of natural biologic mechanisms and materials to human development

"IT IS IN NATURE," said Dr. Popov, "that we have sought and found in biological forms and processes the medically sound therapies that could be applied to the regenerative process in man."

The various therapies range from embryo to cell therapy, with such things as seaweed and vitamin therapy in between. Even in Europe, with some 30 revitalization institutes, there is no one place where all therapies are available under one roof. The establishment of such a center was one reason Dr. Popov was in New York.

With youth doctors from Germany, France and America he is opening Renaissance, a revitalization center, in Nassau in May, Within 10 years, it is his expectation that treatments that help to brake the aging process will be a standard segment of medical practice.

An Opportunity To Probe Issues

Why is it that more suburbanites probably know the names of the mayor of New York, the mayor of Chicago and the mayor of Los Angeles than know the name of their own mayor<sup>o</sup>

Why is it that residents of small communities such as those in this area write to their congressman in Washington or their state officials in Springfield for help in solving their problems rather than a local village official who may live down the street?

Why is it that 80 or 90 per cent of the voters will participate in federal and state elections while no more than 20 or 30 per cent participate in local elections?

Why has local government - by definition the form of government closest to the people - fallen behind federal and state governments in attracting interest and acceptance from its citizens?

Obviously, one major cause of this imbalance of power between governmental levels has been the increased involvement by federal and state governments in problems once considered local. Also, federal and state tax bills take a fairly significant chunk of personal income and there is a corresponding growth in interest by the people tions that face the country as a paying the bills.

But another likely reason is the fact that local governments too frequently have not addressed themselves to some of the very basic concerns of the citizens.

How often have local governments resolved to fight inflation by cutting back their own expenses and setting an example for the community?

How often have local governments taken the lead, rather than following, in efforts to preserve a clean and healthy environment?

How often have local governments taken steps to insure equal opportunities for all persons who may wish to live in their communities?

In many - not all - cases, the answer is, "not very often."

Instead, local government officials have more closely associated themselves with problems of flooding, zoning, garbage removal, dog licenses, building permits, traffic control and others.

To be sure, these are problems which must be dealt with by local governments.

But we see no reasons why local governments cannot also be concerned and responsive to many of the wider issues of the day.

We do not pretend that a village board or city council can do anything to influence the nation's foreign or domestic policy.

But we do think they can look at some of the concerns which have been passed up to state and federal governments in recent years, and they can do something about them in their own communities.

Next month, villages and cities in the Northwest suburbs will elect members of city councils and village boards. In most areas the campaigns have begun on a fever-

We hope the campaigns will provide a discussion of more than the simple issues and needs of the various communities, but also of the very real problems and queswhole as well as local communities.

Although the need for a new village hall may be an important issue in a community, so also should the need for a clean environment, equal opportunities, responsible government, drug abuse control and many others.

The candidates have an obligation to discuss more than just the 'brick and mortar" concerns. They must talk about the basic qualities of life which they desire for their communities.

And the voters, who will make the final decisions in April, have just as great an obligation to insist that the candidates do indeed talk about real issues.

Greater local concern with meaningful issues is bound to result in greater interest in local gov-

American 'Gypsies' On Move

The "mobile American" becomes ever more so.

This year an estimated 125 million American families — or one out of every five - will change residences. Most will make local moves, involving short distances within the same city or county, but at least one-fourth of all moves will be to a new state.

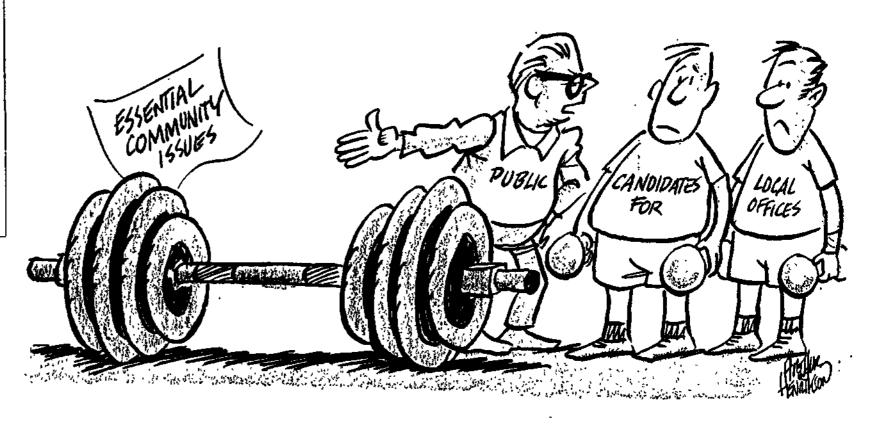

Although frequent cross-country transfers have become a way of life for upward-bound young executives, the "corporate gypsy" does not do most of the moving. The American Movers Conference says that 30 per cent of all interstate moves involve military personnel and another 30 per cent are famiites who move for individual reasons. The remaining 40 per cent are corporate moves.

The conference reports that of those families who pay for their own interstate moves, more than half move away from the Middle Atlantic and North Central states. Only two-fifths of moves are into those regions. Most people move into the Southern, Pacific and Mountain states.

May 1 may be traditional moving day, but 60 per cent of all moves are made in June. July. August. and September. For some reason, most of them bunch up between the 25th of one month and the 4th of the following month.

If you plan on moving this year, you might want to schedule it accordingly - especially since an estimated 16,000 families are expected to be moving in and out of our communities during 1971.

Let's See How You Handle These!

Cautious Muskie Rusts On Laurels

by BRUCE BIOSSAT

In the last month or so, front-running Sen. Edmund Muskie has been overdoing the cautious thing. The bland little sermonettes he has been delivering from coast to coast are a bit much. Yet there's no sign these fluffy generalities are hurt-

After his recent talk to a Pittsburgh dinner meeting sponsored by the local Americans for Democratic Action, the comments of listeners indicated they weren't expecting high-voltage stuff. The electric charge was so weak, however, that they were moved to applaud less than half a dozen times.

Even the ADA liberals, who were a distinct minority in an audience made up mostly of regular Democrats, gave lipservice to the front-runner's need for caution. But they couldn't see why Muskie had to avoid all excitement.

David Livingston, a steel executive and former ADA leader, said he was disappointed that the senator wasn't more 'entertaining." By that he meant crisp and witty. Said Livingston:

"He made a very powerful statement about the Middle East, I thought. He admitted it was there." A black Democrat, one of just a handful present, said Muskie delivered a "very nice speech, very cogent," but then added some reverse English:

"He's going to be a tough man when he does get started."

The Pittsburgh speech bore a strong family resemblance to a couple he offered on his five-day California swing in January. Both talks were in the "Godbless-our-principal" vein.

In none of these recent endeavors were there any hard specifics to rub together. As a matter of fact, it is difficult to remember when, if ever, in the past decade a presidential prospect has unfurled such gauzy banalities. At one affair in Los Angeles, there was some sneak-napping among Muskie's listeners.

In spite of all this, his hide is not even being nicked. At the Pittsburgh dinner some of the staunch liberals voiced a personal preference for declared candi-

Put those comforting percentages together with the senator's friendly-bigbear personality and the reassuring sonority of his voice, and you have a persuasive type whom no pragmatic Democrat in his right mind wants - right now - to attack.

This could change materially if Muskie were to take a dive in the polls, or get licked in an early primary or two. For what seems to be drawing party people to him from many parts of the political spectrum is not love or affection but respect — for his status as front-runner.

His position is so strong within the party, much stronger than John F. Kennedy's at the comparable time in 1959, that he gets a pass on his errors and his contrived blandness. Nobody is laying a glove on him.

Maybe Muskie, the inward-looking, diffident New Englander, is not constituted to quest after emotional ties. Perhaps, too, the danger is not all that serious. He should do well in the 1972 primaries, and no rival (except the nationally implausible Sen. Henry M. Jackson) has any of Muskie's acceptance in the delegate-rich

Even so, there's something wrong with a strategy that produces a Pittsburgh ADA speech so bare of vigorous substance that a Chamber of Commerce crowd might complain about the lack of

Eva Jefferson: A New Voice For Students

Undocumented Charges Weaken Activist's Cause

by TOM WELLMAN Education Editor

Remember Eva Jefferson's name. I'd ager my typewriter that s tionally prominent political figure in five

Miss Jefferson is a black and president of the Northwestern University student body. She is best known as the woman who quelled brewing violence last spring at Northwestern following the Kent State Recently, she's appeared on a batch of

TV talk shows, including the famed debate with Vice President Spiro Agnew on the David Frost Show. On Thursday, Feb. 25, she spoke to 300 persons at Harper College in Palatine. She said at Harper she hates to be labeled as a leader, a title awarded to her by those who respect her rapport with students. She is articulate, and seems capable of uniting young persons, perhaps in the manner of Robert Kennedy or Martin Luther King Jr.

Her speech at Harper, however, brought forth qualities shared by many politically active persons on a podium today. Those qualities are especially annoving because the speech was offered in an educational institution.

Report

First, she told the audience that "repression" is running rampant in America, and added that a "news blackout, the been in effect in Vietnam. Both statements can give listeners goosebumps of excitement and fear. But Miss Jefferson did nothing to document "repression" or "news blackout" — and her use of the term "blackout" seemed to indicate a full-scale, conspiratorial blackout, unlike the limited blackout recently on Laos news.

proportions of which no one knows," has

Second, she tended to pick up loose, undocumented information and built an argument on it. For example, she said a Gallup poll showed 73 per cent of Americans opposed the Vietnam War.

Which poll? Did the 73 per cent include those who oppose current war policies and would like to bomb Indochina back to the Stone Age? I don't believe 73 per cent of us oppose the war. I think 20 per cent have opposed the war, since 1965 and the other 53 per cent would, ideally, like to win - but now sees no hope of victory.

Finally, in front of 7,000 students last May at Northwestern, she said six not four, students had died at Kent State University. That's misinformation, which could have caused a riot. (At Harper, however, her facts appeared correct.)

Miss Jefferson, as a politician, can educate the public about Indochina and about the concerns of youth. The rest of our institutions certainly haven't bothered to do much of a job to get the story behind the story on Vietnam and many other current topics.

She'll improve her credibility in both politics and education if she accurately documents her deepest feelings about what's right and wrong in this country

'Psychologist Didn't Do His Homework, Either!'

It's obvious that Dr. McLoughlin (Fence Post Feb. 24) didn't do his homework either, inasmuch as he is unable to differentiate between graphoanalysis and scientifically established graphology, a product of the finest minds in Europe.

It is of interest to note that in Europe, graphology is among the oldest psychological approaches for the study of personality and was widely used before the advent of psychoanalysis, Gestalt theory, social anthropology, or projective techniques. In Germany, graphology is regarded as a branch of applied psychology, and graphologists are frequently consulted in the vocational and medical diagnostic fields. Courses in graphology are an integral part of academic curricula in psychology and are also pursued by many students of medicine. Graphology is taught in more than a dozen world-renowned universities on the Continent as an accredited course. The noted French graphologist, Crepieux-Jamin interested Binet in employing graphology for his famous tests, and Benet used graphology regularly.

Psychology, neurology and psychiatry are the fields in which graphology can directly contribute to diagnosis. Dr. Hector J. Riley of the American Board of Psychiatry stated: Graphology has a

Mr. Brekke, its 7:20 p.m. and I just read your article (Feb. 25) on "Touch of Understanding." As a matter of fact. I read it three times. It was a very human, beautiful article. Except as I read it and reread it, I couldn't help but feel that you must be very young. One sentence kept hitting me - quote: "She was spry for a woman in her late sixties --." You know you are describing a woman in her late 70's or 80's. I suppose when you're young that age does seem ancient. But as you get older it doesn't seem too bad at all. I'm not in

'When You're Young, 60 Does Seem Ancient' my 60's yet, but I do know a lot of people in that age bracket and you're not describing them — I'm sure at 20 or so. late 60's seems like a long life lived but not really. Inquire around. Now if you're talking about 80's or thereabout, I'd say, "Man, you're right for the most part." At least it would be more believable. Otherwise your article will be remembered for a long time. It was really

Naming High School

I wish to reply to an article which appeared in the Rolling Meadows Herald Feb. 23.

Mrs. Cates asked that our new high school be named Rolling Heights for the sake of Arlington Heights residents.

May I take this suggestion one step further and suggest that Arlington Heights High School be renamed Arlington Meadows and Elk Grove High School be renamed Rolling Elk for the sake of Rolling Meadows students.

She is grateful for the experience provided by work at Michael Reese Hospital in Chicago, to which she was called by Dr. Franz Alexander,

During World War II, a number of psychologists were trained in graphological analysis, among them Dr. Harry O Teltscher, who served as a member of the Military Intelligence Division of the War Department. Dr Teltscher was awarded a citation for his services by the Commanding General of the Military Intelligence Division. He was also graphologist for one of the largest army hospitals for neuro-surgical casualties. The Thomas M England Hospital in Atlantic City. The services of graphologists are sought and appreciated by many U S business firms which strive to overcome the problem of big turnovers in

I would suggest that Dr. McLoughlin spend at least ten years investigating this tremendous diagnostic tool as I have, for if he does. I feel certain that he will consider his previous article just an everyday mistake and that he, too, doesn t do his homework

by LEROY POPE

UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK UPI - A gleaming copper-nickel-hulled 67-foot shrimp boat launched in mid-February was built by a Mexican company to be operated off Nicaragua in the Cambbean by Booth Fisheries, a Chicago firm

The copper-nickel hull, resistant to barnacles and corrosion, is expected to enable the vessel to fish all year without loss of speed or time due to bottom foul-

About the same time Union Carbide Corp. announcd it was entering the shrimp fishing and packing business. It sent three Indian-based trawlers to the waters off Kuwait to supply shrimp to United States and Asian markets

The shrimp market, which once catered to gourmets, is showing enough growth potential to attract big companies It also has produced some touchy encounters between the United States and Mexico and the United States and

In 1969, U.S. boats hauled in 317 million pounds of shrimp valued at $123 million. Another 190 million pounds were im-

"THE POTENTIAL is fantastic," said B V. Salenius, managing director of Union Carbide India Limited. "India could be just a beginning of our fishing operations," said James W. Wilson, a Union Carbide staff member in New

The growth of shrimping has accentuated bazards and the "shrimp wars." Oil spills from tankers or offshore oil well leaks endanger baby shrimp if the oil residue is allowed to sink to the bottom after being treated with dispersant chemicals. Hurricanes can wipe out entire strimp beds.

Arguments over jurisdictional rights to shrimp close inshore have touched off international disputes. There have been clashes between Mexican authorities and U. S. shrimpers who venture closer than 12 miles to Mexico's coast. Florida authorities seized some of Cuba's fleet of 150 modern shrimp books just outside the 12-mile limit But the federal court at Tallahassee ordered the state to cease interfering with Cuban shrimpers unless they strayed across the 12-mile line

Fishery experts of 30 nations have a continuing program to survey and improve shrimp production and make shrimp and prawns a food for all man-

Scientists also are learning how to farm shrimp and make them grow fast and fat close inshore. When that happens at a commercial rate, the industry really should take off.

New Law Regulates Work Standards

WASHINGTON -(NEA) -During an average work-day nearly 9,000 American workers are injured or made ill by industrial accidents or poor on-the-job health

About 367 of those disabled workers may never recover sufficiently to return to the same job.

Fifty-five die each day

The Bureau of Labor Statistics says the number of reported disabling injuries was up from 11.4 per million employehours worked in 1968 to 14.8 in 1968. And, there have been recent charges that many employers are careless in reporting such incidents.

Until recently, however, there has been a gap in protective legislation relating to workers' safety and health.

Now the Williams-Steiger Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970 has been enacted and will become effective on Upon signing the bill last Dec. 29, President Richard M. Nixon called it one of the most important pieces of legislation, from the standpoint of 57 million people who will be covered by it, ever passed by Congress "because it involves

"to assure so far as possible every working man and woman in the nation safe and healthful working conditions . . .

The Act applies to all businesses affecting interstate commerce except for certain employes in the mining and the transportation industries, which are covered by other job safety laws. Special provisions are made for federal and state government employes.

An initial group of more than 100 Labor Department safety officers and engineers will begin on-site inspections April 28 to insure compliance with the new standards

Inspections may also be initiated as a result of a written request from employes reporting an alleged dangerous condition at their place of work. In such event, the employer will receive a copy of his employes' complaint - but the originating employes may remain anonymous. Employes are also protected by the Act from being discharged or otherwise discriminated against by their employer because of their participation in proceedings under the law.

WHERE A VIOLATION is found, the Secretary of Labor will issue a citation and a proposed penalty. Refusal to correct a violation can result in fines. Imprisonment may be imposed where a willful violation results in death.

The Act gives employers the right to contest any citation or proposed penalty by filing a request with a new independent agency created by the law, the Occupational Safety and Health Review Commission. The commission's final judgments are subject to review by the U.S. Court of Appeals. Employes also have the right to seek relief from the Review Commission if they feel the time allowed their employer by the Labor Department for removing a hazard is unreasonably long.

The Act reflects awareness that the high rate of industrial accidents is not solely the fault of employers. Working people sometimes shun protective clothing or equipment or ignore safety regulations to take shortcuts. The Act specifically obligates each employe to comply with occupational safety and health standards relating to the Act which are applicable to his own actions and conduct Noting what he called "a new national passion for environmental improvement." Labor Secretary James D Hodg-son recently observed, "When you come to think of it, what environment is more important to 80 million working Americans than their workplace? Aside from their homes, this is primarily where they spend their time."

Slugging your foreman is generally deemed to be detrimental to family finances, as it can lead to loss of employment and of income.

Some people, however, hold that it is all right to stug the foreman if yesterday was St. Patrick's Day, and now it's the morning after and there's a leorechaun inside your skull, banging away on things with a little hammer. Vurgil Jolly, a young toolmaker, took this view of

A U.S. court of appeals has now overruled Jolly, and said that this, by itself, is not sufficient reason for giving your foreman a clout on the ear. This landmark decision in the field of labor relations, reported in the current "Monthly Labor Review," a publication of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, offers some helpful guidelines on when you can clout the foreman, and when you should not.

It was on a Tuesday that it started, Monday having been the good saint's own day The foreman accused Jolly of "goofing off" at his bench. Jolly's own description of the episode was later offered in court

WELL, I was disgusted Celebratung St Patrick's Day on Monday morning was tough, and the foreman said a few things to me and I didn't like it . . . and I just hit him

The court stated, later, that the foreman had been "knocked over workhorses" by the blow. The president of the company showed up to referee, and got Jolly to go over and shake hands and say

The foreman brooded over this for a told Jolly to pick up his tools and get out Exit Jolly, along with four of his buddies who walked out in protest. The company fired them, too.

It now became a case for the National Labor Relations Board The company was charged with discriminating against the four discharged employes. They had, said the complaint, been engaging in "protected activities" — namely, walking out in protest against "constant harassment" by the foreman.

Yes, said an NRLB examiner, that certainly seemed to on the case, all right. He ordered the four reinstated.

But the examiner was overruled in the U.S. Court of Appeals. Concerning the alleged "constant herassment," the court found that the employes had never attempted to take up any such grievance with management. The walkout, said the court, was really in protest against Virgii Jolly's treatment. Nothing there to protest, it ruled, because "Jolly was proper-

NOW, IT JUST might be that, on the morning after, you could slug your foreman with impunity (or even with your fist) if your name is Donovan or O'Toole or some such. But of this particular toolmaker, the court said in its written decision:

"The name Virgil Jolly does not suggest his likely observance of the birthday of St. Patrick

The court did concede that "men of varying racial backgrounds have, not infrequently, found it acceptable to join their Irish friends in repeated raisings of their glasses to the memory and honor of the great saint "

Join your Hibernian friends if you will, the decision seems to suggest, but don't think that gives you license to slug your foreman the next day, if your name is Dombrowski or Seenson or Marciano.

And maybe you oughtn't to try it even if your name is Sullivan or O'Grady. It can be folly hard on the family finances (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Culligan Co. Sales Are Up

At the board of directors' meeting of Culligan International Company, company Pres. Harold F. Werhane announced that sales for the third quarter, ended Jan 31, 1971, were $11,325,458, as compared to $10,512,209 for the same period last year, an increase of 8 per cent

Earnings for the third quarter were $314,729, as compared to $228,448 for the same period last year, an increase of 37 per cent These earnings are equivalent to 10 cents per share on the 3,217,081 shares ussued and contingently issuable as noted below, at Jan. 31, 1971, as compared to earnings of 7 cents per share on the 3,138,222 shares outstanding on Jan.

Sales for the nine month period, ended Jan 31, 1971, were $35,458,242, as compared to $33,236,425 for the corresponding period last year, an increase of 7 per cent. Earnings for the nine month period were $1,227.335, compared to $1,280,666 for the corresponding period last year, a decrease of 4 per cent. These earnings are equivalent to 38 cents per share on the 3,217,081 shares issued and contingently issuable as noted below, at Jan. 31, 1971, as compared to earnings of 41 cents per share on the 3,138,222 shares outstanding on Jan. 31, 1970

The earnings per share calculation at Jan. 31, 1971 includes contingent issuance at a later date of 75,677 shares, based upon current carnings of Culligan Italiana S.p.A and Culligan TEKO, and current market value of Culligan common stock, subject to change on the basis of futute earnings of those companies and future Culligan stock market values. Earnings per share are based upon the average number of shares outstanding and contingently issuable during the respective periods

The directors of Culligan International Company today declared its regular quarterly dividend of 7 cents per share on its 3,141,404 shares of presently outstanding common stock, payable on April 2, 1971, to stockholders of record as of March 15, 1971.

According to Culligan, the importance of softened water in laundering is being underscored by the fact that a number of cities, counties, and states are considering banning phosphates in detergents. Since phosphates are primarily water softeners, it is unnecessary to use phosphates in either soaps or detergents with softened water.

Most commercial laundries do not use phosphate detergents, but use soap and softened water to obtain superior results. Much less soap or synthetic detergent is needed for effective cleaning in softened water, and thus the total amount which subsequently enters our lakes and rivers can be substantially reduced Thus softened water can have ecological as well .... 27% 27% 27% as economic benefits.

Another 'Hunger' Hike Set

Thousands of Northwest suburbanites eracy, crime, poor health, and drug will be hiking for "Hunger" once again this spring.

International Walk For Development Weekend has been slated May 8 and 9 this year, the same days students led the "Hike for Hunger" walks last year.

The event is sponsored by the Young World Development of the American Freedom From Hunger Foundation in Washington, D.C.

To date, over 300 cities, including the Chicago area, have signed up to participate in the nation-wide event.

It is expected that more than 1 million young people will turn out in an effort to raise more than $500,000 to combat poverty, hunger, malnutrition and the results of these ills — unemployment, illit-abuse. Funds from the Walk will go toward supporting U.S. and foreign self-help projects. Funds can be channeled locally by participants who designate how the funds will be used.

LAST YEAR, many Northwest suburban residents participated in the Walk, including high schoolers, parents and various organizations.

Each hiker raises money by asking Film To Be Shown people to pledge a few cents or several dollars for each mile walked.

The routes, usually about 20 miles long, take most of the day. Along the way there are check points where the hikers mark the number of miles they have walked on a score card. The total number of miles walked are then multiplied times the amount of the pledge.

Last year such organizations as the Northwest Suburban Day Care Center and Meals for Millions benefited from the funds raised.

Steve Rabin, publicity director for the Project '70, a Chicago area division of the sponsors, said additional information on the program can be obtained by writing International Walk Day Headquarters, 1717 N. St., N.W., Washington, D.C.

-The network will not have as strong a rural image as it does now. It recognizes the urban flow and the new concentration of buying power in terms of age and geographic groups. But it is not going overboard.

-Spokesmen say "Lassie" will not return, nor will "Men at Law," a reworked version of "THE Storefront Lawyers." And the reruns of Jackie Gleason's "The Honeymooners" will certainly be gone

-Glenn Ford will star in a new onep hour series, "Cade's County," as a contemporary sherilf in the Southwest.

—Dick Van Dyke will headline a new half-hour situation comedy, portraying the host of a local television variety-talk show in Arizona, with Hope Lange as his wife.

-The returning CBS series will include "Gunsmoke," "Here's Lucy," the Doris Day and Carol Burnett programs, "Hawaii Five-O," the Glen Campbell show, "Medical Center," "Mannix," "Family Affair," "My Three Sons." 'Mission: Impossible," the Mary Tyler Moore comedy and the Thursday and Friday night movies.

ing on its schedule, but if estimates by competitors and advertising agency sources hold up, the network would cancel from one-third to one-half of its prime time shows. NBC, in its planned lineup for the fall, has cancelled one-half of its current prime time series. Part of the reason for this massive cutting at the networks is the ruling by the Federal Communications Commission reducing their schedules to three hours of programming each night starting this autumn. In addition to "Lassie," "Men at Law" and "The Honeymooners," the CBS series mentioned prominently as cancellation targets include "The Beverly Hill-"Green Acres," "Mayberry billies." R.F.D.," "To Rome with Love," "Hogan's Heroes," "Arnie" and the Andy Griffith and Jim Nabors shows.

As a return prospect, Ed Sullivan is considered a longshot; he is not on the tentative CBS schedules being leaked around the industry. "Hee Haw," the controversial new comedy about a middleaged husband-father who is full of personal prejudices.

Spring is officially less than three weeks away, and according to Fred Sachs, manager of Commonwealth Edison Company in this area, the coming of spring also signals the beginning of kiteflying season.

Sachs advises parents to pass along a few safety tips to their children now before the March winds set children and kites in motion.

—Fly kites in unobstructed areas where traffic is minimal and trees, television, aerials and utility lines can be avoided. -Do not put yourself out on a limb by trying to retrieve a tangled kite. If your kite becomes snagged and cannot be tugged free, leave it for the birds instead of risking injury. -Use ordinary kite string only. Do not substitute wire or metallic cord. These materials conduct electricity and could cause serious injury if they come in contact with electricity. Never fly kites during storms or when the string may get wet. A wet string may conduct electricity downward to the kite

Hersey Captures Barrington Sectional Gym Crown

by JIM COOK

The prep cage scene has its "Sweet Sixteen" and "Elite Eight" down the stretch run

But to advance to the state gymnastics meet as one of five qualifies out of the sectionals, the Fabulous Five" is not an exaggerated description

Local gym powerhouses upheld their reputations by automatically sending 35 indivduals in quest of a state championship And this figure is certain to be inflated when the combined sectionals' next 12 top scorers in each event gain eligibily The list of these qualifiers will appear on tomorrow's sports page

The story at the Barrington Sectional, which housed seven Mid Suburban League teams, predictably boiled down to another head-to-head clash between Hersey and Arlington.

But the overall MSL Champion Huskies grabbed honors with a near-century total of 99.5. The Cardinals, despite qualifying one more indivdual than Hersey, assumed the runner-up slot with 84

Wheeling, a vastly improved squad this season, netted third with 47.5 followed by Prospect in fifth with 39.5, Fremd in sixth with 21, Palatine in seventh with 16, and Conant in ninth with 11.5.

In their own sectional, Elk Grove bagged a third behind Evanston and Oak Park with 585 points. The Grenadiers automatically pushed five boys into the state competition and have high hopes on a few more when the next 12 qualifiers are computed.

Hersey soared to the top at Barrington on the strength of four indivdual sectional championships. Ed Hembd was the first Huskie to garner a trophy with an 8.45 on the side horse.

Mr. Everything Jeff Farris then took the reins by tying for honors on the high bar with an 8.65, scorching the opposition on the parallel bars with an 8.7 and emerging number one in the all-around competition with a combined 40 75 show-

Steve Schwabe padded the Hersey tally with a fifth in free exercise with an 8.15 while Farris was back, again, with a third on the side horse with a 7.65.

The one-two Huskie punch on the trampoline found John Weaver in the runnerup slot with an 8.6 and Pat Treacy fifth with a 7.85. Scott Hudson complemented Farris on the parallel bars with a fourth place 8.1 routine. Arlington, despite the absnece of an event champion, managed to parlay enough strong showings to rate a shot at

Wildcats Send Barrington Home, 63-53

Wheeling. Arlington March To Sectional

by KEITH REINHARD

For years football buffs have had a stock explanation for success the best offense is a good defense! Wheeling's basketball team penned their own version of the quotation Friday might however — the best defense is a good offense - and it powered them to a regional cage championship at the expense of Barrington 63-53 on their home

It was Wheeling's second title in three years and upped their current winning streak to 12 straight games. It was also a most enjoyable experience for Ted Ecker, who only assumed the Wildcat head coaching slot last winter.

If Ecker had any feelings of uncertainty Friday they couldn't have occurred in the first half, when Wheeling's devastaling press and taut zone defense limited the Bronchos to a mere three buckets and six field goals while the hosts skyrocketed to a 28-12 lead.

But three minutes and 40 seconds after the intermission Ecker and the entire south half of the stands probably shared a moment of anxiety.

At that time a whistle blew, the clock stopped and one of the officials pointed an accusing finger at Wheeling's towering 6-11 pivotmen Roger Wood. It was his fifth infraction of the still young game.

Wood retired to the bench permanently. His replacement, 10 inches shorter and a jayvee player to boot, was John Kenney. All of a sudden a big 16 point advantage looked a whole lot lea-

Barrington's mentor called a time out. The Bronchos returned to the floor with fire in their eyes, brimming of a brand new confidence. There were more than 12 minutes of playing time remaining and everyone in the gym seemed to sense a close finish coming up.

Just about everyone that is. Certainly not Mike Groot, Tony Schuld, Al Syfert, Dave Geils or John Kenney though. Or those 'Cats who replaced members of this alignment as the game wore on.

It was as if the spirit of Wildcat teams past had made their way to the floor The shrimpish, hardworking Wheeling youngsters under Mike Ownes for nearly half a dozen seasons who yielded height to all comers and then pressed and ran and pressed the opposition out of the

It was the Scott Bishofs, and the Carl Frickes, the Donny Wrights and Jack Bastables prevailing by example. And it was the Groots, the Schulds, the Syferts carrying out the task.

Rather then fall back completely on defense with their big man out of the picture, the hosts took it right back to the enemy. The two free throws netted by Barrington on Wood's foul were converted, trimming the margin to 34-20 but it took exactly six seconds for Syfert to counter and doubts among 'Cat fans began melting away.

It took Al about three seconds to reach the corner and another two for Tony to get the ball down the court to him. Syfert swished from 15 feet out, drew a foul, connected on the free throw and Wheeling was out in front by 17.

Barrington came back with another pair of free throws. This time Groot retaliated with an 18 footer. Broncho guard Gary fencik struck inside after that but Kenney matched it with his own layup, faking Barrington's forward Tom

Cards Oust Maine West 80-76 In Thrilling Overtime Action

by PAUL LOGAN

Prestige was regained last Friday, victory may be achieved tomorrow and greatness could be attained next Friday The "may be's" and the "could be's" are what the Illinois high school basketball tournament is all about Making these two "ifs" come true is the challenge. Arlungton and Maine West battled Friday night for the right to change dreams into reality this week. Few of the 60 title games played throughout the state could have surpassed the Prospect Regional's finish.

These extremely well matched teams dazzled their many backers with sparking plays, dazed them with 13 exchanges of the lead and drained them with seven ties. The last deadlock was the most dramatic for it sent the game into evertime!

Those three minutes were all Arlington, now 17-5, needed to regain tournament prestige for its school by way of an 80-76 victory

The Cardinals of Coach George Zigman did what five Arlington teams in the past six years of tourney played failed to do - win the regional. Their next plateau is the Fremd Sectional with North Chicago furnishing the opposition. Togetherness turned the trick Friday night, as Zigman explained: "I thought we had a good balanced team effort. Both in the St. Viator and Conant games we supplemented each other real well. We've jelled. We're unselfish. We gave the ball to one another. When things are going good for you, that's what happens."

The overtime was a microcosm of Arlington's tournament play. All five starters, who went the distance against the taller Warriors, contributed greatly as the seconds flashed away.

Bill Kieck, a 6-8 center, controlled the tipoff after losing three out of four to Bruce Kerr, his 6-10 opponent, during regulation Six seconds later John Brodnan, who should be a lock all-state guard, hit a 10-footer to give his team the lead, 72-70.

After a basket and two free throws put Maine ahead, 74-72, Mike Mandele passed to Kieck underneath and he tied the game at 74-all.

The tension was intense now as both teams committed a turnsver. Arlington's was a charging foul at 4:54. However,

Dennis Willison missed on the one-andone and Mike Cleveland knocked the rebound to Ken Peters. He draped his arms around the ball and was fouled.

Now the pressure was on Arlington's junior guard. "I was pretty confident," Peters said later of his two timely free throws which put the Cards ahead, 76-74. Maine had two field goal chances with the second hitting a backboard guy wire.

Arlington's ball! This time Maine fouled Cleveland with 0:28 left. Was he nervous? "Just a little," he admitted. But he, too, sank George Zigman them both to make it 78-74.

Rick Wolfgram, a reserve, pulled the Warriors within two on a jumper with 0:22 remaining. Then it was Brodnan's turn to dribble out the clock and he nearly did just that before being hacked at

Although an almost impossible Maine shot remained if he missed, Brodnan could put the game out of reach with two flips of the wrist. Just a year before he had failed to tie the game in the last seconds from the foul line and Hersey nipped Arlington, 42-41. "I was remembering," said Brodnan afterwards. He swished them both this time and sweet victory was finally achieved.

The regulation game was filled with turning points. Maine appeared unstoppable in the first quarter as its giant center hit his first four shots from close range. But Peters kept the Cards close, 20-15, with four rebounds and five points.

After a fairly even second period left the Cards trailing 34-31 at the half, Zigman changed his defense and moved Brodnan out of the corner on offense. These tactics, back-to-back fourth fouls

Herald Sports No. 1 — Again

Coverage of sports by the Herald newspapers has been judged No. 1 — again!

For the second time in the past five months, the sports coverage of the Herald has received a first place award for excellence in an Illinois newspaner contest.

Last October the Herald was ranked No. 1 for best sports coverage by the Illinois Press Association.

Last Friday, at a special awards luncheon, the Herald sperts coverage was judged best in its class by the Northern Illinols Editorial Association. The faculty of the Northern Illinois University Journalism Department judged the contest. Competition was among daily newspapers and first place was presented to the Herald, second place to the Waukegan News-Sun, and third place to the Belvidere Daily Republican. Honorable mention awards were presented to the DeKalb Daily Chronicle and Elgin Courier-News.

"It's very gratifying to be honored again in an Illinois newspaper contest," said Herald Sports Editor Bob Frisk.

"We have had to make changes in our coverage to meet the demands of the expanding area, and we will continue to make changes to give readers the very best sports coverage possible.

"Readers of sports pages today want more than just the scores. That's why this sports staff will continue to develop new ideas, add new features, and always try to improve our overall product."

Other on the Herald sports staff are Associate Sports Editor Paul Logan, Larry Mlynczak, Jim Cook and Keith Reinhard.

Defeat Could Destroy ...

by MURRAY OLDERMAN

NEW YORK (NEA) - To Cassius Marcellus Clay also known as Muhammad Ali, it is more than a fight, the 32nd of a professional career in which he has never been defeated it could mean his survival as a proud functional man

For any other fighter, that would be overstating the case But the man known as Muhammad Ali has psyched himself into the loftiest ego trip I have ever seen in sports. And now that he's about to fight Joe Frazier, easily the most dangerous opponent in his career you have to wonder how destructive the effects of a defeat will be, in psychic rather than physical terms

This smacks a little bit of armchair psychiatry but Ali is a guy whose behaviorism attracts the curiosity of

"He's very labile in his emotions." says one psychiatrist I know Labile, in the jargon, means prone to undergo displacement or change hence, instability. He adds that with the temper tentrums and the childish behavior in group situations, Ali obviously has a drive "to establish himself as superior to anybody."

There is a tendency to believe that his way-out braggadocio is all part of a puton, that he's having fun with people, that the real Ali is sensitive, charming and stable Charming yes - when he wants to be Senstive, sometimes - when it suits his purpose. Stable, no

The first sign of the errant emotional machine came at the weigh in before the first Clay Liston fight in Miami Beach, when the young challenger went wildeyed and ranting, and his blood pressure shot up so spectacularly that the physician in attendance seriously thought of cancelling the fight. It was self-induced hysteria to build himself up to face Liston, who then was still a frightening fig-

Alı (he joined the Black Mushims and changed his name right after that fight) has never needed to psyche himself up to that high again mainly because none of his subsequent opponents (including the deflated Liston) have been quite as scary But the closer he gets to a fight, any fight, the more frenetic becomes his pubhe posture. And he can be brutally arrogant, as he was in humiliating an injured Floyd Patterson, a mild man who had the temerity to say he opposed Ah's social and political views

The enigma, of course, is that he can also be amusing and likable. You can catch his act on almost any street corner he happens to be. The ego in him feeds on the adulation of people, all people. And he spots himself where they'll be. Atter the Super Bowl game in Miami, he was entertaining a crowd in front of a beach hotel when I told him the Colts were have a victory party at a country club. In a half-hour he was there, and be took over the party. He wasn't at all interested in the Colts' celebration, or how they won. When he'd had his fun, he left.

Even in his casual banter, Ah is happiest when he's putting down people Smug within himself, he has never had to taste it from the other end Now here's the specter of Frazier, who could shatter the Alı gestalt with his club-like persistence As a fighter, Ah showed himself vulnerable against Oscar Bonavena, a crude slugger who made him taste blood. A whipping by Frazier tonight, a sensible prediction, whould leave bruises which don't show.

Lake Michigan, for example, ettracts thousands of boaters and fishermen every summer. Nearly a million Coho salmon, Trout, and other fish were caught in the lake in 1970. Marine dealers agree with U. S. Guard advice that nothing smaller than a board-beamed 16 footer should go out into the open lake. Any boat in the big lake should have enough power to move 25-30 miles per hour while fully loaded. Emergency equipment should include a boat bailer, approved anchor, life jackets, paddle. sea anchor, fire extinguisher, distress signal flares, horn, first aid kit, radio compass, binoculars, and warm weatherproof clothing.

Wendoll Takes Two Firsts

Conant, West Leyden and host Glenbard North locked up in a very tight triangular indoor track meet.

The Cougars rolled up three firsts, two by hurdle man Dan Wendoll, but it wasn't enough as the Panthers won the meet with 47 points. West Leyden was second (46) and Conant was third (41).

Wendoll captured the high hurdles with an 8.1 and the lows with a 7.6. Jerry O'Malley took the pole vault with a 12-6.

O'Malley also had a pair of seconds. He took the long jump (17-11, 3/4) and shared a runner-up spot with teammate John Hughett in the high jump (5-8).

Other seconds were chalked up by Steve Feutz in both the two-and one-mile runs (10:18.3 and 4:45), George Swegles in the 50-yard dash (5.9) and the mile relay team of Bob Kross, Terry Stenger, Dave Guarino and Wendoll.

Other places were taken by Kross with a third in the 440-yard dash (56.9), and fourths by Hughett in the long jump (17-10 1/4) and Guarino in the 880-yard run (2:10.3).

The Cougars managed to capture the frosh-soph meet with 51 points. Glenbard was second (46) and West Leyden (40)

Scranton On U.S. Team

A recent bulletin released by United States International Skating Association (USIA) disclosed that Bob Haenisch, Prospect High junior, and Dennis Scranton, St. Viator Junior, were selected among some 20 men as National Team Members from which the Olympic squad representing the United States will be eventually chosen for the 1972 Olympics.

Haenisch has been a perennial top scorer in local and out-of-out-of-state skating meets and was Intermediate Boys National Champion earlier this year. Scranton, a comparative newcomer, has been outstanding in major competition, capturing the Intermediate Boys class crown in the 10,000 Lakes International Speed Skating Championship held in Februrary in St. Paul, Minn.

Both skaters participated in a recent Olympic Style Meet held at the West Allis (Wisconsin) Olympic Rink and finished among the leaders with Scranton skating the 500 meter race in a new Junior low time of 42.7 under adverse weather conditions. They are also slated to participate in a training program conducted by the USIA including training in Denver, Colorado and Europe.

Pittenger Wins Two Events In Indoor Test At Bloom

· Fremd's indoor track team, going against two of the strongest teams in the state, had its difficulties Saturday at Bloom. Despite some fine performances by the Vikings, the South Suburban League powers rolled on. The final standings had Thornton with 681/2, Bloom with 621/2, and Fremd with 28 points.

Coach Pat Brogan's fine distance man - Dan Pittenger - recorded a pair of firsts to lead his team. Pittenger won the two-mile run with a field house record time of 9:30.7. He also took the mile with

The only other first came Fremd's way when Steve Bruce took the 50-yard dash with a 5.6. "Bruce had an outstanding afternoon," said Brogan. The Viking workhorse ran on both relay teams and vaulted to a very fine 13-0. His feat in the vault is outstanding for Fremd does not have indoor facilties. However, Bloom's Tim Johnson, freshman brother to state record holder -Jan, won with a 13-8.

The Vikings were bumped the same way in the relays. The team of Bruce, for a dual meet.

Mark Kelley, Steve Wickum and Dan O'Brien finished third (1:37.8) behind Thornton (1:36) and Bloom (1:36.7) in the 880-yard event. Then the foursome of Mike Pitchell, Jim Jarocki, O'Brien and Bruce had a 3:33.5 in the mile event only to be surpassed by Bloom's 3:27.2 - another field house mark - and Thornton's 3:31.1. Bill Jarocki, usually the anchorman in the mile, was sidelined by the flu.

Other point-producing places were Wally Spiniolas with a second in the twomile run (9:38.0) and third in the mile (4:42.8), Bill Gross with a third in the two-mile (10:00.8), Pitchell with a third in the 880-yard run (2:01.7), Jim Jarocki with a fourth in the 440-yard dash (56.9) and Steve Wickum with a fourth in the high jump (6-0).

Bloom took the frosh-soph meet with 80 points. Close behind were Thornton (54) and Fremd (45).

Two outstanding marks recorded by Fremd were by Steve Barbee and Jerry Finis. Barbee went 2:09.7 in the 880 and Finis threw the shot 41-11.

Wheeling Handles Carmel

by KEITH REINHARD

Roger Wood was defensed rather well Thursday night. Carmel's stocky 6-5 center Frank Belmont limited the lanky Wheeling junior to 18 points and grabbed a major share of the rebounds in the semifinal regional Unfortunately for the Corsairs, Wood wasn't defensed quite enough. Big Rog ooked through a pair of short turnaround jumpers at the most critical point in the ballgame and later rammed home the clinching bucket as the Wildcats stopped the pesky Mundelein group $7-50 to advance to the tourney championship. "If he could have, I'm sure he would have dunked it," Wheeling coach Ted Ecker chuckled over Wood's final effort. It still went through with authroity while the clock peared the half minute mark. The scoreboard then read 55-48 in favor of the hosts, pretty well dimming Carmel hopes for a comeback.

Ecker was more pleased with the outcome than the output of his charges Thursday, "Mike (Groot) played one heckuva game tonight and Al (Syfert) gave us a real shot in the arm under the boards, but we were generally sluggish."

"We had no business letting them come back the way they did," he added. The Corsairs did come back though, after Ecker's band had sailed along with a comfortable margin through nearly three periods of play. Wheeling couldn't buy a bucket the last three minutes of the third stanza and the second-seeded Suburban Catholic league squad whittled a 38-29 span down to just two points by the buz-

And at the offset of quarter four Carmel's nifty little guard Dave Worklan drilled home an 18 footer from behind the key to put the game on an even keel for the first time since the opening tip.

The momentum was clearly behind the Corsairs at the time. But Wood got the lead back for his team with a seven footer from near the base line and when Car-opportunity to deadlock things a third time from the free throw line, Syfert speared the rebound after the second stray shot, slipped to Tony Schuld, who raced down within five feet of the hopp and passed out to Groot for a 15-foot conversion. The 'Cats owned a 44-40 edge then Worklan hit a pair of charity tries later to cut the Carmel deficit to 46-44 but Wheeling snapped back on two free pegs by Schuld and an inside tally by Syfert. And Groot, who went on to take game scoring honors at 24 thanks to a hot outside hand, dropped in a pair of free throws after that to offset a 10 footer by Worklan. Carmel struck again and they were still within range 52-48 with a minute to play. Wood wrapped things up though, first with a free pitch and then with his driving layup, going right around the

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it: AXYDLBAAXR LONGFELLOW

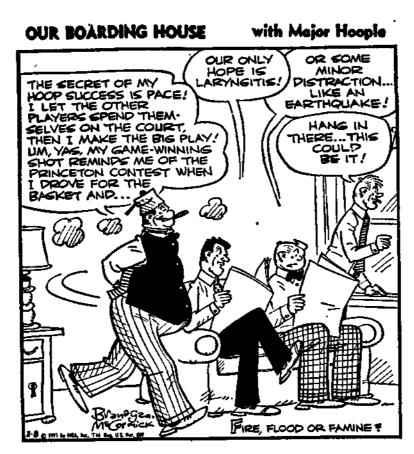

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different,

North-South Road Construction Eyed

Another north-south thoroughfare soon may be constructed through Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates

Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54 board Thursday night labeled as acceptable a proposed contribution of land and cash totalling $140,700 from Hoffman Rosner Corp for its planned development north of Helen Keller Junior High School in Schaumburg.

As part of the agreement, the district is to trade a small triangle of land at the northeast corner of the Keller lot for a similar but slightly smaller triangle at the southeast corner

Hoffman Rosner needs the northeast portion to construct an extension of Jones Road, which eventually would connect with Salem Drive The developer has been negotiating the land trade for several months, and both the villages of Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates have taken an interest in the matter

The new road would split traffic from Bode Roseile and Springinsguth roads, taking a portion of the overflow With expected development of land, traffic in the area is expected to increase. The extension could relieve congestion.

UNDER THE AGREEMENT, Hoffman Rosner offered the district eight acres of land about a mile west of Kingsdale and 755 feet south of Golf Road, plus $100 per three bedroom unit in the development and $25 per two bedroom unit. The cash amounts to $29,700, while the value of the land, at $15,000 per acre, totals $120,000, said Don Rudd, chairman of the board's building and sites committee, who explamed the proposal. The total contribution amounts to $140,700, he said. The contribution conforms to minimum standards for donations to be requested from developers that Rudd's committee recently prepared and the board approved at its last meeting, said Rudd Under those standards, he recommended acceptance of the donation, he said. Since the standards themselves already were approved, the board did not vote on the contribution but agreed to accept it by consensus.

Under the standards, the developer would have donated a total of $146,100, said Rudd, with two acres of land and $116,100 in cash The development is to contain 247 townhouses, with 207 in twobedroom and 40 in three-bedroom; 236 condominiums, with 177 in two-bedroom and 49 in three-bedroom, and 240 apartments, with 48 in efficiency, 144 in onebedroom and 48 in two-bedroom. It would produce an estimated total of 191 children said Rudd.

The minimum standards prepared by the board are one acre of land per every 100 children, plus $100 per bedroom in units with two or more bedrooms.

In relations with other developers, Marvin Lapicola, district business manager, reported he had met with Kaufman and Broad Construction Co. to review problems concerning a school site donated by the firm northeast of Higgins and Barrington roads.

AFTER AGREEING to accept the site, the district ordered full soil borings and a topographical survey, and learned the land is only 35 per cent buildable. The buildable portion is a heavily sloped area, and the district contends construction costs would be increased $15,000 to $30,000 because of the slope.

Kaufman and Broad was to study the situation and suggest a solution before the Thursday night meeting. Lapicola said he had received no written proposal from the firm

Because of delays on the Kaufman and Broad site in settling the slope problem and learning the location of water and sewer lines, Lapicola said, he had contacted Multicon Construction Co. to learn if its donated site would be available. Surveys of the Multicon property have not been completed, he said, and the ex-

Davies' 'Impartiality' Challenged By GOP Member

by JERRY THOMAS

William Davies, Hanover Park village attorney, asserted his "impartiality" in a recent electoral commissions ruling on village trustee candidates' eligibility during Thursday's session of the village

However, his "impartiality," was challenged by a member of the Republican Party representing the three-man GOP slate that was removed from the ballot, by the electoral board, and the attorney criticized him for making a political speech during a board session.

Dan Stowe, who acts as publicity chairman for the GOP party slate of Frank Dalla Valle Jr., Thomas Evert and William Rietz, asked the attorney if the village was paying him for making political

DAVIES, WHO claimed to be making a report to the trustees and audience after the electoral board decision to remove the GOP slate from the April ballot, noted that regardless of criticism he sat "ımpartially."

The attorney had sat in on the deliberation as an adivsor when the village president, clerk and a circuit judge ruled to remove the candidates from the election race, due to a technical challenge concerning their filing.

Other candidates on the ballot claim Davies is supporting another slate running the Hanovers Own Party slate, composed of incumbent trustees Louis Barone, James Scheuber and their runningmate, James Kamradt.

Davies, throughout the heated exchange between himself and Stowe. maintained that he was in on the sessions as village attorney because he had to advise the president and clerk. "As village attorney I am also attorney for that board," he said. He noted that another attorney was also present. DAVIES SAID it was fortunate that a on the board, who is also running for re-election, resented Davies' remarks. Jensen did not sit on the electoral board because he is a candidate. But he would have otherwise.

Jensen was angry at Davies' implication that he would be biased. Jensen's retort drew a round of applause from the

Davies attempted to explain to Jensen that he was not charging him with bias but merely pointing out that the decision on the GOP challenge was one based on a technicality so fine that the president and clerk had no choice but to leave that decision to a higher court. DAVIES ADDED that the GOP candidates now have the option to present their case to the circuit court for an appeal of the electoral board's decision to remove them from the ballot. The attorney said the decision could be precedent setting and should be made by the court, not laymen. The GOP party was challenged as filing during the wrong period and charged with not being an established party in the village.

"I have no political affiliations with village parties and I again repeat I sat impartially," said Davies. "I find that hard to believe," said Jen-

$60,000 Fire Totals Home On Grove Ave.

A home at Palatine's southern edge was destroyed by fire late Friday afternoon. No injuries were reported.

Cause of the fire at the home of the Charles Porter family, 335 W. Grove, is still undetermined, according to Roy Wente, captain of the Palatine Fire Department. Damages are estimated to exceed $60,000

A deputy state fire marshal is expecting to investigate the scene today.

Wente said Mr. and Mrs. Porter were vacationing in Las Vegas at the time of the fire. However, their son returned home from school about 3:45 p.m. and smelled smoke. He went to a neighbor's for help, but by the time they returned flames had broken out in the living room, according to Wente.

The Palatine Fire Department received unexpected assistance in fighting the fire from Schaumburg and Rolling Meadows firemen when a fire was reported at International Village apartments at the corner of Algonquin and Meacham roads.

"Someone apparently saw the smoke from the house fire and thought the fire was at the apartments," Wente said.

"When the fire departments discovered there was no fire at International Village, they assisted us," he explained.

A pumper from the Arlington Heights Fire department also was sent to the scene, according to Wente.

School Board OKs '71-'72 Calendar

The 1971-72 calendar for Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54 was approved by the board of education Thursday

The calendar provides 182 teaching days, plus three institute days, which teachers attend but pupils do not.

A new holiday has been added, President's Day, Feb. 7. According to new state and federal holidays, that Monday replaces Washington's and Lincoln's birthdays for time off work.

Classes begin Aug. 31, with an institute day Aug. 30. The school year officially ends June 9.

Holidays are Sept. 6, Labor Day; Oct. 11. Columbus Day; Oct. 25, Veteran's Day: Oct. 29, institute day; Nov. 25-26, Thanksgiving; Dec. 23 through Jan. 2, Christmas; Jan. 21, institute day; Feb. 7, President's Day; March 31, Good Friday; March 31 through April 9, spring recess; May 29, Memorial Day.

SUPT. WAYNE SCHAIBLE said an effort had been made to coordinate the elementary calendar with the calendar of high school Dist. 211. The two calendars are identical, except high school starts a day sooner and ends a day sooner, he

In other action at the Thursday night meeting, the board accepted the resignation of Mrs. Elaine Little, reading consultant, and approved termination of her contract as of April 1, rather than the contract date of June 30. Action on her request for early termination was tabled last month, when some board members questioned her reasons for resigning midyear.

The board deferred action on a resolution for membership in the Northwest Educational Cooperative for the coming year. The board has said it questions the structure of NEC, and is unsure if it will continue membership. An NEC meeting is set for March 13, when a new constitution is to be approved. Dist. 54's membership is to be based on provisions of the constitution.

Board members agreed to meet at 8 p.m. March 23 with candidates for the board election April 10. The candidates night meeting will be in district offices.

Judges for the election were approved, and a resolution authorizing the election was passed. Two board members will be $2 Million

THE BOARD approved a recommendation from its building and sites committee to contract for snow and ice removal in emergency situations that district employes will not be able to handle with their equipment. The proposal for contracting was raised after a number of residents complained of hazardous ice conditions around schools this winter. and a parent was injured and hospitalized in a fall on ice.

Estimated cost of the contracting is $900 to $1,000 each time it is used. The board did not specify any company, but authorized Schaible to use any firm available as needed at a reasonable fee.

The board agreed by consensus to allow a new form of lettering in nameplates for Aldrin, Collins and Armstrong

BUSINESS MGR. Marvin Lapicola reported the district will need to borrow around $800,000 in tax anticipation warrants to meet salary commitments before the school year ends. The warrants represent $5,000 to $8,000 in interest charges, he said.

Lapicola and Schaible reported on tours and workshops to be conducted in the district. Today administrators and an architect from Unit Dist. 150 in Peoria were to tour buildings to inspect construction, said Lapicola. Dist. 150 pays about $22 to $25 per square foot for new buildings, while Dist. 54 pays only about $15.80, said Lapicola. Dist. 150 is interested in possible means of saving money, he said.

The state legislature has approved study by the State Department of Public Instruction of individually guided education, reported Schaible. The district will be able to obtain from the state materials for study of a possible local program, he said. Earlier this year the board denied affiliation with the University of Wisconsin, which would have provided similar materials.

Schaible reported the district recently held three workshops, two in social studies and one in science, with a total of over 100 teachers participating.

Art work by children in grades one through six will be on exhibit during April in the Schaumburg Township Public Library, said Schaible. Also, the junior highs are holding an exchange program with Dist. 211 high schools, whereby junior high art work is on display in the high schools, and senior high art work is on display in the junior highs. The faculties in the art departments are holding meetings to discuss curriculum and projects, to insure continuity in art education from junior high to high school, Schaible said.

Bond Sale

A pending bond sale that took one year and four months to complete was consummated Thursday, reported the Hanover Park village attorney as he instructed Jerry Henning, village treasurer, to invest the more than $2 million issue.

The village sought a bonding house for over a year before successfully negotiating with Midwest Trust and Securities of Minneapolis to purchase the $2.3 million revenue bond for construction of a sewage treatment plant.

Hanover Park, expanding its boundaries into DuPage County, found it necessary to build a sewage treatment plant to serve its first development in that area Larwins Greenbrook Development. At the same time additions to the present water department were anticipated and both departments merged.

THERE WERE NO funds to pay for the construction and in order to finance the new facility the bonding village had to re-issue the old bonds.

William Davies, who is village attorney, handled the negotiation and was authorized Thursday to collect the balance of a $46,000 fee for his work. His fee is two per cent of the bond issue he said.

Wilson Contracting who acted as general contractor on the facility will be paid a final payment for work and village funds that advanced payment to the huilder will be repaid before the inrestment is made.

The general reaction seemed to be, "If this is what the school district needs we will try to get it for them," said Rudd.

Get Eye Test Machine

The Schaumburg Lions Club presented an eye testing machine to Elementary School Dist. 54 at a recent meeting in the Dale House Restaurant

Wayne Schaible, schools superintendent, and Mrs Mildred McClure, director of special services, accepted the machine, and explained its uses to club members. The machine will give the district a total of five such units, said Schaible. The units will test about 12,700 students for visual handicaps, he said, and the district expects to find 400 of the students will have handicaps which will be reported to their parents.

attended the twice monthly Thursday sessions since December of 1970. She was absent Thursdays.

Trustees Request Minutes

Asked why, by The Herald she said pressing personal business has kept her away from the meetings but not from her day time duties in her office.

The trustees Thursday decided that the clerk and office personnel in the village hall will be requested to make copies of all the minutes and re-scheduled the March 18 meeting to start at 7:30 p.m. to allow time for review of the minutes.

Trustee James Schueber asked William Davies Village attorney how the trustees could appoint a deputy clerk.

DAVIES HAD TOLD the board earlier that they could not force Mrs. Mars to attend meetings and couldn't fire her either because she was elected to her office and holds it until 1973 when she is up for re-election.

Davies told Schueber Mrs. Mars has asked him to outline methods of appointment of a deputy and plans to do so in the near future, Mrs. Frank Beda, who has been taking minutes of board sessions the past months at a $15 a session fee, reported that she has been submitting typed minutes to the village hall after each session she covered.

Mrs. Mars said she received some, but not all. She added that she will process any that are available and these will be given to the trustees. TRUSTEE DAVID BUGH added his complaint. He said he couldn't find anyone in the half to handle his secretarial work. He complained that a recent request of a clerk in the hall resulted in an exchange of letters from the village president charging that the trustee had 'abused" the employe. "Ricidulous," said the trustee, and asked, "Who do you ask for work?"

He explained that the board members could drop off work requests; things like letters to be typed or mailed in a basket marked for incoming work.

Trustee Jim Lewis suggested the trustees try an "In" basket. "The village clerk could at her discretion assign the work or do it herself."

he added. His fellow board members agreed to give the system a try. Other business conducted by the board included acceptance of a suggested guideline for builder contributions submitted to the board by Donald Rudd chairman of the building and sites committee of School District 54.

The trustees pointed out that they were not contemplating approval of the guidelines but would consider them.

TRUSTEE GORDON Jensen said since the village of Hanover Park lies in four school districts, including Schaumburg Township School District 54, he wanted all the districts to come up with a set figure.

He told Rudd that the village faced the problem of having all four districts come to them with different requests,

Rudd took their considerations back to the board and outlined his suggestions. The district asks one acre of land for each 100 school children anticipated from a development. Also that donated land contain a minimum of three buildable acres. A cash donation of $100 for each unit having two or more bedrooms is also requested. OTHER ACTION of the board were: -A decision that none of the elected village officials excepting the village clerk are eligible to obtain group insurance through the Great West Assurance Co. the firm that handles the village employes group insurance. -Appointed Anthony Bursha to control the flood gate valve at the retention pond on Barrington Road during flood periods.

-Appointed Trustee Barry Rogers as liaison to the Flood Study Committee, and asked him to work with the village engineer Larry Grindel.

-To appoint Grindel as liaison between the village and Harza Engineering, conducting an independent flood study. -Acceptance of a resignation from mission. His work takes him out of town, said Scaffidi. -Paid former policeman Richard Brown's expenses $208.72. Brown appeared in court to testify in litigation involving the police department and a tavern closed by the village.

-Instructed Davies to go "full speed ahead" on updating of present village ordinances. Davies, authorized over a year ago to update the codes, reported that only six chapters of the 28 chaper book have been reviewed explaining that problems between himself and the village president caused the delay.

Wheeling Cats Next Step—New Trier In Sectionals

by KEITH REINHARD

It wasn't such a bad week for the basketball team at Wheeling High School. Mike Groot savored some well-earned glory. Roger Wood netted a bit of fame. And Ted Ecker soaked up some justifiable pride.

The pride had to be spread the thinnest. There were over a thousand Wildcat students who beamed just as brightly as Ecker after the young coach's charges had swept off with a regional championship on their own court Friday at the expense of Barrington, 63-53.

The title triumph extended Wheeling's longest winning streak to 12 and advanced them to sectional action for the second time in three years. They'll face New Trier East Wednesday at Fremd High School in Palatine, as one of the 64 teams still remaining in this year's prep state tournament chase.

The fame and glory went to chaps who've carried the brunt of Wheeling's offensive attack all season. "I just can't say enough about Mike," Ecker sounded out on his classy 6-0 senior guard Mike Groot, the tourney's leading scorer.

GROOT POURED in 73 points over the three game set, assisted eight more scoring plays and was credited with seven recoveries. His defensive play was outstanding. Most important, his scoring always seem to come at critical moments, when the 'Cat offense was lagging or the opposition has a rally under way.

"He really carried the load for us this past week, especially over the past two games." Ecker added. "There were four other kids out there scrapping with Mike, and they all wanted a regional championship pretty badly, but I think he wanted it more than anybody."

Wood's role in the tourney may have been underscored by Groot's magnificent play but it was every bit as decisive, even in the Friday contest when he only saw action for little more than half a

"Rog plays one of the most important parts in our objective before he even goes for the opening tip. He's big and he's got a reputation now. The opposition, in formulating their plans before playing us, have got to consider a defense for him of primary importance."

Ecker has observed this to have had definite effect on Wheeling's foes all season. "They don't seem to go to the inside as much as they'd like to. And of course, in guarding Rog and tightening things up around him they allow us a little more freedom outside,"

That edge helped Wheeling throttle Barrington in the finale before Wood was even thumbed out of the game with his fifth foul halfway through period three. The Bronchos had a meager five field goals at that time - all on outside shots.

And Barrington trailed Wheeling by 16 points.

Ironically, though it was Wood's lowest scoring game of the week, and definetely not one of his best efforts over a season ladened with outstanding performances, it goes down in log book as a major milestone in his prep career.

His 10-point total hiked his two-year point production to 855, moving into 12th place in Paddock's all time area scoring boner roll.

Morever, the cager he displeced for that berth was former 'Cat standout Carl Fricke, making Big Rog the new Wheeling school scoring record bolder . . . in only his junior year.

easily move as high as ninth on that area honor list with just one more average performance. Directly in front of him now are Arlington's Chuck Close with 856 points, Forest View's Pat Dunnigan at 862 and Palatine's Dave Hasbach at

A Sparse Crowd Greets Spacemen

O'Hare Airport Friday to the sound of the theme from "2001: A Space Odyssey" played by the Wheeling High School marching band.

Alan Shepard, Edgar Mitchell and Stuart Roosa, who recently completed their own space odyssey, paused briefly to listen to the band and wave at the crowd before leaving for downtown Chicago and a day-long series of events in their honor.

Only a few hundred person braved the temperature in the 30s and piercing winds. About 125 of them were pupils from the first five grades at the Immanuel Lutheran Shoool, in Des Plaines. The youngsters cheerfully bounced up and down to keep warm as they waited half an hour for the astronauts.

WHEN THE astronauts' plane taxied to the reception area, the band struck up tunes from its "Apollo Show," the youngsters broke into smiles and Chicago Mayor Richard J Daley strode to the plane to greet Shepard, Mitchell, Roosa, their wives and children.

After shaking hands with the mayor and other city officials the astronauts chatted with the mayor while the band played on and the youngsters smiled. Only Shepard walked over to the crowd. The oldest astronaut waved at the band and the Immanuel students and covered his ears in an apparent reference to the

MOST PEOPLE in the crowd seemed disappointed that the astronauts did not speak or come closer to the crowd. Most of the time they were 100 feet away.

But Irwin Brick, the Wheeling band director, said he and the band members were very proud to greet the astronauts.

Brick said that the band, which has played for Presidents Nixon and Johnson as well as visiting astronauts, performed its own "Apollo Show." The show included "Fly Me to The Moon," "Good Morning Starsbine." "Aquarius," and "Sunshine," as well as music from "Space Odyssev.

Debbie Wave, a freshman member of the band, probably summed up the students' feelings when she said she was "proud and excited" about seeing the as-"but I am kind of cold.

For Cal Chaney, the drum major, it was the second time he has greeted a group of astronauts at O'Hare but he still found the event "a great morale boost-

Group Of Prospect Heights Residents Plan To File Suit Against Wheeling

A group of Prospect Heights residents, called the Wheeling Road Zoning Committee, plan to file a suit against the Village of Wheeling.

The suit will claim that the village's ordinance to annex 40 acres south of the St Alphonsus Catholic Church and School on Wheeling Road in Prospect Heights is "null and void." The suit will be filed by municipal attorney Donald Kreger. He said it would be filed as soon

"We are taking a quo warranto action, which, in effect is an objection to the village exercising jurisdiction over the 40 acres." said Kreger, "We are claiming they can't make a ruling on the zoning of the land if the annexation is not valid."

THE ANNEXATION is not valid, according to Kreger, because there is not "sufficient contiguity." The only portion of the 40 acres that is contiguous to the village is the northeast corner. Excluding that corner, the land is surrounded by the proposed City of Prospect Heights.

The Prospect Heights group voted to take legal action against the village at a meeting Thursday night. The group was formed to "achieve acceptable development" of the 40 acres, which is owned by Arthur Liebling.

Liebling's proposal to build apartments on his land is unacceptable to the Prospect Heights group. They have voiced their objections at meetings of the Wheeling Village Board and zoning TONIGHT, THE village board will meet at 8:30 in the municipal building to consider an ordinance rezoning Liebling's land for apartments. The Prospect Heights group is urging all residents in the unincorporated area to send letters and telegrams to Wheeling residents and trustees, objecting to the rezoning.

The group is also requesting monetary contributions for its legal fight against the village. These may be sent to: Max Lyle at 302 E. Willow Road, Prospect Heights. Earlier the group said they had pledges for $1,000, but now refuse to reveal how much money they have collect-

Residents Learn Deacons' Duties

"I see it as a continuation of my service to the church."

This is the way a Northwest suburban resident described his desire to become a deacon in the Roman Catholic Church.

He is one of seven area residents participating in the first Roman Catholic deacon-training program.

Deacons are common in Protestant churches but until very recently, only a candidate for priesthood could be a deacon in the Roman Catholic faith

CHURCH REFORMS. stemming out of the Second Vatican Council, have revived the ancient church practice of having deacons who are not studying for the priesthood, and who may be married

The re-creation of the deaconate was meant to give more responsibility to members of the individual churches, and to give aid to priests, according to one of the deacon candidates.

Those deacons who successfully complete a newly created two-year study program, which began Feb. 2, will be allowed to fulfill all the priestly jobs, except saying mass, hearing confessions, or anointing the sick, according to officials of the Archdiocese of Chicago.

After becoming deacons, most of the men will return to their home parishes to work, according to the Rev. John Ring, executive director of the program. Some, with special skills, may work with community groups, he said

Deacon candidates attend twice-weekly study sessions after their usual work day. For the Northwest suburban men in the program, class is held Tuesday nights at the Quigley Seminary, 103 E. Chestnut, Chicago, and Thursday nights at the Niles College of Loyola University, near north suburban Niles

Paddock Wins NIEA Awards

Paddock Publications has won several top awards in the 1971 Northern Illinois Editorial Association contest.

The presentations were announced and made Friday during the 10th annual spring convention of the NIEA in Aurora. The NIEA serves a 29-county area of northern Illinois

In competition judged by the Northern Illinois University Journalism department, Paddock entered six daily newspaper categories and one non-daily category, and won a total of five first place awards, one second and a special first place award

In the daily newspaper contest, Paddock newspapers won first place awards in the following categories:

Makeup and Appearance, Best Local Sports Section, Photography Excellence and Best Local Feature Story (won by Paddock special assignment reporter Brad Brekke )

Paddock also won a second place award in the Best Society Section category in the daily newspaper contest.

In the last daily category Paddock entered. Food and Nutrition, it won a special first place award for its regular Thursday supplement, "Sugar and Spice "

In the non-dally category, the Addison Register, now published by the subsidiary Paddock DuPage Newspapers, won a first place award for Best Society Section.

These are the latest of many awards won by Paddock Publications newspapers. Last fall Paddock was cited as having the best daily newspaper in Illinois by the Illinois Press Association. Competing with Paddock for that award were Chicago daily newspapers as well others in Illinois.

this is the first deacon program in this area of the country, programs of study developed may be copied in future programs, he said. Candidates for the deaconate from the Northwest suburban area are active in church affairs. The two most represented churches are St. Stephens, 1267 Everett. Des Plaines: and St. Thomas, Anderson and Williams Drive, Palatine. One of the Des Plaines candidates Robert Flynn, became interested in the program after hearing about it from Michael Belinda, who was working at St. Stephens as a deacon, in preparation for his ordainment as a priest.

FLYNN HAS taught eighth grade religion classes at the church, and has been a lector at masses.

He has been a Des Plaines resident for three years. He and his wife Madeleine have two daughters, Stacey, 7, and Dominique, 5.

John Pistone, 38, and his wife, Rae Ellen, are coordinators of the high school education program at St. Thomas.

He has been a resident of Palatine for almost two years, and he hopes after he completes his deacon study, to work in the St. Thomas Church.

Corps Tickets On Sale

Reserved seat tickets are now on sale will become an annual event in Wheelfor next summer's drum and bugle corps contest, which will be held July 3 at Wheeling High School. The reserved seat tickets will probably be sold out in a month or two, according to Bob Bryson, director of Wheeling's First Illinois Scout Drum and Bugle Corps, sponsors of the contest.

Tickets may be purchased at $3.50 each from Don Russ at the State Farm Insurance Co., 771 W. Dundee, Wheeling, or by writing to the First Illinois Scout Drum and Bugle Corps at P.O. Box 333, Wheeling.

Bryson said he expects 5,000 people to attend the "Mid West Parade of Champions," the name which has been given to the new contest.

COMPETING FOR $2,460 in prize money will be the Troopers of Casper.Wyo: the Vanguards of Santa Clara, Calif., the Cavetiers of Chicago: the Scouts of Madison, Wis., the Vanguards of Des Plaines; and the Blue Stars of LaCrosse, Wis.

The Wheeling drum and bugle corps will perform during the program but will not compete for prize money.

Bryson explained that the recentlyformed Wheeling group will not be ready by summer to compete in national contests. They will begin entering com-

The society is trying "to preserve the past and improve the future," in Koeppen's words.

"An historical society won't work well if the people just sit at their meetings and talk about history. People have to have fun too, if the organization is to keep going.

"We want to bring the whole community together at least once a year for some fun and to show others what a good community we have. We have a good town here. We want to promote it. Student tours of the historical society building, with its displays of relics from the past, and of village landmarks, is an ongoing historical society project, to acquaint young people with the past. MARSHALL BALLING, a resident of Wheeling since 1915, has been leading area school children on these tours since last fall. Balling points out such landmarks as the old Wheeling cemetery on Milwaukee Avenue, with its 100-year-old gravestones, and the old homes and shops along Milwaukee Avenue. To date, several hundred school children have taken the tour, and heard Balling's stories about life in the village when he was growing up. The children have viewed the me-

"There's a lot of history in Wheeling. It's an old town. It's important for these kids to know something about their town, to see that it's a good town. Today with people moving all over, their roots often aren't where they were raised," said Koeppen.

'Employment Month' Set At High School

The month of April has been designated as "Employment Month" at Wheeling High School.

The designation has been made to stimulate student interest in looking for summer and full-time jobs and to make the public aware that many students will soon be looking for summer jobs and for full-time work after graduation, according to Richard Gorham, vocational counselor at Wheeling High School.

Gorham said April was selected for the designation as "Employment Month" because many students will begin looking for jobs during spring vacation.

Wheeling Cats Next Step—New Trier In Sectionals

by KEITH REINHARD

It wasn't such a bad week for the baskethall team at Wheeling High School. Mike Groot savored some well-earned glory Roger Wood netted a bit of fame. And Ted Ecker soaked up some justifiable pride

The pride had to be spread the thinnest. There were over a thousand Wildcat students who beamed just as brightly as Ecker after the young coach's charges had swept off with a regional championship on their own court Friday at the expense of Barrington, 63-53.

The title triumph extended Wheeling's longest winning streak to 12 and advanced them to sectional action for the second time in three years. They'll face New Trier East Wednesday at Fremd High School in Palatine, as one of the 64 teams still remaining in this year's prep state tournament chase.

The fame and glory went to chaps who've carried the brunt of Wheeling's offensive attack all season. "I just can't say enough about Mike," Ecker sounded out on his classy 6-0 senior guard Mike Groot, the tourney's leading scorer.

GROOT POURED in 73 points over the three game set, assisted eight more scoring plays and was credited with seven recoveries. His defensive play was outstanding. Most important, his scoring always seem to come at critical moments, when the 'Cat offense was lagging or the opposition has a rally under

"He really carried the load for us this past week, especially over the past two games." Ecker added. "There were four other kids out there scrapping with Mike, and they all wanted a regional championship pretty badly, but I think he wanted it more than anybody."

Wood's role in the tourney may have been underscored by Groot's magnificent play but it was every bit as decisive. even in the Friday contest when he only saw action for little more than half a

"Rog plays one of the most important parts in our objective before he even goes for the opening tip. He's big and he's got a reputation now. The opposition, in formulating their plans before playing us, have got to consider a defense for him of primary importance."

Ecker has observed this to have had definite effect on Wheeling's foes all season. "They don't seem to go to the inside as much as they'd like to. And of course, in guarding Rog and tightening things up around him they allow us a little more freedom outside,"

That edge helped Wheeling throttle Barrington in the finale before Wood was even thumbed out of the game with his fifth foul halfway through period three. The Bronchos had a meager five field goals at that time - all on outside shots.

And Barrington trailed Wheeling by

Ironically, though it was Wood's lowest scoring game of the week, and definetely not one of his best efforts over a season ladened with outstanding performances, it goes down in log book as a major milestone in his prep career.

His 10-point total hiked his two-year point production to 855, moving into 12th place in Paddock's all time area scoring

easily move as high as ninth on that area honor list with just one more average performance. Directly in front of him now are Arlington's Chuck Close with 856 points, Forest View's Pat Dunnigan at 862 and Palatine's Dave Hasbach at

A project to aid Wheeling men serving in Vietnam has been launched by the Phillip Carpenter Amvets Auxiliary Post in Wheeling

In its "808 Project" the post adopts a serviceman and his platoon each month. Gifts of cookies, candy, stationary, shaving utensils and other items are mailed to the men

Mrs. Marge Rannie, chairman of the project, asked that the names of Wheeling servicemen stationed in Vietnam besent to her at 141 S. Milwaukee, Wheeling The post will also accept donations of cookies and other gifts for servicemen.

The Bulfalo Grove Village Board will minority report, and a absentee member report will all be presented at the village board meeting tonight.

The village board has final authority over all development in the village. It can either accept the plan commission report, modify it, or reject the entire development completely.

Donald Thompson, village president, said the agenda for tonight's meeting has been cleared and only the proposed development will be considered. Thompson said he did this in order to give interested citizens an opportunity to express their feelings on the proposal.

A group of about 100 residents opposing the complex had been present at the plan attend the meeting. Merill Hoyt, a former plan commission member who resigned to oppose the project, will represent the group, called the Concerned Citizens of Buffalo Grove.

RICHARD HOUPT, attorney for Frank is also expected to be present.

After the vote by the plan commission, Frank said he would consider the restrictions imposed on his development by the commission and present a revised plan at the village board meeting. However he did indicate that he was not pleased with some of the recommended changes.

The recommended changes include re duction of the density from 900 units to 720 units and elimination of five building proposed near the single-family homes bordering the development. Also, the commission recommended that no more than 50 per cent of the apartments be two-bedroom units.

Frank could not be reached Friday to comment on which of the changes he included in his new plan.

Then, only a few minutes later, the space heroes stepped into a bubble-top limousine with the mayor and began the drive to the Loop. In less than five minutes, their appearance at O'Hare was over.

MOST PEOPLE in the crowd seemed disappointed that the astronauts did not speak or come closer to the crowd. Most of the time they were 100 feet away.

But Irwin Brick, the Wheeling band director, said he and the band members were very proud to greet the astronauts.

Brick said that the band, which has played for Presidents Nixon and Johnson as well as visiting astronauts, performed its own "Apollo Show." The show included "Fly Me to The Moon," "Good Morning Starshine," "Aquarius," and "Sun-

Debbie Wave, a freshman member of the band, probably summed up the students' feelings when she said she was "proud and excited" about seeing the astronauts, "but I am kind of cold."

Construction Is Delayed In Area

Construtcion projects in Palatine and Wheeling are being held back by the Metropolitan Sanitary District (MSD), pending the adoption of new MSD requirements in these municipalities

Caught between the requirements of the new MSD Manual of Procedures and the lack of compliance in Palatine and Wheeling, builders have been turned down in their requests for a permit to construct improvements in their developments Construction at three sites is currently affected Inverleigh Apartments at Quentin and Colfax, also Elm and Gilbert in Palatine, and a site at Schaumburg Road and Anthony Road in

ACCORDING TO Ayoub Talhami, MSD supervising engineer of local sewer systems, requests for permits in the projects in Palatine and Wheeling are being denied as a result of the new regulations which went into effect the first of this year Several other Northwest Suburban municipalities have not adopted a community ordinance meeting the MSD standards, but have no applications pending, Talhami said Rolling Meadows and Arlington Heights recently adopted regulations acceptable to MSD

The Home Builders Association of Chicagoland (HBAC) recently established a committee to study the predicament of members affected by the conflict involving MSD regulations. Heading this committee is Dick Harwood of Northern Illinois Construction Co in Highland Park Harwood serves as a member of the codes committee of the National Association of Home Builders (NAHB) and is a member of a blue-ribbon committee appointed to advise MSD on flood control problems

"IT DOESN'T seem fair to put the builder in the middle, particularly when he has such a large investment in land, if he is willing to go along with the MSD requirements" said Harwood "The MSD requirements are the result of the deliberations of seven of the best engineers in Chicago They make good engineering sense," he said

"Why should the standards in Northbrook, for example, be different from se in Palatine Trus lack sistency is hindering the building industry," said Harwood

"The consumer is paying for the discrepancies in the regulations of Chicago area municipalities," according to Harwood "The whole point of the MSD regulations was to standardize building, and

Name 2 Students To Student Foundation

Two Palatine students have become members of the Indiana University Student Foundation.

Edward R Bartley, 55 N. Highland Rd, and Lyn E Letsinger, 1628 E Camellia Ln., were among 384 new members admitted to the foundation recently.

As members of the foundation, they will help Indiana University raise scholarship money and conduct programs benefiting the campus community.

save costs." he said

"COMMUNITIES that reject the MSD requirements may have more stringent regulations," said Harwood. "They can add to costs and build in more requirements, but beyond a certain point, it is not economically feasible.

"That's the dilemma I'm in as a builder, to make a salable, attractive, house," he said. "I work out my costs per square foot, including land, overhead, profit, size and specifications. If the local codes require too much, I may reduce the size or specifications of the house in order to meet the selling price demanded by the market. A community can't zone the market for me "

Harwood said the builder cannot be expected to solve the problem of compliance with MSD regulations. He said there is a responsibility on the local, county and state levels.

$60,000 Fire Totals Home On Grove Ave.

A home at Palatine's southern edge was destroyed by fire late Friday afternoon. No injuries were reported.

Cause of the fire at the home of the Charles Porter family, 335 W. Grove, is still undetermined, according to Roy Wente, captain of the Palatine Fire Department. Damages are estimated to excced $60,000

A deputy state fire marshal is expecting to investigate the scene today

Wente said Mr and Mrs. Porter were vacationing in Las Vegas at the time of the fire. However, their son returned home from school about 3:45 p.m. and smelled smoke He went to a neighbor's for help, but by the time they returned flames had broken out in the living room, according to Wente.

The Palatine Fire Department received unexpected assistance in fighting the fire from Schaumburg and Rolling Meadows firemen when a fire was reported at International Village apartments at the corner of Algonquin and Meacham roads

"Someone apparently saw the smoke from the house fire and thought the fire was at the apartments," Wente said.

"When the fire departments discovered there was no fire at International Village, they assisted us," he explained.

A pumper from the Arlington Heights Fire department also was sent to the scene, according to Wente.

This is the way a Northwest suburban resident described his desire to become a deacon in the Roman Catholic Church.

He is one of seven area residents participating in the first Roman Catholic deacon-training program.

Deacons are churches but until very recently, only a candidate for priesthood could be a deacon in the Roman Catholic faith.

CHURCH REFORMS, stemming out of the Second Vatican Council, have revived the ancient church practice of having deacons who are not studying for the priesthood, and who may be married.

The re-creation of the deaconate was meant to give more responsibility to members of the individual churches, and to give aid to priests, according to one of the deacon candidates.

Those deacons who successfully complete a newly created two-year study program, which began Feb. 2, will be allowed to fulfill all the priestly jobs, except saying mass, hearing confessions, or anointing the sick, according to officials of the Archdiocese of Chicago.

After becoming deacons, most of the men will return to their home parishes to work, according to the Rev. John Ring, executive director of the program. Some, with special skills, may work with community groups, he said.

Deacon candidates attend twice-weekly study sessions after their usual work day. For the Northwest suburban men in

THOSE NORTHWEST suburban men accepted into the program are: John Devron, 338 N. Morris Dr., Palatine;; Robert Flynn, 1804 Mannheim Rd., Des Plames: Dennis LaSota, 1844 Fargo, Des Plames; John Pistone, 919 E. Slayton Dr , Palatine; John Richard, 631 Bel Aire Terr, Palatine; Harry Walsh, 1330 Cumberland, Elk Grove Village; and

James Whittle, 2185 Spruce, Des Plaines. These men are among 130 chosen to be a part of the first Chicago-area deacon training program. The Chicago program is the 11th in the nation. The Archdiocesan Office for the Permanent Diaconate, 1300 S. Wabash. was established last spring by John Cardinal Cody, archbishop of Chicago.

The program has been opened only to men The application of a Des Plaines housewife, Mrs. Polly O'Grady was rejected by the Archdiocesan office.

Parochiaid: A Must For Area

the governor has asked the Illinois General Assembly to allocate funds in the annual budget for state aid to non-public

This year, Gov. Ogilvie has requested an appropriation of $29 million for state aid to non-public elementary and secondary schools, money which he says would provide a modest program of aid for the secular education of those youngsters representing nearly 20 per cent of our total school population."

In his address to the state legislature last week, the governor presented sound reasons for such an appropriation, If parochial schools are forced to close down in September because of increasing deficits, the state would be faced with a bill of more than $250 million in full state aid to public schools to educate the additional students.

A state appropriation for non-public schools would "not only help avert such a financial calamity but would also help maintain the diversity and freedom of choice so essential to quality education," the governor told the legislators

IN SIMPLE FIGURES, $29 million is much less than $250 million. Also, the more schools that remain open, the more types of education there will be available to the state's students, not to mention the smaller classes there will be.

The governor's requests have been defeated by the legislature before, and they will quite probably be defeated again this year Since the legislature is not immediately faced with the obligation of pay-

For the third time in as many years, ing $250 million in state aid, if it ever would be, it probably won't pay out $29 million to help tide the schools over.

State aid to non-public schools could be looked at as a preventative means to paying an even larger amount at a later date However, rather than think ahead. the legislature will probably choose to avoid the whole issue now and worry about costs when it is forced to maybe one or two years from now.

BUT IN THE meantime, it's the local school districts that have to worry about educating the non-public students if their schools are suddenly closed down.

This week. Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist 15 officials will present a recommendation to the school board on a program of shared-time education with the local Catholic schools for September. Dist, 15 officials know as well as the local Catholic school boards the need for immediate action to solve the schools' financial problems.

If they don't work together to solve it, Dist. 15 will have 1.700 additional students on their hands to educate, and they can't just sit around and wait for the state legislature to decide whether it will give them a hand.

The quality of education offered by the three local Catholic schools is extremely high and the schools' closing would be indeed detrimental to the overall community and its youth.

Local districts, like Dist. 15, are responding to the financial needs of parochial schools. Now it's the state's turn, even if only for one year.

Three Palatine men, John Devron, 338 N Morris, John Pistone, 919 E. Slayton, and John Richard, 631 Bel Aire, have been accepted in the permanent diaconate program in the Chicago Roman Catholic Architocese. For the next two years, the men will meet each Tuesday evening at Quigley Seminary North for theological training as future deacons in the Catholic Church. On Thursday evemings they will spend another three hours at a neighborhood center where they will receive postoral formation, on the job training in diaconal work, and community experiences in applying theology to the life of service. Two years from now the first class will graduate.

VITA. Volunteer Income Tax Assistance, is an Internal Revenue program designed to assist payers in preparing their forms. Volunteers are needed to help lower income citizens, the elderly, the handicapped, the illiterate and persons with language problems. Individuals willing to serve as volunteers complete a brief, self-instructional course in basic income tax and they are provided with materials for assistance.

It is not necessary that you have any previous background in this area, except that you might at some time or other have encountered Form 1040 Those assisting a person are not required to sign the form as a preparer.

"Our American Heritage" was the theme of the annual Blue and Gold banquet of the Immanuel Lutheran School Cub Scout Pack 48 held recently at the school.

Each den presented a skit centered on the patriotism theme. There was also discussion on Project SOAR (Save Our American Resources) and a film on conservation. Following the program, it was announced that the pack will sponsor a newspaper drive March 20 as part of the outdoor phase of Project SOAR.

During the banquet, Gold Arrows were presented to David Asmus and Mark Giese. Bear Badges went to Mark Giese, Davis Asmus and Robert Clausing and Clausing was advanced to Webelos.

Weble Scouts David Kleiden, Greg Netzeband, Joel Pape, Stephen Kostsaqis Robert Lueder, Kevin Vogeler and Randy Sinitean received Engineer Badges. Joel Pape and Kevin Vogeler earned Artist Badges.

David Kleidon receved the Arrow of Light Award and was also advanced to boy scouts.

Camp Fire Girls and Junior Girl Scouts have been making book marks for the fair. Most are made of felt and will sell for a nickel to 15 cents each, she said.

IN MAKING THE book marks, the girls donated their work and the materials used in producing them. All did so to help in a community project, which their by-laws dictate.

Over 200 book marks have been made for the fair, Mrs. Pollard said, About 100 of them were made by Mrs. Kay Burke's

Other children at the school have been helping the fair too, she said. Youngsters in grades two through six made posters advertising the fair. The best of these posters will be displayed in the library during the book sale.

Last year, the book fair made $130 for the library, Mrs. Pollard said. All the public is invited to attend the book fair, she said.

A Sparse Crowd Greets Spacemen

The Apollo 14 astronauts arrived at O'Hare Airport Friday to the sound of the theme from "2001: A Space Odyssey" played by the Wheeling High School marching band.

Alan Shepard, Edgar Mitchell and Stuart Roosa, who recently completed their own space odyssey, paused briefly to listen to the band and wave at the crowd before leaving for downtown Chicago and a day-long series of events in their honor.

Only a few hundred person braved the temperature in the 30s and piercing winds. About 125 of them were pupils from the first five grades at the Immanuel Lutheran Shoool, in Des Plaines. The youngsters cheerfully bounced up and down to keep warm as they waited half an hour for the astronauts.

WHEN THE astronauts' plane taxied to the reception area, the band struck up tunes from its "Apollo Show," the youngsters broke into smiles and Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley strode to the plane to greet Shepard, Mitchell, Roosa, their wives and children.

After shaking hands with the mayor and other city officials the astronauts chatted with the mayor while the band played on and the youngsters smiled. Only Shepard walked over to the crowd. The oldest astronaut waved at the band and the Immanuel students and covered his ears in an apparent reference to the

MOST PEOPLE in the crowd seemed disappointed that the astronauts did not speak or come closer to the crowd. Most of the time they were 100 feet away.

But Irwin Brick, the Wheeling band director, said he and the band members were very proud to greet the astronauts.

Brick said that the band, which has played for Presidents Nixon and Johnson as well as visiting astronauts, performed its own "Apollo Show." The show included "Fly Me to The Moon." "Good Morning Starshine." "Aquarius," and "Sunshine," as well as music from "Space Odyssey."

Debbie Wave, a freshman member of the band, probably summed up the students' feelings when she said she was 'proud and excited" about seeing the astronauts, "but I am kind of cold."

For Cal Chaney, the drum major, it was the second time he has greeted a group of astronauts at O'Hare but he still found the event "a great morale boost-

Also on hand were Edward Gilbert, superintendent of High School Dist. 214: Thomas Shirley, principal of Wheeling High School: and six members of the school's Naval Junior ROTC.

Construction Is Delayed In Area

Construtcion projects in Palatine and Wheeling are being held back by the Metropolitan Sanitary District (MSD), pending the adoption of new MSD requirements in these municipalities.

Caught between the requirements of the new MSD Manual of Procedures and the lack of compliance in Palatine and Wheeling, builders have been turned down in their requests for a permit to construct improvements in their developments. Construction at three sites is currently affected: Inverleigh Apartments at Quentin and Colfax, also Elm and Gilbert in Palatine; and a site at Schaumburg Road and Anthony Road in Wheeling.

ACCORDING TO Ayoub Talhami, MSD supervising engineer of local sewer systems, requests for permits in the projects in Palatine and Wheeling are being denied as a result of the new regulations which went into effect the first of this year. Several other Northwest Suburban municipalities have not adopted a community ordinance meeting the MSD standards, but have no applications pending, Talhami said. Rolling Meadows and Arlington Heights recently adopted regulations acceptable to MSD.

The Home Builders Association of Chicagoland (HBAC) recently established a committee to study the predicament of members affected by the conflict involving MSD regulations. Heading this committee is Dick Harwood of Northern Illinois Construction Co. in Highland Park. Harwood serves as a member of the codes committee of the National Association of Home Builders (NAHB) and is a member of a blue-ribbon committee appointed to advise MSD on flood control problems.

"IT DOESN'T seem fair to put the builder in the middle, particularly when he has such a large investment in land, if he is willing to go along with the MSD requirements," said Harwood. "The MSD requirements are the result of the deliberations of seven of the best engineers in Chicago. They make good engineering sense," he said

"Why should the standards in Northbrook, for example, be different from those in Palatine? This lack of consistency is hindering the building industry," said Harwood.

"The consumer is paying for the discrepancies in the regulations of Chicago area municipalities," according to Harwood. "The whole point of the MSD regulations was to standardize building, and save costs," he said.

"COMMUNITIES that reject the MSD requirements may have more stringent regulations," said Harwood. "They can add to costs and build in more requirements, but beyond a certain point, it is not economically feasible.

"That's the dilemma I'm in as a builder, to make a salable, attractive, house," he said. "I work out my costs per square foot, including land, overhead, profit, size and specifications. If the local codes require too much, I may reduce the size or specifications of the house in order to meet the selling price demanded by the niarket. A community can't zone the market for me."

Harwood said the builder cannot be expected to solve the problem of compliance with MSD regulations. He said there is a responsibility on the local, county and state levels.

$60,000 Fire Totals Home On Grove Ave.

A home at Palatine's southern edge was destroyed by fire late Friday afternoon. No injuries were reported.

Cause of the fire at the home of the Charles Porter family, 335 W. Grove, is still undetermined, according to Roy Wente, captain of the Palatine Fire Department. Damages are estimated to exceed $60,000

A deputy state fire marshal is expecting to investigate the scene today.

Wente said Mr. and Mrs. Porter were vacationing in Las Vegas at the time of the fire. However, their son returned home from school about 3:45 p.m. and smelled smoke. He went to a neighbor's for help, but by the time they returned flames had broken out in the living

The Palatine Fire Department received unexpected assistance in fighting the fire from Schaumburg and Rolling Meadows firemen when a fire was reported at International Village apartments at the corner of Algonquin and Meacham roads.

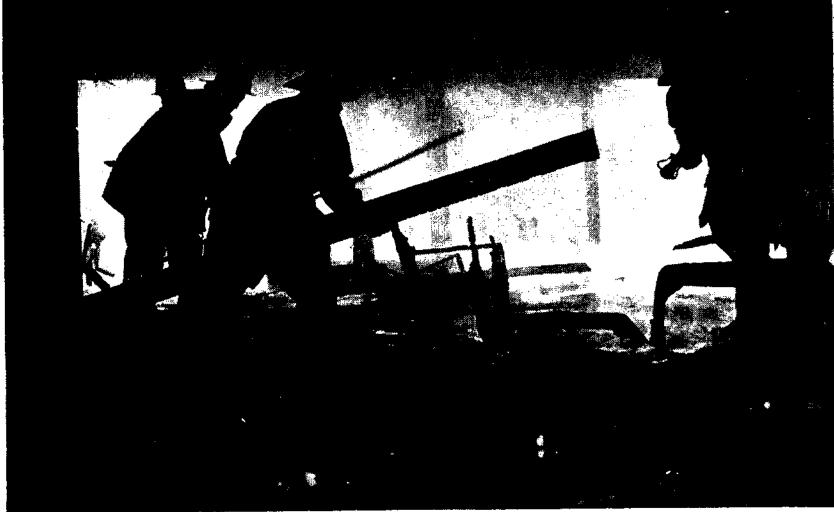

'Someone apparently saw the smoke from the house fire and thought the fire was at the apartments," Wente said.

When the fire departments discovered there was no fire at International Village, they assisted us," he explained. A pumper from the Arlington Heights Fire department also was sent to the scene, according to Wente.

Pumping Station To Be Completed

Expansion of the Rolling Meadows water pump station, which will provide improved water pressure and increase the quantity of water available to city residents, will be completed this year.

Bids for expansion of the station at Well No. 5, near the intersection of Industrial Avenue and Hicks Road in northwestern Rolling Meadows, were accepted last week, and the city council is expected to approve a bid at tomorrow's council meeting. Bids for the station and pumping equipment ranged from $89,000 to $98,000 from three firms.

"Work should begin this spring and will be completed this year," said James McFeggan, superintendent. When the work is completed, Rolling Meadows will have five city wells in operation.

CITY OFFICIALS have taken precautions against a summer water shortage by recently purchasing a spare well motor. Although the well that provides water to residents of the southern section of the city was not in service in January, the city operated from three wells to provide adequate supply.

However, McFeggan said a similar situation in the summer months could cause a city water shortage. "This wasn't the kind of thing you want to happen in the middle of summer," he said. Rolling Meadows is working with

Parochiaid: A Must For Area

For the third time in as many years, ing $250 million in state aid, if it ever the governor has asked the Illinois General Assembly to allocate funds in the annual budget for state aid to non-public schools

This year, Gov Ogilvie has requested an appropriation of $29 million for state aid to non-public elementary and secondary schools, money which he says would provide "a modest program of aid for the secular education of those youngsters representing nearly 20 per cent of our total school population."

In his address to the state legislature last week, the governor presented sound reasons for such an appropriation. If parochial schools are forced to close down in September because of increasing deficits, the state would be faced with a bill of more than $250 million in full state aid to public schools to educate the additional students.

A state appropriation for non-public schools would "not only help avert such a financial calamity but would also help maintain the diversity and freedom of choice so essential to quality education," the governor told the legislators.

IN SIMPLE FIGURES, $29 million is much less than $250 million. Also, the more schools that remain open, the more types of education there will be available to the state's students, not to mention the smaller classes there will be

would be, it probably won't pay out $29 million to help tide the schools over.

State aid to non-public schools could be looked at as a preventative means to paying an even larger amount at a later date. However, rather than think ahead, the legislature will probably choose to avoid the whole issue now and worry about costs when it is forced to maybe one or two years from now.

BUT IN THE meantime, it's the local school districts that have to worry about educating the non-public students if their schools are suddenly closed down.

This week, Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 officials will present a recommendation to the school board on a program of shared-time education with the local Catholic schools for September. Dist. 15 officials know as well as the local Catholic school boards the need for immediate action to solve the schools' financial problems

If they don't work together to solve it, Dist. 15 will have 1,700 additional students on their hands to educate, and they can't just sit around and wait for the state legislature to decide whether it will give them a hand.

The quality of education offered by the three local Catholic schools is extremely high and the schools' closing would be indeed detrimental to the overall community and its youth.

Local districts, like Dist. 15, are responding to the financial needs of parochial schools. Now it's the state's turn, even if only for one year.

A Sparse Crowd Greets Spacemen

The Apollo 14 astronauts arrived at O'Hare Airport Friday to the sound of the theme from "2001: A Space Odyssey" played by the Wheeling High School marching band.

Alan Shepard, Edgar Mitchell and Stuart Roosa, who recently completed their own space odyssey, paused briefly to listen to the band and wave at the crowd before leaving for downtown Chicago and a day-long series of events in their honor.

Only a few hundred person braved the temperature in the 30s and piercing winds. About 125 of them were pupils from the first five grades at the Immanuel Lutheran Shcool, in Des Plaines. The youngsters cheerfully bounced up and down to keep warm as they waited half an hour for the astronauts.

WHEN THE astronauts' plane taxied to the reception area, the band struck up tunes from its "Apollo Show," the youngsters broke into smiles and Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley strode to the plane to greet Shepard, Mitchell, Roosa, their wives and children.

After shaking hands with the mayor and other city officials the astronauts chatted with the mayor while the band played on and the youngsters smiled. Only Shepard walked over to the crowd. The oldest astronaut waved at the band and the Immanuel students and covered his ears in an apparent reference to the

A group of Prospect Heights residents, School on Wheeling Road in Prospect Heights is "null and void." The suit will be filed by municipal attorney Donald Kreger. He said it would be filed as soon as possible.

"We are taking a quo warranto action, which, in effect is an objection to the village exercising jurisdiction over the 40 acres," said Kreger. "We are claiming they can't make a ruling on the zoning of the land if the annexation is not valid."

THE ANNEXATION is not valid, according to Kreger, because there is not "sufficient contiguity." The only portion of the 40 acres that is contiguous to the village is the northeast corner. Excluding that corner, the land is surrounded by the proposed City of Prospect Heights.

The Prospect Heights group voted to take legal action against the village at a meeting Thursday night. The group was formed to "achieve acceptable development" of the 40 acres, which is owned by Arthur Liebling.

Liebling's proposal to build apartments on his land is unacceptable to the Prospect Heights group. They have voiced their objections at meetings of the Wheeling Village Board and zoning

But Irwin Brick, the Wheeling band director, said he and the band members were very proud to greet the astronauts.

Brick said that the band, which has played for Presidents Nixon and Johnson as well as visiting astronauts, performed its own "Apollo Show." The show included "Fly Me to The Moon," "Good Morning Starshine," "Aquarius," and "Sunshine," as well as music from "Space Odyssey."

Debbie Wave, a freshman member of the band, probably summed up the students' feelings when she said she was "proud and excited" about seeing the astronauts, "but I am kind of cold."

For Cal Chaney, the drum major, it was the second time he has greeted a group of astronauts at O'Hare but he still found the event "a great morale boost-

Wheeling Wildcats Advance To Sectionals Vs. New Trier

It wasn't such a had week for the basketball team at Wheeling High School. Mike Groot savored some well-earned glory. Roger Wood netted a bit of fame. And Ted Ecker soaked up some justifiable pride

The pride had to be spread the thinnest. There were over a thousand Wildcat students who beamed just as brightly as Ecker after the young coach's charges had swept off with a regional championship on their own court Friday at the expense of Barrington, 63-53.

The title triumph extended Wheeling's longest winning streak to 12 and advanced them to sectional action for the second time in three years. They'll face New Trier East Wednesday at Fremd

High School in Palatine, as one of the 64 teams still remaining in this year's prep state tournament chase.

The fame and glory went to chaps who've carried the brunt of Wheeling's offensive attack all season. "I just can't say enough about Mike," Ecker sounded out on his classy 6-0 senior guard Mike Groot, the tourney's leading scorer,

GROOT POURED in 73 points over the three game set, assisted eight more scoring plays and was credited with seven recoveries. His defensive play was outstanding. Most important, his scoring always seem to come at critical moments, when the 'Cat offense was lagging or the opposition has a rally under

"He really carried the load for us this past week, especially over the past two games." Ecker added. "There were four other kids out there scrapping with Mike, and they all wanted a regional championship pretty badly, but I think he wanted it more than anybody." Wood's role in the tourney may have been underscored by Groot's magnificent play but it was every bit as decisive, even in the Friday contest when he only saw action for little more than half a

"Rog plays one of the most important parts in our objective before he even goes for the opening tip. He's big and he's got a reputation now. The opposition, in formulating their plans before playing us, have got to consider a defense for him of primary importance."

Ecker has observed this to have had definite effect on Wheeling's foes all season, "They don't seem to go to the inside as much as they'd like to. And of course, in guarding Rog and tightening things up around him they allow us a little more freedom outside."

That edge helped Wheeling throttle Barrington in the finale before Wood was even thumbed out of the game with his fifth foul halfway through period three. The Bronchos had a meager five field goals at that time - all on outside shots And Barrington trailed Wheeling by over a season ladened with outstanding performances, it goes down in log book as a major milestone in his prep career. His 10-point total hiked his two-year point production to 855, moving into 12th place in Paddock's all time area scoring honor roll.

Ironically, though it was Wood's lowest scoring game of the week, and definetely not one of his best efforts 871.

easily move as high as ninth on that area honor list with just one more average performance. Directly in front of him now are Arlington's Chuck Close with 856 points, Forest View's Pat Dunnigan at 862 and Palatine's Dave Hasbach at

More than 1,500 officials of the veterans' organization attended the meeting. This annual conference reviews the organization's progress and plans future programs. At the national commander's reception and banquet, conference delegates had a chance to meet their congressional representatives.

PROSPECT HIGH SCHOOL is the only lage officials could contact Dist. 214 offibuilding in the village with a seating caing to village officials.

Under the proposed ordinance, estimated attendance will be based on seating capacity. With a seating capacity of 1,500 persons or more, one fire guard must be provided; 2,000 persons or more. one fire guard and one policeman; 3,000 persons or more, two fire guards and two policemen; and 5,000 or more, three fire guards and three policemen.

Fire and police guards would be paid by the sponsor of the activity at a regular hourly rate based on the patrolman's and fireman's present salary. The guards would be off-duty, Mount Prospect firemen and policemen designated by the chiefs of the departments.

The proposed ordinance was introduced to the board Dec. 1. Discussion of the ordinance was postponed until vil-

VILLAGE ATTY. John Zimmermann. who drafted the ordinance, explained to the board that the ordinance would not affect regular school activities. It was designed to provide protection at extracurricular activities such as basketball games, dances, rallies or whenever the public is invited and there's an admission charge.

Zimmermann said Dist. 214 already has a similar agreement with Arlington Heights. "The school district pays for fire guards to be on duty at Arlington. John Hersey and Forest View high schools for public gatherings." he said.

Zimmermann explained that the reason for hiring Mount Prospect personnel is to provide men with knowledge of lo cal ordinances and procedures, then we're defeating our purpose which is to provide fire and police protection on the premises," he said.

Board, Negotiator To Meet Tonight

The Mount Prospect Dist 57 school board will meet with its professional negotiator, Richard Zwieback, behind closed doors tonight to discuss the 1971-1972 contract proposals of the Mount Prospect Education Association

"We will discuss the package and then determine some of the things we think should be negotiated," said board member Leo Floros "One of those will be a no-strike clause "

Salary increases, additional personnel and more teacher benefits are among the teacher proposals that were formally presented to the board negotiations team on Feb 22

According to board member Jack Ronchetto, if all the proposals the teachers have maed are granted, district spending would rise about $500,000 to $600,000. "This amount is equivalent to a tax rate increase of 50 to 60 cents." Ronchetto

HE SAID INCREASING taxes 50 to 60 cents "would cost the average home owner with property assessed at $10,000, $50 or $60 more in real estate taxes '

Currently it is costing district residents $1.67 per $100 assessed valuation for the education fund portion of their school tax bil' Most of this fund goes for salaries

Paddock Wins NIEA Awards

Paddock Publications has won several top awards in the 1971 Northern Illinois Editorial Association contest

The presentations were announced and made Friday during the 10th annual spring convention of the NIEA in Aurora The NIEA serves a 29-county area of northern Illinois

In competition judged by the Northern Illinois University journalism department. Paddock entered six daily newspaper categories and one non-daily category, and won a total of five first place awards, one second and a special first place award

Makeup and Appearance, Best Local Sports Section, Photography Excellence and Best Local Feature Story (won by Paddock special assignment reporter Brad Brekke

Paddock also won a second place award in the Best Society Section category in the daily newspaper contest

In the last daily category Paddock entered, Food and Nutrition, it won a special first place award for its regular Thursday supplement, "Sugar and Spice '

In the non-daily category, the Addison Register, now published by the sub-sidiary Paddock DuPage Newspapers, won a first place award for Best Society Section

These are the latest of many awards won by Paddock Publications newspapers Last fall Paddock was cited as having the best daily newspaper in Illinois by the Illinois Press Association Competing with Paddock for that award were Chicago daily newspapers as well others in Illinois and extra paid fringe benefits

"The educational tax fund rate in this district is as high as any surrounding district and considerably higher than some," Ronchetto said "There simply is no ready source of funds available to us" Ronchetto said that if all the teacher proposals were accepted, the school board may have to go to the community and ask for a referendum.

Currently the district has about a $170,000 deficit of which Ronchetto blames a large part on the 1970-71 salary settlement between the board and the MPEA made in September The figure also includes an additional $10,670 in expenditures approved by the board recently to take care of already exhausted and over-expended accounts

RONCHETTO SAID the board has made an effort to avoid deficit spending because "the interest cost on borrowing requires outlays which otherwise could be spent on education materials and more teachers" and that "long-range projections indicate no new sources of funds will be available "

The school board expects the district's 1971-72 enrollment to be 200 fewer than this year. That means the district may lose money in state aid which is based on the number of children attending school in the district

Ronchetto also said that salary increases presented by the MPEA at a public forum recently "range considerably higher than 10.5 per cent." At the forum MPEA negotiations chairman David Metzler said that "compared to last year's salary schedule we are asking from zero to 101/2 per cent increases "

EVEN WITHOUT the sizable increases already built into the schedule, additional salary increments amount to as much as $1,650," Ronchetto said. He said proposed increases could go as high as 16

Besides salary increases, the MPEA is asking for 22 additional staff members including librarians, remedial reading teachers, learning disabilities teachers and a speech correctionist. Also included is an additional psychologist, nurse and social worker

Floros said that 22 is the same number which the district plans to reduce the teaching staff next year under a staff plan it has tentatively adopted

Floros added, however, that it was "highly unlikely" any teachers would lose their jobs in the staff reduction. This is because the district hopes to reduce its staff by simply not replacing those who leave the district

"NO COMPETENT teacher needs to fear for his job," Floros said. He did say that shifts in schools and grade levels may occur because of the change in

A salary negotiations meeting is scheduled for March 22 Floros said the negotiation team and Zwieback, will be at the meeting to present additional issues for negotiation.

No agenda has yet been agreed upon for the meeting. Metzler has said the MPEA bargaining team will not attend the meeting unless a written agenda is approved According to procedural agreement between the board and the MPEA both sides must agree on a future agenda at a previous meeting.

That barrier exists for an estimated 850 non-English-speaking families who live in the area. Some have lived here for years and are too embarrassed or too poor to ask or hire someone to teach them English, according to officials at the center Others have never tried to learn English. Some are new in the area and just don't know where to turn.

NOW THEY CAN get help for just the cost of a few cheap textbooks.

More than 30 volunteers are working at the Trinity-Laubach Literacy Center in Mount Prospect, which opened in January, to help break down the barric a d e s facing non-English speaking people. They are teaching them English how to write, read and speak it from the first grade level right up to the junior

Twice a week 19 students, from 14 to 45 years old, meet for 90 minutes with their tutors On Tuesdays and Thursdays it's noisy in the basement of the Trinity United Methodist Church, 805 W. Golf Rd, Mount Prospect, as Spanish-Americans, Cubans, Germans, Greeks, Italians and Iranians recite their lessons. They and their tutors use the material developed by the late Frank Laubach, a missionary who believed in "each one, teach one" method of learning a strange language. The tutor instructs the student with the hope that the student will someday become a tutor

The tutors are people from Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights, Des Plaines, Elk Grove Village and Palatine who, after a 10-hour training session, arm themselves with patience and a readiness to pantomime when neces-

TRANSLATION IS NOT allowed "It's essential that tutors don't translate. When the students look at a chair we want them to think it's a "chair" and nothing else - we want them to think in English," said Sandy Leneau of Mount Prospect, a co-director of the center

She and Patricia Sanberg of Palatine are co-founders of the local center Both women used to teach at a literacy center in Chicago, and, "instead of spending an hour driving to the city each way we thought we'd put that hour to good use and establish one here," Mrs Sanberg said "The need is just as great"

The individual tutoring is free Students must purchase workbooks generally costing no more than $1.60 apiece. By printing, reading, reciting and homework exercises the students eventually begin to grasp the language of their new home.

According to Mrs. Leneau, the student starts with learning consonant sounds. small and capital letters and works his way up to adjectives and adverbs — a process similar to the one taught in most elementary schools The Laubach series includes five books and after a student passes the final test of one book, he gets a certificate.

"A VOLUNTEER has to have patience and be willing to believe the system works," Mrs. Leneau said. "You never tell a student he is doing wrong, you must always encourage him." Besides verbal encouragement, the center provides supplementary material at various levels as reinforcement. There are stories in U.S. history, fiction and even love stories. A "Be Informed" series of pamphlets is available to teach the new English speaking residents car and home buying, banking, taxes, and even job finding A newspaper is published weekly at both the fourth and seventh grade level to keep students informed on current events.

"Our goal is to teach them English and help them with everyday problems," Mrs. Leneau said "Comprehension is where it's at A student works at his own pace, and once they start they are in ear-

But even with a desire to learn, a student can't do it alone Devoted tutors, willing to sacrifice at least 90 minutes a week, are the key to the program

"IT'S THE one-to-one relationship that seals the program," Mrs. Leneau said. "A relationship develops as a student learns from his tutor." The learning process is not just one-way either. Tutors learn about various customs and backgrounds from their students

More non-English speaking residents of the Northwest suburbs are now on waiting lists to learn to speak the language. But more volunteers are needed so they can. Anyone interested in becoming a tutor can contact Pat Sanberg at 358-9362

PTA Group To Meet On Aide Plan

The Lions Park School PTA legislation committee will meet tonight to decide what action it will pursue to change the state qualifications necessary to be a volunteer teacher's aide.

Mrs Donald Hellikson, president of the PTA at Dist. 57 Lions Park School, said a resolution might be drawn up for presentation at the state convention of the Illinois Congress of Parent and Teachers (ICPT) in April. The ICPT is a PTA lobby group in Springfield.

"This resolution would probably deal with asking the (state) superintendent of public instruction to change the interpretation of aide requirements," she said. If the resolution is drawn up, it must be approved by the general membership of the PTA before it is sent to the ICPT legislative committee in

MRS. HELLIKSON met with State Rep Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, Thursday to ask for help to change the current requirement that volunteers must have 30 semester hours of college credit to work with teachers in instructing children in the classroom. Mrs. Chapman recommended the committee submit a resolution to the ICPT.

According to the Illinois School Code, the superintendent of public instruction sets the requirements of volunteers who work either with children or those who perform clerical duties. According to the most recent interpretation, made in 1968 under Ray Page, a volunteer must have the 30 hours to help instruct Good character and health, U. S citizenship, an annual chest X-ray and working under the supervision of a certified teacher are the other requirements.

No interpretation has been received from Michael Bakalis, the new supermtendent of public instruction who recently moved into the offices in Spring-

ACCORDING TO Mrs Hellikson, the Lions Park PTA already submitted one resolution to the ICPT legislative committee in December but it was rejected She said it was rejected because the ICPT Committee said they had approved a similar resolution in 1969. That resolution, which was adopted as part of the school code, called upon the state to provide the guidelines for the use of paraprofessionals in schools and encourage school districts to make use of volunteer personnel

Mrs Chapman said "the rules and regulations have to be clarified. The state statutes are all right" She said "it seems different school districts interpret the rules and regulations in different

LAST JUNE after complaints from parents of students at Fairview School. the Dist. 57 school board set a policy on the qualifications of volunteers That policy requires that volunteers who work with children must have 30 hours of credit According to Mrs Hellikson, Lions Park School had a "smooth-running" volunteer program for two years. When the board policy was set, the school lost volunteers who helped instruct because they did not have the required hours.

"If I can help getting attention at the office of superintendent of public instruction (OSPI) I will," said Mrs. Chapman. "But these things take time especially when one administration is taking over from another."

Fire Chief Links Blaze At Patton School To Arson

by WANDALYN RICE

The score was tied in the girl's floor hockey game between Patton and Park schools at about 4 30 p.m. Friday

And then the game ended The building was on fire

The fire broke out in a paper storage cabinet in Room 5 of Patton School and was reported by a kindergarten teacher working in a room next door

which Fire Chief Harvey Carothers said were apparently caused by arson

Students at the floor hockey game in the multi-purpose room down the hall from the fire were evacuated from the building without incident

Besides the children in the multi-purpose room a number of teachers were in the building when the fire broke out, principal Al Holt said.

Dist. 25 Supt. Donald Strong, who arrived on the scene shortly after the fire to survey the damage, said the district carries $5,000 deductible fire insurance.

Crews worked over the weekend making temporary repairs in the rooms and James Monroe, director of building and grounds, said he expected the rooms to be ready for children this morning.

Paddock Publications has won several top awards in the 1971 Northern Illinois Editorial Association contest.

The presentations were announced and made Friday during the 10th annual spring convention of the NIEA in Aurora. The NIEA serves a 29-county area of northern Illinois.

In competition judged by the Northern Illinois University journalism department, Paddock entered six daily newspaper categories and one non-daily category, and won a total of five first place awards, one second and a special first place award.

In the daily newspaper contest, Paddock newspapers won first place awards in the following categories:

Makeup and Appearance, Best Local Sports Section, Photography Excellence and Best Local Feature Story (won by Paddock special assignment reporter Brad Brekke.)

Paddock also won a second place award in the Best Society Section category in the daily newspaper contest.

In the last daily category Paddock entered, Food and Nutrition, it won a special first place award for its regular Thursday supplement, "Sugar and Spice."

In the non-daily category, the Addison Register, now published by the subsidiary Paddock DuPage Newspapers, won a first place award for Best Society

Great... For Winners

by BARRY SIGALE

What can you say about a basketball championship game that is nerve-racking and a nail biter down to the final seconds – and then goes into overtime?

What can you say when two well coached, poised basketball teams show consistent excellence throughout the final contest only to have to begin again the quest for a title in three minutes of an extra stanza?

What can you say when 10 players charge back and forth, up and down, under and through each other for 35 battling minutes and then are only separated by a heart thumping four points.

All you can say is, "Whew!" Just 75 cents for students and $1.50 for adults brought an outstanding evening of excitement Friday night as Arlington High School's Cardinals defeated Maine West's Warriors 80-76 in overtime of the final match of the Prospect Regional Basketball Tournament, a five day extravaganza for Northwest Suburban schools, held in Mount Prospect. To Arlington, conquerors of Maine West by only a scant two points earlier this season in a nonconference game, went the championship trophy and the right to challenge North Chicago at the Fremd Sectional, Tuesday night. FOR MAINE WEST, it was an empty consolation, that of receiving the second place trophy, symbolizing its runner up status, meaning only they were the second best team in the tourney, and that they would now do nothing more than return to Des Plaines and recount the good and bad moments of the 1970-71 sea-

More than 3,000 fans nearly filled Prospect's gymnasium to see the Cardinals, champions of the Mid-Suburban League, do battle with the Warriors, co-champs with Maine South of the Central Suburban League.

And the rooters in the stands stalemated when it came to the enthusiasm shown for each team.

Bak and forth the cheers went, first Arlington's rooting section on the northwest side of the gym, then Maine West's on the opposite side. Arlington's cheerleaders choreographed a pyramid, and West's cheerleaders did the same.

THE GAME BEGAN, and it was obvious the players were cooler than some of the fans Arlington's wizard-ofa-guard, 6-1 John Brodnan, poked through the maze of the taller Maine West team for some razzle-dazzle baskets West's Bruce Kerr, a 6-9 stringbean, arched lazily through the air to convert lob passes into two point plays But when an official gave Maine West the ball when it was obvious they were the last to touch it before it went out of bounds, a spectator pitched what resembled a cigarette package at the referee.

Then there was the case of several apparently Maine West partisans, who throughout the game kept shouting nearobscenities at Arlington's Mike Cleveland When the game was clinched for Arlington with only a few seconds left, Cleveland silenced his detractors by raising a clenched fist in victory.

These isolated incidents, however, didn't detract from what turned out to be a classy ball game. It's too bad one team had to lose, according to the reaction of some of the fans. And, in their minds, both teams were winners.

A Canadian who moved to Arlington Heights about three years ago and brought the love of ice hockey with him was awarded the Distinguished Service Award Friday night

Robert E Clark, Arlungton Heights leading man in the Jaycees' youth hockey program was chosen on the basis of "voluntary service" to the village and "demonstrated leadership during the calendar year 1970" The award is presented to an outstanding citizen each year by the Arlington Heights Jaycees

Clark, 527 S Dryden, is the main powerhouse behind the organization of the Javcees youth hockey program which, in its second year this year, involves about 140 boys, ages 7 through 16 years old.

The award-winner was nominated by two Arlington Heights residents, Mrs. Russell Gardner, 408 S. Bristol, and William Schumann, 1104 N. Derbyshire.

BOTH NOMINATIONS cited the tremendous amount of time which Clark has devoted to development of the hockey program. Mrs Gardner also mentioned that Clark has been a Sunday

St. Viator Clerics Announce Land Plans

by SANDRA BROWNING

The Clerics of St. Viator say they are not planning to use any more than 15 acres of their land in Arlington Heights for residential development

The Clerics agreed last June to set aside is acres of their land which contains St. Viator High School, 1213 E. Oakton St., for a development of low, moderate and upper-income housing.

This fall, the Clerics announced they had reached an agreement with the Metropolitan Housing Development Corporation (MHDC) on the development of that land. MHDC presented its proposal for a moderate income, multi-family to the Arlungton Heights Plan Commission for the first time Wednesday night. During the questioning, some people asked whether the 15-acre development was just the first to be proposed for the entire 80-acre parcel.

The Viatorian Provincial, the Rev. Edward Anderson, said the Clerics have "indefinite plans for the high school." These plans could include expansion of school and athletic facilities which would require additional land.

THE LAND IS bounded by Oakton on the north, Dryden Place on the west and Euclid Avenue on the south. The eastern boundary is the backyards of homes which face onto Drury Lane

St. Viator High School is in the northern portion of the property, with the 15acre development being proposed for the southeastern corner. This area presently contains some small trees and shrubs.

Also on the 80-acre parcel is a novitiate which was used for seminary students until Sept., 1968. At present, the ground floor of the building is leased to the Northwest Suburban Montessori School and members of the Viatorian Order live

Father Anderson said the Clerics are definitely planning on using the novitiate and need land surrounding it.

The entire parcel of land, which was purchased about 20 years ago from a single owner, also includes a convent,

Father Anderson said the agreement between MHDC and the Clerics includes the provision that if the project cannot be built, the land will revert to Viatorian order. He said he could not release information on the exact terms of the agree-

THE VIATORIAN order has owned the 80-acre parcel for about 20 years, Father Anderson said It was purchased from a single owner who had used a portion of the property for farming.

The order constructed St. Viator High School which graduated its first class in 1964. The Chicago Province of the Order includes about 200 members and operates four other high schools in Illinois.

booked onto the truck and dumped in They found him in a garbage can with the rest of the trash the men had collected that they saw him. Finally out from under the pile, he jumped off the rear of the truck and started running, blindly.

Alerted by the Laseke workers, Korn finally caught up with the blood-covered animal near the village garage on North Ridge Avenue.

'He was really a good dog," said Korn. "He didn't give me any trouble when I put a lead on him. But he yelped anytime I moved his head at all.'

Korn said he was a medium-size. brown dog, "He obviously hadn't eaten in a long time - he was very skinny and when he vomited, nothing came up," the patrolman added

Korn completely ruled out the possibility the dog was hit by a car. "That was the only mark on the dog. I've seen hundreds of dogs hit by cars, but I've never seen one with such a serious injury and not another mark on him," the patrolman said "HE WAS HIT over the head with a blunt object," Korn explained. The patroiman added, "Besides. there's no way he could've gotten into that garbage can by himself."

Korn said he will continue to investigate the incident.

He'll probably never determine what happened to the animal, who owned him, or even what his name was.

He wasn't pure-bred - just a good old mutt. But someone sure had something against him.

Anyway he's dead and gone now, and his barking will never bother anyone. Ever again.

Girl, Struck By Truck, Reported In Fair Condition

An 18-year-old Mount Prospect girl was seriously injured early Friday morning when she was run over by a truck on Northwest Highway at Vail Avenue, Arlington Heights.

Kathleen Scheib, of 17 N. Kenilworth, Mount Prospect, was admitted to the intensive care unit at Northwest Community Hospital in serious condition. She was reported in "fair" condition yesterday. A hospital spokesman said the girl received multiple injuries in the accident.

Arlington Heights police said Miss Scheib was struck by a van-type vehicle driven by Raymond P. Woss, 54, of 217 S. Highland Ave., Arlington Heights.

Woss told police he was stopped on Vail Avenue a Northwest Highway, facing north, waiting for a traffic light. Miss Scheib reportedly was waiting for the same light, and was also facing north.

Woss said when the light turned green, he made a right turn onto Northwest Highway, heard a thump and stopped his truck. He said he first saw the girl lying in the roadway.

Witnesses to the accident said both the right front and right rear wheels ran over the girl after she was knocked to the pavement.

Vote Campaign linas, Kan. Nearing The End

by WANDALYN RICE

The Dist, 25 referendum campaign began winding down last week as the governor appounced increases in state aid for next year are "slightly less" than anticipated by the district.

Gov. Richard Ogilvie's proposed budget, which will increase state aid to education by $51 million, will not significantly affect the budget projections that have been made by the district for next year, Supt. Donald Strong said.

The district had already figured an increase in state aid when it projected the need for $900,000 in new revenue, he said. The $900,000 would be provided if voters authorize an increase of 50 cents per $100 assessed value in the education fund tax rate to be held Saturday.

"The increase in state aid is not viewed as a windfall and it is clearly less than the needs," Strong said. He added that it is slightly less than the budget projections, but was "within the ball-

Even as the governor was announcing his state aid proposal, district officials, members of the board of education and citizen speakers were participating in the next to the last week of referendum campaign coffees.

THOSE ATTENDING the coffees were mostly favorable last week, said Robert Boos, director of administration and planning As a result the total ratio of favorable to unfavorable voters who have attended coffees rose to 11 to 1.

"I feel a growing optimism but we are just hopeful that those people who have indicated they understand the issue will realize they must come out and vote affirmatively." Boos said. The district will have held nearly 275 coffees by Saturday, he said, short of the 300 goal that was set at the beginning of the campaign.

This week will see only a few, including some at schools specifically for anyone who has not yet been to a coffee, Boos said. Volunteer campaign workers are now concentrating on building a list of "ves" voters who will be contacted on election day and reminded to vote.

"I don't know what more we could have done to personalize the issues to the community," Boos said. "In terms of contacts with the public this has been a fulfilling exercise.

Appointment Of Prickett Hit By Candidate, VIP

The city's hiring of a former alderman as building commissioner came under fire Friday from a second ward aidermanic candidate and the local Voters Independent Party (VIP).

George Olen, 1242 White St., who is seeking the second ward seat left vacant by the retirement last month of former Alderman Alfred Prickett, called Prickett's appointment last week to the building commissioner job "phoney" and "not in good taste."

Prickett, who now resides in Powers Lake, Wis., was named to the $15,106a-year post last Monday. Formerly of 1026 Des Plaines Ave., Prickett left the council Feb. 1, after serving 18 years as an alderman.

James Baker, 130 N. Third Ave., chairman of VIP, said Prickett's appointment by Mayor Herbert Behrel was "wrong, dead wrong." In a statement, Baker said his group, which unsuccessfully opposed Behrel and several city council incumbents in the 1969 elections, is outraged at the hiring of a recently resigned alderman to the high city post.

BAKER SAID Prickett was offered the job before city officials talked to one of the 25 or 26 applicants that Behrel last week said were interviewed for the post. Olen also charged Prickett was unoffically hired as building commissioner well before his Feb. 2 resignation from the city council

Prickett, 60, retired recently as engineering department chief for Western Electric Co.'s Hawthorne Works in Cicero. He has been provided with a cityowned car to make the daily trip of about 60 miles from his Powers Lake retirement home, but said last week that he plans to commute on the Chicago and North Western Rwy, from Genoa City, Olen, a member of the city human relations commission and a salesman for Midwest Concrete Products Co., is one of three men seeking the city council seat vacated by Prickett in the upcoming April 20 aldermanic elections.

The VIP, which has been highly critical of the Behrel administration, is backing its 1969 mayoral candidate. B. Spencer Chase, 1140 Alfini Dr., in the third ward aldermanic race against Ald. John

In his statement, Baker said by obtaining unanimous city council approval of Prickett's nomination, "Mayor Behrel has again proven he runs a powerful city hall machine."

"WE HAVE talked to some of the aldermen, and it is obvious Prickett is weil-liked and respected by the council." said Baker. "As has been said by others, we do not question his honesty, integrity. nor his dedication to the new position."

"But all of this plus his engineering degree does not make his appointment right," he said.

"There may not be a question of legality in this appointment, but a law does not have to be written nor an ordinance passed to make something wrong. This appointment by Behrel was wrong, dead wrong," said Baker.

Olen said it was common knowledge around city hall well before Prickett resigned as alderman that he would be appointed to head the building department.

"I have talked to seven different people who are city officials and they all knew all about it," Olen said. "They knew he was unofficially appointed building commissioner" while still on the council, said Olen.

The aldermanic candidate said Prickett should have left the council earlier and made known his intention to take the building commissioner job.

WHEN ASKED if he thinks Prickett should resign, Olen said "maybe not resign, but it should be brought out into the open exactly what did go on from the very start to satisfy the people."

Olen said he does not doubt that Prickett, an engineer, is qualified for the job and familiar with the needs of the city. "But I am completely confused as to why the appointment was made in such an unprofessional way," he said.

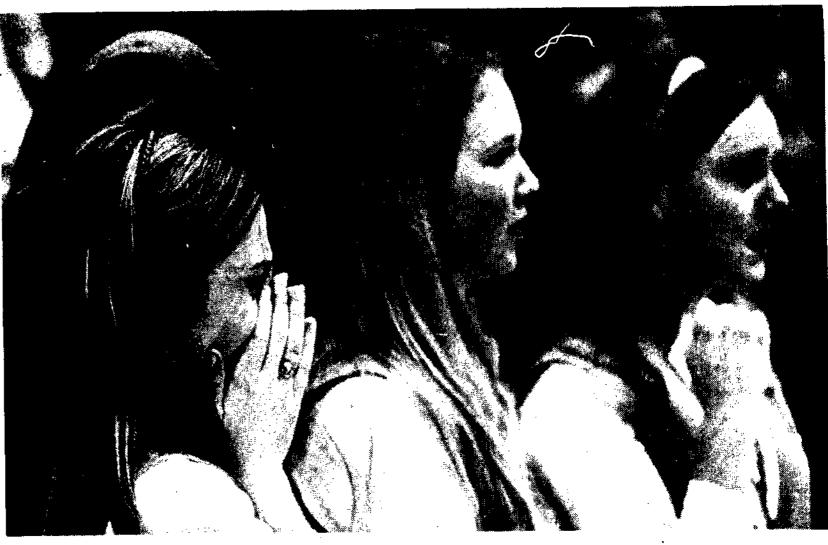

"I knew, and so did others two months ago, that (Prickett's) appointment was a sure thing. Why, then, did the mayor waste the time of the many people who were interviewed and the people who were doing the interviewing?" he said.

"I don't know why they ever interviewed 27 people. I would imagine that all 27 of these people are pretty perturbed with the city government right now," Olen said.

When Prickett's appointment was discussed at a meeting of his campaign workers last week, Olen said, "there wasn't one person in that group who wasn't totally perturbed. It was so phoney."

But One Team Had To Lose

by BARRY SIGALE

What can you say about a basketball championship game that is nerve-racking and a nail biter down to the final seconds and then goes into overtime?

What can you say when two well coached, poised basketball teams show consistent excellence throughout the final contest only to have to begin again the quest for a title in three minutes of an extre stanza?

What can you say when 10 players charge back and forth, up and down, under and through each other for 35 battling minutes and then are only separated this season in a nonconference game, pect's gymnasium to see the Cardinals, by a heart thumping four points. All you can say is, "Whew!"

Just 75 cents for students and $1.50 for adults brought an outstanding evening of excitement Friday night as Arlington High School's Cardinals defeated Maine West's Warriors 80-76 in overtime of the final match of the Prospect Regional Basketball Tournament, a five day extravaganza for Northwest Suburban schools, held in Mount Prospect.

To Arlington, conquerors of Maine West by only a scant two points earlier went the championship trophy and the right to challenge North Chicago at the Fremd Sectional, Tuesday night.

FOR MAINE WEST, it was an empty consolation, that of receiving the second place trophy, symbolizing its runner up status, meaning only they were the second best team in the tourney, and that they would now do nothing more than return to Des Plaines and recount the good and bad moments of the 1970-71 sea-

mated when it came to the enthusiasm shown for each team Bak and forth the cheers went, first Arlington's rooting section on the northwest side of the gym, then Maine West's on the opposite side. Arlington's cheerleaders choreographed a pyramid, and West's cheerleaders did the same.

THE GAME BEGAN, and it was obvious the players were cooler than some of the fans. Arlington's wizard-ofa-guard, 6-1 John Brodnan, poked through the maze of the taller Maine West team for some razzle-dazzle baskets. West's Bruce Kerr, a 6-9 stringbean, arched lazily through the air to convert lob passes into two point plays.

But when an official gave Maine West the ball when it was obvious they were the last to touch it before it went out of bounds, a spectator pitched what resembled a cigarette package at the referee.

Then there was the case of several apparently Maine West partisans, who throughout the game kept shouting nearobscenities at Arlington's Mike Cleveland. When the game was clinched for Arlington with only a few seconds left, Cleveland silenced his detractors by raising a clenched fist in victory.

These isolated incidents, however, didn't detract from what turned out to be a classy ball game. It's too bad one team had to lose, according to the reaction of some of the fans. And, in their minds, both teams were winners.

Residents Learn Deacons' Duties

by LEON SHURE

"I see it as a continuation of my service to the church."

This is the way a Northwest suburban resident described his desire to become a descon in the Roman Catholic Church

He is one of seven area residents DRFticipating in the first Roman Catholic deacon-training program.

Descons are common in Protestant churches but until very recently, only a candidate for priesthood could be a deacon in the Roman Catholic faith.

CHURCH REFORMS, stemming out of the Second Vatican Council, have revived the ancient church practice of having descone who are not studying for the priesthood, and who may be married.

The re-creation of the deaconate was meant to give more responsibility to members of the individual churches, and to give aid to priests, according to one of the descon candidates.

Those descons who successfully complete a newly created two-year study program, which began Feb. 2, will be allowed to fulfill all the priestly jobs, except saying mass, hearing confessions, or ancieting the sick, according to officials of the Archdiocese of Chicago.

After becoming descors, most of the men will return to their home parishes to work, according to the Rev. John Ring, executive director of the program. Some, with special skills, may work with community groups, he said.

Descon candidates attend twice-weekly study sessions after their usual work day. For the Northwest suburban men in the program, class is held Tuesday nights at the Quigley Seminary, 103 E. Chestnut, Chicago, and Thursday nights at the Niles College of Loyola University, near north suburban Niles.

THOSE NORTHWEST suburban men accepted into the program are: John Devron, 338 N. Morris Dr., Palatine;; Robert Flynn, 1804 Mannheim Rd., Des Plaines: Dennis LaSota, 1844 Fargo, Des Plaines; John Pistone, 919 E. Slayton Dr., Palatine: John Richard, 631 Bei Aire Terr., Palatine; Harry Walsh, 1330 Cumberland, Elk Grove Village; and James Whittle, 2185 Spruce, Des Plaines.

These men are among 130 chosen to be a part of the first Chicago-area deacon training program. The Chicago program is the 11th in the nation. The Archdiocesan Office for the Permanent Disconate, 1300 S. Wabash, was established last spring by John Cardinal Cody, archbishop of Chicago.

The program has been opened only to tnon. The application of a Des Plaines housewife, Mrs. Polly O'Grady was rejected by the Archdiocesan office.

The candidates will learn communication skills, according to Father Ahern, who like Father McLaughlin, is an assistant professor at Niles College, which is the seminary for Loyola University. Communications skills include speaking, listening and learning to confront issues in a constructive way.

The candidates also will learn ministerial skills, including preaching, teaching adult education classes, organizational skills, and the role of the parish in the community.

Northwest suburbs are no exception. For those who'd rather save than lick, the Northwest Philatelic (French for stamp collecting) Club meets twice a month in Mount Prospect to buy, sell, swap and talk stamps. "WE FORMED TO stimulate collecting for those getting acquainted with the hobby and as a place for those who already have it in their blood," said Bill Liebetrau, president of the club now in its seventh year. The club has more than 30 members.

Those who have it in their blood range from high-school age to the several 79year-old members of the club. Even grade-schoolers are invited if they bring a parent with them.

'Stamp collecting is like taking a trip through history," explained Liebetrau as he thumbed through the album containing his Germany collection "For example, here's the stamp used for postage when the United States occupied Germany after World War II."

Besides his hobby, Liebetrau is also a part-time dealer. "Stamp collecting can be both fun and money-making," he said, for "about 40 years ago when my father was sorting stamps and I sneezed."

THE PROBLEM is that once a collector builds up his collection, he usually sticks it in a bank vault for protection. If he wants to take a look, he has to take a trip to the bank.

"Collecting becomes an investment."

Most people forget about stamps until said 20-year-old member Steve Whitcomb. "Then you have to protect it." Whitcomb started collecting when he was seven and thought "it was pretty." Now he realizes it's also "terribly expensive

"The goal is always to strive for completion of your collection," said Liebetrau. The more you need the stamp, the more it will cost you. Liebetrau said that while there are exceptions, most stamps are priced according to a combination of their age and limited printing. Prices range from a penny to hundreds of thousands of dollars. Last March a stamp was sold to a collector for $280,000. The stamp was the only known one of its kind issued by British Guinea.

IN THE UNITED STATES "the most popular stamps are U.S. because this is your country," said Liebetrau. But he said there really is no expensive market for United States stamps since 1940 because the same stamps have been reis-

Selecting which country to collect determines how many stamps are needed to complete a collection, according to Liebetrau. "Russia has issued 4,000 different stamps since the 1860's while Great Britian is now only starting the 600's," he said. "But it's interesting because there's always the idea of doing something and accumulating it," he said.

Harper Hit On Building Costs

Harper College in Palatine has come under sharp fire from a state official for allegedly excessive construction costs.

John McCarter, state director of the budget, asserted last week that Harper was constructed at a cost of $39.04 per square foot, while Schaumburg High School, "down the road" was built for $16.87 per square foot.

"We've got to recognize that we're not building palaces, but educational institutions, and the time for that realization is now," said McCarter.

McCarter also cited the "plush" administrative offices at University of IIIInois Chicago Circle campus as examples of such spending. HARPER COLLEGE officials declined yesterday to comment publicly about the charges. However, the college's listed cost figure for the construction which is completed is $25.99 per square foot, or $14 under McCarter's figures.

Ogilvie's budget message to the state legislature slashes $187 million from the $859 million budget requests from public colleges and universities across Illinois.

The message has been criticized by educators and Lester W. Brann Jr., president of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce, who said yesterday he is wary of

The Silver Star is the nation's third highest award for gallantry.

Jackson, pilot of a medical evacuation helicopter earned the medal on Jan. 28 while attempting to rescue a wound man under enemy fire. According to the citation, Jackson "braved heavy enemy fire" despite a painful wound in his hand in an attempt to hoist an injured man aboard the aircraft.

"After twice coming under vicious enemy fire," the citation said, he was forced to fly the aircraft to safety "because of serious damage."

Jackson has been in the Army for 13 years. He served previously in combat in Vietnam and returned there in October after training as a helicopter pilot.

According to Baker, Prickett was offered the job as head of the department of building and zoning "before the mayor had even talked to one applicant."

"HE HAS BEEN quoted as saying he will only take it for two years. We don't need a temporary building commissioner. We need new talent with fresh thinking, someone who can grow with the city," said Baker.

"In the ensuing weeks of the aldermanic campaign, we intend to make this a strong issue and bring this information to the attention of the voters," he said.

Prickett replaces Raymond Schuepfer, who resigned as building commissioner last November. City Engineer Robert Bowen had been named acting building commissioner until last week when Prickett was hired.

abandonment of the anachronistic sport of heresy-hunting, the President of the Lutheran Church, Missouri Synod, was busy imposing a theological inquisition upon the faculty of his denomination's Concordia Seminary in St. Louis.

The Vatican's Sacred Congregation For The Doctrine of The Faith has quite sensibly announced that it no longer will use the word heretic. And rather than reacting to variant opinion with fire, sword, or obloquy suggesting eternal damnation, it will instead censure as erroneous and this only after due consultation with the accused, his bishop and two independent theologians.

In St. Louis, the faculty of Concordia Seminary charged in effect that it was being subjected to an unholy inquisition by Missouri Synod president J.A.O. Preuss. Preuss' probe was described by the faculty as "unscriptural . . . unethical . . unrealistic . . . divisive . . . disruptive .

. . detrimental . . . . ' "Such an extraordinary procedure," charged the embattled faculty, "threatens to jeopardize the accreditation not only of this seminary, but of every institution in our synodical system."

FOR PREUSS, WHO beleives that Adam and Eve were historical beings and that Jonah was literally swallowed by a great fish, has appointed a "fact finding commission," designed apparently to flush out alleged heterodoxy at Con-

Among five commissioners is Dr. Paul Zimmerman of Ann Arbor, who (seriously) contends that the world was created in six days of 24 hours each. Another commissioner is South Wisconsin District president Karl Barth (no relation to the famed theologian) who has publicly demanded that Wisconsin's State Department of Natural Resources stop maintaining that the earth is more than six thousand years old.

The effect of this Preuss probe has been described by the ordinarily staid and conservative Protestant monthly Christian Herald as "The Missouri Synod Civil War" - in predicting a possible schism in the three million-member denomination.

Even if Preuss is somehow checked (or even recalled from office) at the denomination's biennial convention next July, the "Misery Synod" has another leading heresy-hunter in John Warwick Montgomery of Deerfield. Montgomery, chairman of the church history department at Deerfield's ultraconservative Trinity Evangelical Divinity School, has far more academic distinctions than Preuss - which achievements he is by no means reluctant to display.

For instance, he recently participated in a debate at San Diego State College, where he arrived equipped with a mimeographed resume and biographical sketch, which was five pages long, with 140 entries.

THIS IMPRESSIVE document (which' is more than twice the size of the resume of renowned theologian Rheinhold Niebuhr) advised that Montgomery is among "2000 Men of Achievement" and listed in four different Who's Who: In America, In France, In the Midwest and in Library Science. (Mention of the fact that he earned his Ph.D. in library science recently provoked him to unmitigated rage, expressed in a letter in which he also recapitulated his giant list of academic kudos.)

While Montgomery has thus far received no awards for humility, history's heresy-hunters have generally been terribly self-assured. This is apparent in the pedantic savagery and sleazy over-simplifications he employs in debate. University of Chicago Lutheran Chaplain Wayne Saffen describes Montgomery's debating technique as a "War dance . . . devoid of the fundamental rules of human decency.'

In San Diego, for instance, Montgomery described debate opponent Joseph Fletcher ( of new morality of "Situation Ethics" fame) as "virtually a mid-twentieth century Marcionite." (Marcion, a second century heretic, advocated dropping of the Old Testament from Christian scripture.)

After Fletcher had contended that sometimes lying is ethical conduct — as in the case of saving a child's life by concealment from a potential murderer Montgomery affirmed: "There is no way short of sodium pentothol, of knowing when the situationist is actually endeavoring to set forth genuine facts and when he is lying like a trooper . . . it leave me, the protagonist, and you, the audience, entirely incapable of every being sure that Prof. Fletcher means what he says."

Home Sewing

It's Really Catching On

by GENIE CAMPBELL

Wearing a homemade dress that definitely looked homemade 30 years ago ofien meant

- (A) you were a "country bumpkin."
- (B) you were short on eash
- C fashion was a foreign word to you.

Today, admitting you're a home sewer is also admitting.

- (A) you are clever.
- (B) you are creative.
- (C) you stress individuality in dress.

From an economy-based chore to a pleasurable one, sewing has been picked up as a satisfying creative outlet by many women who find box cakes totally unchallenging.

While saving money is still an aspect of home sewing, most women sew today because they want to. . . not because they have to

AS OF 1871 the home sewing market is one of the 10 fastest growing businesses

Perhaps even more startling is a recent statistic that claims there are more sewing machines in American homes today than there are bathtubs.

All in all, it adds up to a grand total of between 42 and 44 million home sewers in this country alone, and some statisticrans claim it is closer to 50 million.

One out of every 3.5 garments worn by women and children in the United States is made at home

Our sales in the past year have definitely increased," said Bernard Samuels, manager of Singer's in Randhurst Shopping Center. "The fabric market sales are proving even further that home sewing is increasing," he continued.

"ABSOLUTELY EVERYONE appears to be sewing or at least trying," said Jeanne Wade of Fabric World in Rolling

"The majority are sewing really complicated things. Although they feel they are saving a lot of money, they usually end up sewing twice as much. Anyhow the satisfaction of creating is still cheaper than tranquilizers."

The median age has also changed. Sewing is no longer a middle age task. Most home sewers are in the 18-30 age bracket with the average 23. That compares with an average of 47 just a few

A recent survey by Seventeen magazine disclosed that sewing is the No. 1 hobby of teenage girls and that 25 per cent of them have their own sewing ma-

"YOUNG PEOPLE are sewing much more than their parents," said Samuels. They are much more clothes conscious.

More than home economic majors are taking advantage of high school sewing instruction. Classes have been added to the junior high curricula in many schools. Girl Scouts, 4-H and individual stores are other outlets for learning how

And even though sewing is still considered primarily a feminine interest, the intricacies of a sewing machine are being explored by some men.

"Around Christmas everyone was sewing ties," said Mrs. Wade. "Even the men came in and were making their own. Homemade ties are now a big status symbol at the office.

TECHNOLOGY AND experience have done a lot for home sewing. Both quality and quantity of available patterns and fabrics have greatly improved. Sewing machines with their sundry attachments almost make putting in a seam child's

Designers' fabrics are available now for anyone who cares to pay the price. Catalogs too keep pace with the latest in fashion. It used to be patterns dragged several months behind ready-to-wear in style. Today, they are all up-to-date.

When the home sewing craze began to pick up momentum, catalog companies added a special section to their books which included simplified 1-2-3 step patterns for the novice or non-sewer. If one could read, the idea went, one could sew.

A NEW BOOK will be available this month entitled, "The Illustrated Hassle-Free Make Your Own Clothes Book.

Co-authors Sharon Rosenburg and Joan

Wiener have taken a straight forward approach to making clothes that completely excludes any tailoring. Many of the styles call for no more than being able to sew up two side seams.

Through trial and error most veteran seamstresses have found out what they can and cannot wear. Individual fit is often a primary reason for sewing.

Capitalizing on the fact that every woman wants to look her best, McCall's Book of Patterns has introduced a series of patterns to aid women in camouflaging their bad points through design at the bust, waist or hips.

OTHER INNOVATIONS in sewing include pre-cut fabrics. Kits ranging from bathing suits to three-piece leather suits contain all the pre-cut pieces, lining, buttons and thread. The outfit just has to be put together.

For those who dislike the preliminaries of sewing, kits are the answer. They're also a bit more expensive way to sew.

A tremendous urge for individuality, particularly in dress, has caused many women to go the route of home sewing. It's an assurance of being able to appear in public in a one-of-a-kind dress.

And then too, when the chips are down (particularly when it comes to simple items such as ponchos and shifts), sewing is cheaper.

THE SINGER COMPANY promoted a wedding gown that can be sewn from its unbleached muslin for a total of $2.36. Only the Vogue pattern, 2448, costs almost twice as much. The days of dime patterns have long gone. Sewing is not cheap. . . but maybe cheaper.

The accompanying fashions were made by students of design from various parts of the country. ### The Home Line

Dear Dorothy: All the talk about how dry homes are during the winter simply fascinates me. You see, we almost went crazy with a house that had too much moisture. There was a constant musty smell and mildew was a threat all the time. An engineer friend came over and found the trouble -- an uncovered crawl space. We covered the area with black plastic and weighted it down with brick, rocks and other heavy things. It cured the problem. - Edith P.

It was good of you to share your experience. The FHA has a regulation that when there is a crawl space and only two foundation vents, there has to be a polyethylene vapor barrier over the crawl space. Apparently, this isn't necessary when there are more vents.

My son's and husband's shirt collars become frayed at the collar points after just a few washings. Thinking it might be the dryer, I started to iron them instead of drying them. The situation remained unchanged. Have you ever heard of this? Is there anything I can do about it? -- Nancy Anderson.

You've stumped all my experts. We've all heard of heavy beards causing fraying and pilling at the neckline and friction at the cuffs doing the same thing but collar points, no. Has anyone ever run into this odd problem?

Dear Dorothy: When you have unexpected dinner guests and there's not enough lettuce to make a green salad, put canned celery hearts on a leaf of lettuce, sprinkle it with either pickle relish or hard-boiled egg and a dash of dressing. It can be made in a twinkling with an envelope of the salad dressing usually kept on the shelf, not just for emergencies but for ourselves. -Mrs. Ben S.

heating, there is considerable "rumbling" which I've been told is due to the lime in the bottom of the tank. -Lorraine Settgas.

You might try what one reader suggested: Every six months attach a garden hose to the outlet at the base of the tank, placing the other end of the hose at the nearest sink or outlet. Then, turn the valve on and off suddenly, so the water churns up the gravel or minerals formed from the water. Do this until clear water runs out. By doing this at regular intervals, the life of the tank will be lengthened and the noises will be reduced. If this doesn't help, call a plumber because sometime the noise can be simple vibration from a loose washer.

Dear Dorothy: I vaguely remember that there is some simple household ingredient that can be used to clean paintbrushes. Would you happen to know what it is? -Clarice J.

Vinegar. Just heat some in a clean coffee can and soak the brush in it.

open? I read once that a spatula slipped between the dresser and drawer will open the drawer. Is this true? -Clara Hingtgen.

Dear Dorothy: Two drawers of an oldfashioned dresser are stuck tight. This dresser has been in an unheated room for over two years. How can I get them

The spatula will work if the drawer is binding in only one place and the spatula can be put right on it. One thing you can do without going to a lot of trouble is to put the dresser in a heated room. It may take awhile, but the heat should make the wood shrink enough so the drawers can be usable again.

Cable Television Seen As A New Luxury For The '70s

by TOM ROBB

First of a Series

It all starts with a call to the TV repairman who comes to your house to perform a very simple task.

He'll loosen those two screws holding the antenna in place on the back of your TV set and replace the thin, brown wire with a fine, tubular device called a

Once the installation is complete, the suburban viewer will begin his monthly payments of about $5 and sit back to enjoy the sights and sounds of his own community in the privacy of his home.

He may choose a high school basketball game. Maybe his neighbor's boy or own son is the center. Or maybe he'll pick a public service program to see his local alderman giving the latest pitch for

And instead of five channels, he'll have those 2, 5, 7, 9 and 11 numbers plus 12 others, and maybe more.

BECAUSE THE TV signal is direct, the picture should be crystal clear when he sees a loca! newscaster summing up a bond referendum, or his buddy down at the supermarket advertising the goods on sale this week.

And depending on federal rules, now under review, the new cable TV subscriber might pick a movie from Milwaukee or a Chicago Bears game from Rockford - now only a channel selector push away.

For the wife who wants this new convenience in her kitchen, or the daughter who enjoys a late show in her bedroom, only a wall plate similar to a telephone extension connection need be installed.

And in the next decade or two, techtologists say Community Antenna TV talso called CATV) subscribers will most likely witness their TV sets becoming an all-purpose home communications center, complete with gadgets to credit card shop, bank and even vote.

These are but a few of the ramifications CATV could have on the lives of tesidents in Northwest suburbia, which is now being pursued as a market place by CATV operators.

AND EVEN THOUGH experts say CATV will revolutionize our lives, local efficials are concerned primarily with the grassroots of this technological infant, which is nowhere near its potential growth.

They want to know one thing: What immediate effect will cable TV have on the suburbe?

This question is being asked by administrators from Des Plaines, Elk Grove Village, Mount Prospect, Palatine, Rolling Meadows. Roselle, Schaumburg, and Wheeling. All have been approached by CATV operators with franchise offers in the last year.

Another question officials are asking is: Who will control this medium which, one CATV operator said, could "have a greater impact on society than the automobile.

Before rejecting or accepting CATV bidders, most local administrators are awaiting the outcome of state and federal hearings aimed at answering this

BUT IN WHEELING. Village Atty. an ordinance which would allow the viltage board to grant a franchise to one of three bidders.

Wheeling is farthest along the route to becoming the first CATV community in the Northwest suburbs, but for an invention which has been around for some 20 years there is still much ground to be covered before the doubts are cleared away and CATV's full potential is real-

CATV was originated about 20 years ago by a TV repairman in a rural Penn-good TV reception by high bluffs which engulfed that coal mining community.

Since then, CATV systems have dotted rural America - close to 4.5 million in all. But now, CATV operators are eyeing a relatively new and lucrative market: Chicago and its outlying suburbs.

CATV IS MAKING inroads into city and suburbs for two reasons. Heavier population concentrations yield highe profits. And, increasingly taller building like the Hancock Building, often block distort broadcasting signals.

Thus, a coaxial cable used to bring TV signal directly to the picture tube i stead of relying on over-the-air beaming can result in clearer reception and more channel selection, CATV operators say.

In addition, CATV people say their medium will usher in a host of new developments which will cause as much excitement as those first six-inch screens did following World War II.

CATV in Illinois is not new, however. There are 48 systems in operation downstate, now, and another 60 communities have recently granted franchises, says Richard Zukowski, counsel for the Illinois-Indiana Cable TV Association.

Most operators charge their customers a $15 installation fee and a $3.50 to $7 monthly bill thereafter.

GEORGE H. VOGEL is dean of learning resources at Harper College, which has an instructional television studio on campus. Recently, he spoke on cable TV before the Northwest Municipal Conference of Mayors.

He said CATV operators will have to offer more than clearer reception and more channels to entice potential customers at this price.

"But that's what's good about it," he said. "Expanding CATV services will result in a better communications system for all.

The basic system CATV operators have to work with consist of a high community antenna, a distribution center at the foot of this tower and miles of cable

Signals are picked up or sent via the antenna, reprocessed over and over in the distribution center to make for a clearer image, and then sent out over a main cable trunk line into the community where customers tap off a line to their homes in the same way they get telephone service.

In fact, CATV operators usually run their cables along existing utility poles. Some, however, bury their cable like wa-

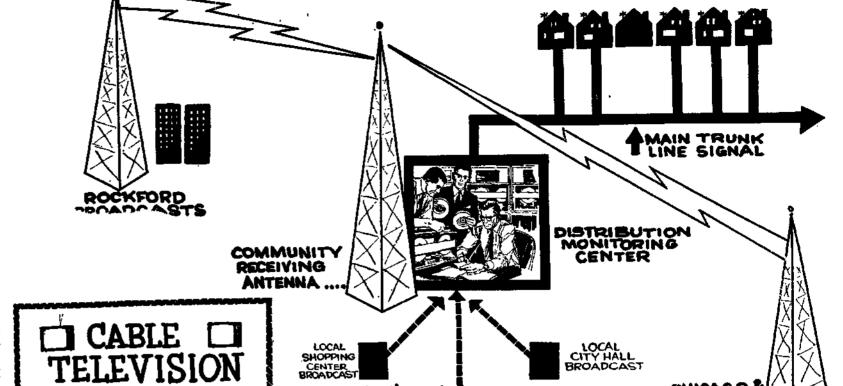

WHAT DOES applying this system to the suburbs mean? According to Merrill Shepro, president of Scientific Communications Corp. in LaGrange, "Cable TV is the communications medium of the 1970s. It will fulfill all promises made and broken by broadcast TV over the years," he said. But Harper's Dean Vogel does not agree. Aside from the suburb's good TV reception gained from their closeness to Chicago, CATV has not reached the suburbs because people simply do not want to pay for TV, he said.

Vogel said CATV operators will have to open their medium's potential full throttle to entice a paying audience. He, like Atty. Zukowski, felt the impetus for eptance is the largely untapped ar of local programming.

Hospitals, schools, churches, town halls, fire and police departments could all tie into cable TV. Local athletic events, bond issues, disaster warnings, town meetings and many other events could be watched by the cable TV subscriber in the privacy of his home.

Aside from the cultural, educational and informational strides CATV could make in the suburbs, the medium allows for other electronic conveniences.

Welfare Reform Urged State Speech Contest Set

The League of Women Voters of the United States recently announced that its nationwide membership will support efforts to reform the federal welfare sys-

In making the announcement, League members said the federal government should fear the major responsibility for an income assistance program which meets the basic needs of persons unable to work, whose earnings are inadequate or for whom jobs are not available.

The statement of position, announced by the League's board of directors, followed an intensive study of the welfare problem undertaken by local leagues. In announcing the position, Lucy Wilson Benson, national president, said, "The decision to work for constructive alternatives to our present welfare system is based on a clear mandate from our members. It represents a consensus of studies made by more than 900 Leagues and views which prevail in all sections of the country.'

THE LEAGUE president said, League members put a great deal of energy and effort into this matter and reached some basic conclusions in four important areas:

-"We believe that the amount of income assistance should be sufficient to provide decent, adequate standards for food, clothing and shelter. -"We believe that all persons in need, individuals as well as members of families, should be eligible for assistance.

participants should be protected.

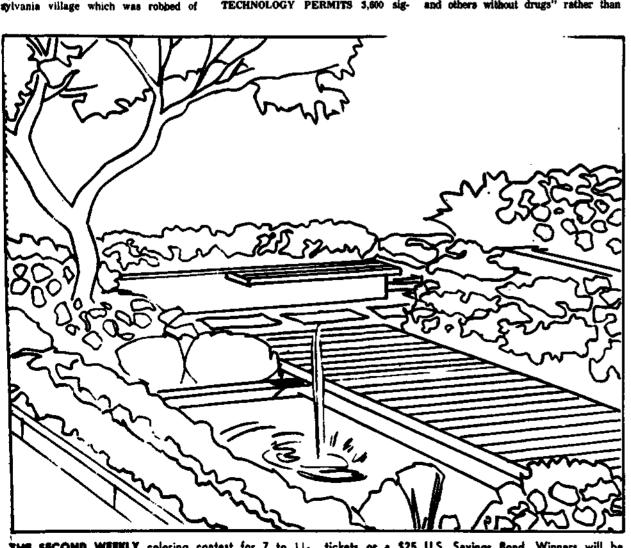

-"The League believes that a punitive relationship between income assistance and job programs should be avoided. Work should be encouraged, but counseling, realistic training for actual jobs and financial incentives - not work requirements - should be the links between job programs and income assistance.

In addition to income assistance, the League's position calls for provision of supportive services, including child care, counseling, family planning, health and legal services. Eligibility for the services would be set and quality standards maintained by the federal government which would also continue in-kind assistance programs such as food stamps and housing subsidies, according to the League.

THE LEAGUE POSITION Also stresses that service and administrative centers should be as accessible as possible to program recipients.

"The League has been working for programs to alleviate poverty for many years," Mrs. Benson said. "This position is based on the fact, not fancy.

"Our present welfare system is an admitted mess which all to often puts down the very people it is supposed to be helping. It's time to have assistance programs which encourage choice and movement instead of locking people on to a treadmill that goes nowhere," she said.

Overtime Heartbreaker In Regionals

And all of those future great Warriors teams will always have to be compared to the 1970-71 contingent — and the game Maine West played Friday night in the finals of the Prospect Regional Tournament

The Warriors battled Arlington for four periods and an overtime in what has to be ranked as one of the finest played games ever in the Northwest suburbs.

It was excellence, sheer excellence. Unfortunately one team had to lose Friday night. It would certainly have been appropriate for the officials to end the game at the end of regulation time and send both teams to the Fremd Sectional Tournament

But, as in all basketball games, one team had to be a winner and one a loser. Maine West came out on the short end of an 80-75 score.

You can bring up the Thornridges and the Proviso Easts and the Jollet Centrals and all the fine busketball those teams play. But it is hard to imagine how any two teams could have played high school basketball as well as Maine West and Arlington did.

That was why Warrior coach Gaston Freeman, a very dejected yet not disappointed man, could say after the game, "I am proud of my boys. Very, very proud."

Freeman, like everyone else in the filled Prospect gymnasium, knew that Maine West had nothing to be ashamed about, but, in fact, a game to be proud about. The same two teams could play another 100 times and the odds would be certain for each team to win 50.

The game displayed shooting, ball-handling rebounding, defense and clutch performances that few thought that these two teams, and very few others, were capable of.

You could count the number of turnovers on one hand.

You could count the number of key plays only if you used both hands. And all your toes. When counting heroes you could stop at

The regulation time ended at 70-70 and the fireworks, which had been going on for four quarters, continued in the overtime stanza.

It took only six seconds for the Cardinals to take a 72-70 lead as John Brodnan sank a 10-foot jumper from the corner after passes from Bill Kieck to Mike Cleveland to the Arlington ace.

Seconds later the Warriors tied the count 72-72 as Fred Horn hit on an eight-foot jumper after a splendid feed from teammate George Woodley.

As the Cardinals came down the floor, Woodley stole the ball and passed off to Tom Kummer who missed the shot but the ball bounded off Arlington's Mike Mandele to retain possession for the Warriors. Willison missed a jumper and Kummer missed the tip-in but Kummer was fouled and he proceeded to sink two pressure packed free throws to give the Warrior a 74-72 lead with 1:58 remaining.

Kieck took a needle threaded pass from Mandele and put the ball through the cords to give Arlington a 74-74 tie

A traveling violation gave the ball right back to the Cardinals but Kieck missed a jump shot and the ball traveled out of bounds to return the ball to Maine

The Warriors came down the floor and worked the ball to Kummer missed a 10foot jumper and Mike Cleveland rebounded for the Cards.

Cleveland passed out to Brodnan who drove the length of the court but was guilty of a charging foul against Willison. Willison, however, missed the free throw and Peters rebounded for Arlington and was fouled by Kummer, Kummer's fifth foul of the game which sent him to the bench.

Peters sank both free throws in a oneand-one situation to give Arlington a 76-74 lead with 51 seconds remaining in overtime.

Maine West came down the floor, worked the ball around and finally Horn took a shot, missed, got the rebound, missed again and the ball went out of

Moments later Cleveland was fouled by Woodley and Cleveland sank both charity tosses in a one-and-one situation to make

But the Warriors were not through yet and with 23 seconds remaining Rick Wolfgram popped in a 10-foot jumper from the corner to bring Maine West back within two points at 78-76. Brodnan brought the ball downcourt for Arlington and proceeded to dribble off 22 seconds of the scoreboard clock before he was fouled by Wolfgram. Brodnan made two free throws to put the game out of reach, 80-76, for Maine West. The clock ran out as Willison tried to get the ball in bounds for Maine West. If ever one team could have sat back and watched a fine season and a fine game go down the drain, Maine West could have in the fourth quarter. The Warriors, after playing on even terms with the Cardinals for three and a half periods, found themselves down by five points with only 1:22 remaining in the game. But Maine West simply did not quit. The Warriors battled the Cardinals right down to the wire. Trailing by 70-65, Kummer brought the Warriors within three points by scoring from underneath the basket to make it 70-67 with 1:12 remaining.

Five seconds later, Peters, who was trying to hit Brodnan with a pass, thew the ball out of bounds and Freeman called time out with 39 seconds left.

The Warriors worked the ball down to Willison in the corner but Wilison missed the shot which put the ball bounding high in the air up for grabs. Horn tapped the ball back in the air, Brodnan tapped it back up and Horn tapped it again and after bouncing around the rim for long anxious moments the ball dropped through the net and the score was tied 70-70.

Arlington coach George Zigman called time out and when action resumed Brodnan threw the ball into Peters who passed to Cleveland who passed back to Peters who took the shot. The shot was a bit long and sailed out of bounds as the buzzer sounded which sent the two teams into evertime action.

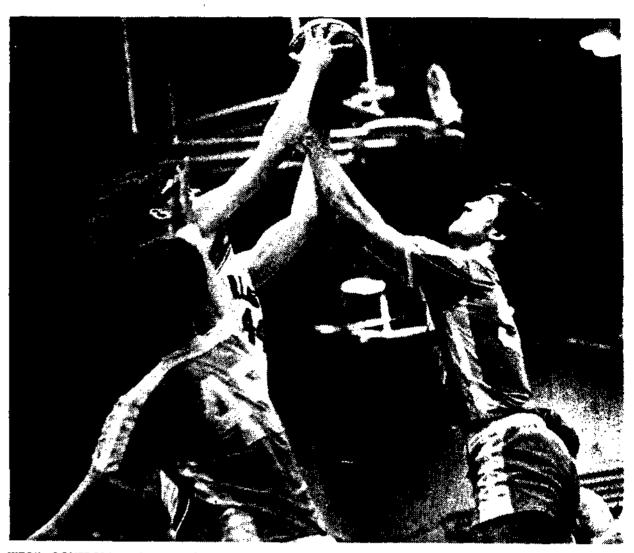

Arlington's free throw shooting, which has been extraordinarily superb for the past two years, earned the Cardinals a ticket to the sectional tournament as foul shots kept them in the game all the way.

Friday night's officials called 22 fouls against Maine West and only 12 against Arlington, much to the dismay of Freeman.

"They (the officials) took the drive and the initiative away from us," Freeman said. "We've been going to the boards hard all year so those fouls just took our type of game away from us.'

Not only did the fouls make Maine West more cautions when going for rebounds, which the Warriors had been doing immensely well all year, but it also provided Arlington with numerous scoring opportunities.

Maine West outscored Arlington 70-54 from the field but Arlington outscored the Warriors 26-6 from the free throw line. And that was the difference on the scoreboard.

It took only two seconds for the officials to call the first foul on Maine West and Peters sank a free throw to give Arlington a 1-0 lead in the first quarter.

Kerr provided the scoring spunk for the Warriors in the early going and tallied 10 of Maine West's first 11 points as the Des Plaines cagers went out on top

Arlington came back to tie the score at II-II at 4:13 but Woodley sank a foul shot and later a bucket after a rebound to give Maine West a 14-13 lead.

After Mandele scored for the Cards, the Warriors roared back with a jumper by Woodley, a jumper by Willison and a bucket by Kummer to give Maine West a 20-15 first quarter lead.

Arlington came back to take a 21-20 first minute of the second 26-23 advantage. The Cardinals rebounded to nab a 29-26 lead but Maine West was back on top with a pair of baskets by Horn to make it 30-29.

After Brodnan scored for Arlintgon. Kerr and Willison tallied for Maine West to give the Warriors a 34-31 halftime

The third quarter was much like the entire game these two teams spent in the Arlington gymnasium in December, a run-shoot contest which the Cards won

Maine West had the upper hand in most of the gunning display early in the third quarter and held a 45-42 lead with 3:36 remaining. But Kummer and Willison both picked up their fourth fouls and both were removed from the game by Freeman.

That was when Arlington went on its biggest surge.

The Cardinals clicked off eight straight points within two minutes to take a 50-45 lead and appeared to have the Warriors all but buried.

But Freeman's club came right back to come within one point at 50-49, $2-51, and quarter but the Warriors rallied to take a 54-53 before the period ended with the end it.

Cards on top 56-53.

Horn brought the Warriors back within one point again at 56-55 and after Arlington went ahead 61-57 he brought his teammates back within two points at 61-59, with another bucket.

Kerr reached up with his 6-feet, 9-inch frame to bucket another two points after a fine feed by Woodley to tie the score 61-61 with 4:45 to play,

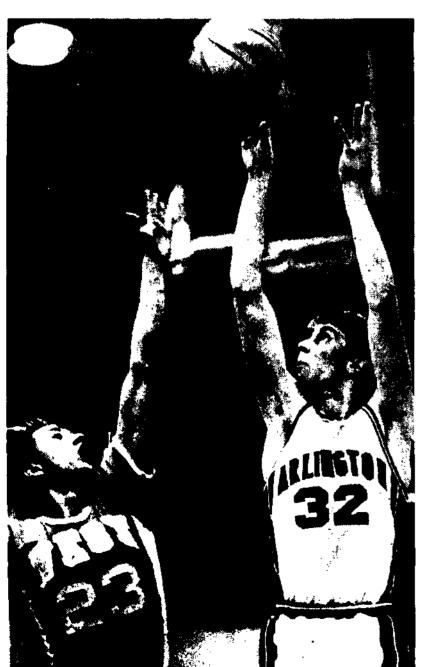

A three-point play by Peters put the Cardinals up 64-41 but a jumper by Woodley made it 64-63. Two free throws by Brodnan made it 66-63. Maine West again came within one point, at 66-65, but a pair of baskets by Kieck appeared to send the Warriors down to their last gasp as Arlington went out in front 70-65. But Maine West rallied like all true champions should, tied the score 70-70 at the end of regulation time and eventually went down to a heartbreaking defeat.

The loss closed out Maine West's 1970-71 season with 17 wins and five setbacks. It was a class team which represented Maine West this season.

East Leyden Nips Demons, 71-68

by JIM STUART

Basketball opened with a bang last November at Maine East. The fourth quarter action was absolutely wild, with the crowd on its feet at the outcome in doubt until the final moment.

And that's how it ended Thursday

Not exactly on a happy note, because an aroused East Leyden team played practically a flawless three quarters of hell to hand the Demons a 71-88 setback and knock them out of the state tournsment in the semifinal round of their own

But as was the case throughout the hectic Maine East campaign, no one who saw Thursday's thriller can say that the Blue Demone quit.

Quit? They secred a whopping 21 points in the final period, entiting a 14int Eagle lead to two in the final two and a half estimates of play. You can't really call that quitting.

Unfortunately for Maine East, howjver, the game was typical in another way. Once again an ordinary team played like supermen against coach Paul McClelland's club, and once again it was the het shooting of a guard that spalled

This time the culprit was six-foot semier Jim Clehy. Clehy poured in 28 points, all of them from the floor and most of them from the outside, and he simply save the bosts fits the entire

The home fane may soon forget Olchy's performance, but they won't forget those last few minutes, when their young men came so close to pulling out just one

The free threw shoeting of Mark Bondesen, Frank Knepf and Jack Cremin had aleady cut the Leyden lead from 14 to 10 with two minutes left, and then a jumper by reserve guard Bruce Potenza reduced

Cichy was fouled but missed from the line (that's the only spot on the court he couldn't hit from), and then Bondeson was hacked and he cashed in both of his charity attempts.

Two Eagle free throws made it an eight-point bulge again, but Dale Deschamps countered them with a baseline the ball. They fouled Cichy who missed again, and then Russ Anderson drove the length of the court to make the score 70-66 with 13 seconds left.

Only one tick later the foul whistle blew again, and once more the new shaken Eagles missed. This time it was Bondeson who put in the easy bucket to put the Blue Demons within a field goal, but by now the clock was a far more formidable opponent that East Leyden.

With only four seconds remaining, a final Maine foul was turned into the clincher for Leydon when Engle guard Jim Thomas broke the drought and sank his

The comeback was just a little too late, as the game had really been decided way back in the first quarter. Maine East came out in a sone but Cichy destroyed that with his outside shooting, and the cold Demons found themselves down 15-8 at the quarter.

Deschamps, one of the best all-around ballplayers you'll see in the state, kept the Demons within reach with 10 points in period two, but Leyden stayed hot and actually increased its margin to 31-22 at

The problem for the Demons on offense was that they couldn't get the ball to their big man, Bondeson, against a very effective collapsing zone. Deschamps, with 13 points, was virtually the entire

Maine offense in the first half. McClelland decided to go to his zone press in the second half, and as a result East Leyden 16 14 15 28-71 The game epened up a little and Maine East 8 14 15 21-48 The game epened up a little and Maine was able to find Bondesen more often.

Label Ali 'Labile'

Defeat Could Destroy...

by MURRAY OLDERMAN

NEW YORK (NEA) - To Cassius Marcellus Clay, aise known as Muhammed Ali, it is more than a fight, the 32nd of a professional career in which he has never been defeated. It could mean his survival as a proud, functional man.

For any other fighter, that would be overstating the case. But the man known as Muhammad All has psyched himself into the igitiest ego trip I have ever seen in sports. And now that he's about to fight Joe Frazier, easily the most dangerous spponent in his career, you have to wonder how destructive the effects of a defeat will be, in psychic rather than

This smacks a little bit of armehair psychiatry, but All is a guy whose behav-iorism attracts the curiosity of "shrinks."

"He's very labile in his emotions." says one psychiatrist I know. Labile, in the jargon, means prope to undergo dispiacement or change; hence, instability. He adds that with the temper tantrums and the childish behavior in group situations, All obviously has a drive "to establish himself as superior to anybody."

There is a tendency to believe that his way-out braggadocio is all part of a puton, that he's having fun with people, that the real All is sensitive, charming and stable. Charming yes - when he wants to be. Senstive, sometimes - when it suits his purpose. Stable, no.

The first sign of the errant emotional machine came at the weigh-in before the first Clay-Liston fight in Miami Beach. when the young challenger went wildeyed and ranting, and his blood pressure shot up so spectacularly that the physician in attendance seriously thought of cancelling the fight. It was self-induced hysteria to build himself up to face Liston, who then was still a frightening fig-

Ali (he folged the Black Muslims and changed his name right after that fight) has never needed to psyche himself up to that high again, mainly because none of his subsequent opponents (lackuding the deflated Liston) have been quite as scary. But the closer he gets to a fight, any fight, the more frenetic becomes his public posture. And he can be brutally arrogant, as he was in humiliating an injured

Floyd Patterson, a mild man who had the temerity to say he opposed Ali's social and political views.

The enigma, of course, is that he can also be amusing and likable. You can catch his act on almost any street corner he happens to be. The ego in him feeds on the adulation of people, all people. And he spots himself where they'll be. Atter the Super Bowl game in Miami, he was entertaining a crowd in front of a beach hetel when I told him the Colts were have a victory party at a country club. In a half-hour he was there, and he took ever the party. He wasn't at all interested in the Colts' celebration, or how they won. When he'd had his fun, he left,

Even in his casual banter, Ali is happlest when he's putting down people. Smug within himself, he has never had to taste it from the other end. Now here's the specter of Frazier, who could shatter the Ali gestalt with his club-like persistence. As a fighter, Ali showed himself vulnerable against Oscar Bonavena, a crude slugger who made him taste blood.

A whipping by Frazier tonight, a sensible prediction, whould leave bruises which don't show.

Notre Dame's dazed cagers probably straight points to take a 17-16 lead. still are wondering what happened to them in the Niles West regional Thursday night.

They, like the English of World War II, now know what a blitzkrieg is. In London in 1940 it was German military might minning amok.

At Niles on March 4, a New Trier East basketball hurricane blitz blew the poor Done right out of the gym, 79-48. The rout rudely shattered the Done' hopes for a second straight regional crown and was a shocking end to an otherwise line 20-4 season.

New Trier's giant front line, led by 6-8 center Bill Hattis, thoroughly dominated this contest, which wasn't even close for most of the second half.

Hattis, 4-6 Dave Burns, and 6-3 Don Stewart gobbled up almost every rebound in sight, scored all but nine of the Indian points, and threw a defensive wall around Greg Strattan and John Hill-

So effective was Hattis, with his 27 points and at least 20 rebounds, that both Hillinger and Strattan fouled out trying to stay with him. In fact, the game's verdict was sealed late in the second quarter, when Hillinger drew his third personal. For most of the third quarter, the 6-5 Don center was forced to give Hattis a little more room and the New Trier giant took full advantage of it, scoring repeatedly on 10-footers from the base-

The plucky Dons stayed with the Indians, however, until a twisting Tom Les layup made it 39-36 New Trier in the third quarter. But Hattis then hit a couple of his jumpers, Burns canned a rebound and two free throws, and Stewart got two fast-break layups and suddenly it was 54-39 and the Dons were done for 1970-71.

That just made New Trier mad, however, and they reeled off four straight buckets to go out in front, 24-17.

From there until the blitz broke loose in the third quarter, the Dons stayed close but fouled much too often in their eagerness to catch up. Notre Dame seemed up tight for this one, and they made many mistakes against a team which this night was making very few. One of the worst Don habits was missing many easy cripples and rebounds from in close.
